Ultimatum Shatters ICBC Agents' Strike

By AL FORREST
and KIT COLLINS
Times Staff

The 1,100 member Insurance Agents Association of British Columbia ended its strike against Autoplan at 1:30 p.m. today in the face of an ultimatum from the Insurance Corporation of British Columbia.

"We have lost a battle but not the war," president Jack Hamilton said.

He said the agents would continue to seek a meeting with Transport Minister Robert Strachan to obtain a higher commission rate for its members.

Hamilton said a threat to agents they faced loss of all government insurance business if they failed to end the boycott by noon Friday was a crushing blow for the smaller members of the association who relied upon that business to survive.

Telegrams and phone calls to the agents threatening to cancel licences to sell government insurance made the difference, he said.

Hamilton said despite denials from Strachan that the agents had been threatened, the telegram sent to agents not contacted by phone was clearly an ultimatum.

The telegram reads:

"We were unable to contact you by phone yesterday. It is imperative you advise us immediately whether you are continuing service under Autoplan. Unless we receive by telegram your decision to continue by noon on Friday, November 15, 1974, we shall be forced to recommend cancellation by the lieutenant-governor in council of your firm's appointment to represent the Insurance Corporation of British Columbia."

It is signed "N. Bortnick, general manager" of ICBC.

The corporation set up a 35-member phoning team Tuesday and on Wednesday had contacted 628 agents. The remainder of the 472 agents were sent telegrams. Of the 628 agents phoned, 176 said they would abandon the strike immediately, another 183 said they were considering doing so and 269 said they were determined to continue as of Wednesday night.

In Victoria, Ian Rendle, vice-president of the Victoria branch of the insurance agents association, said on Wednesday only 1 of 38 association members and 2 of 5 non-association agents indicated they were in favor of ending the boycott here.

However, small firms could not afford a total loss of ICBC business, including fire, theft and car insurance.

In the legislature Wednesday, Strachan repeated an earlier statement that the agents were not being threatened.

He said, however, ICBC had to know how many agents were going to live up to their contracts and how many were not, so contingency plans could be made.

The agents signed a two-year contract with ICBC one year ago, agreeing to a 9 per cent commission in the first year and a 7 per cent commission in 1975.

Strachan has increased the offer for the second year to 7 per cent plus a flat fee of $2.

However, the agents maintain the second part of the two-year contract is void because the ICBC did not live up to an agreement to simplify procedures for selling insurance in the second year of operation.

GOLD HITS $191

LONDON (Reuter) — Gold prices soared past the $190 mark for the first time on London bullion markets today.

The price at one point touched $191 an ounce but despite heavy demand fell back to be pegged during the afternoon fixing at $188.25 dollars — a record.

Dealers reported heavy buying with substantial orders from West Germany which pushed the price up $3 from Wednesday's final fixing of $185.25.

BUY SUBSTITUTE—STORE

VANCOUVER (CP) — Super-Valu stores throughout British Columbia are in the process of erecting signs suggesting that customers buy sugar substitutes instead of sugar, a company spokesman said Wednesday.

He said the 85 stores would put up signs as they acquired sugar substitutes.

A spokesman for Kelly Douglas Co. Ltd., parent company of the Super-Valu chain, said his company hopes the price of sugar would stabilize or reduce if people bought less.

He said the retail price for a 10-pound bag of sugar in a Super-Valu store now is $6.67 compared with approximately $1.69 a year ago, and $65.59 for a hundred weight compared with about $15.50 this time last year.

Teachers Seek Self Policing

A Teaching Profession Act giving teachers the power to police their own profession has been drafted by the B.C. Teachers' Federation for presentation to the government.

The draft report, prepared by a B.C. Teachers' Federation committee and made public Wednesday, would give the federation power to reprimand, suspend or cancel the membership of a teacher found guilty of incompetence.

With membership in the BCTF compulsory, cancellation would be tantamount to taking away a person's right to teach in B.C.

The BCTF resolved in 1973 to seek a professional act as a means of maintaining competence in the profession, assuring self-government for the federation and encouraging "professional growth."

The draft report incorporates all existing BCTF policy on professionalism and includes the following provisions.

—Local teacher associations be given authority to negotiate with individual school boards on a wide range of topics including teacher salaries, working and learning conditions, hours of work, transfers, appointments and school policy.

—The only appeal for suspension or cancellation of teacher's membership would be to the B.C. Court of Appeal, not back to the BCTF or the cabinet.

Education Minister Eileen Dailly said late Wednesday she had not yet received a copy of the draft legislation but she was "willing to read it anytime."

She said the government has made no decision on whether the teachers should be granted a professional act as other groups in the province already have.

Greater Victoria school board chairman Peter Bunn said the report is "an absolutely devastating document" which is "anti-public education."

He said teachers are not professionals because professionals "don't leave schools unattended and don't break contracts."

Teachers can't expect to have a private practice like doctors and lawyers, Bunn said, because education is a compulsory and public function and "parents can't take their kids somewhere else . . . they're stuck in the system."

Bunn said he "can't take the document seriously" and he hoped the government would treat it in the same vein.

If the government does take the report seriously, he said, school trustees will likely launch a public information campaign to warn against the dangers inherent in such legislation.

Riot Greets Press

MONTREAL (CP) — Reporters toured cellblock No. 1 at St. Vincent de Paul Penitentiary Wednesday at the invitation of Solicitor-General Warren Allmand after two escaped prisoners threatened a bloodbath if conditions are not improved.

Hours before reporters entered the institution, two guards were attacked by prisoners being escorted to cells after outdoor exercise.

Warden Bernard Marcoux said the segregation section in cellblock No. 1 was quiet for five months until last Friday when the two prisoners began wrecking their cells after hearing about the impending tour.

Prisoners said they are kept 24 hours a day in cells measuring about 10 feet long, four feet wide and eight feet high.

Others spoke of unwarranted cancellation of parole privileges.

"We're not dogs, we're human beings," yelled one prisoner in a cell reeking of teargas. He was one of those who attacked guards earlier.

Report Raps Police Dep't

A 17-page report rapping the Victoria City Police department for poor working conditions and unsafe vehicles will be kept under wraps, police commission chairman and Mayor Peter Pollen said today.

Pollen said the critique by University of B.C. law student Ken Teskey is a "vitriolic document" an dthat it is not in the public interest, to disclose allegations contained in the report.

Teskey, who wrote the report independently after spending the summer as a constable with the force as part of the department's annual law student program, told the Times he originally planned to make his study public.

"Since then I've met with a certain amount of opposition," he said today in a telephone interview from Vancouver. "I've agreed with the department not to tell anything until we get a chance to talk it over."

Teskey said he has given copies of his report to Pollen, members of the police commission and police union.

"The reason I wrote it was in the hope I'd create a bit of a stir to improve working conditions for the men and the department," he said today. "It looks as though it might have that effect without slandering anyone . . . I haven't mentioned any names."

Teskey said the report was meant as constructive criticism and that he will know if any positive changes are made within the department because he is "on fairly amicable terms" with most of the officers he worked with.

He said the basis of the report is that the department has a need for more manpower and better equipment.

"The city's getting bigger and I don't think the department is," he said.

When asked about reports that the document might surface during contract negotiations between the city and the association, Teskey said: "That's their business."

Teskey also said that if the police commission releases the report, "they might give you an edited copy."

At his regular press conference today, Pollen said the source of the report should be considered.

"This is just one man's opinion — someone who had been a part-time member of the department," he said. "The fact that we had no power steering on one of our cars and uniforms out of the 19th century is just one 23-year-old's opinion."

The mayor said members of the press should go out and get the impressions of Victoria policemen on a first-hand basis.

Public Rent Talks Urged

The B.C. Tenants Organization has appealed to the legislature to bring in further changes to the Landlord and Tenant Act to allow tenants to bargain with landlords for rent and living conditions.

Bruce Yorke, president of the BCTO, presented a policy statement today listing amendments his organization wants the government to bring in to change the rent control legislation.

Those changes include:

Establishment of a B.C. Rental Housing Authority to hold public hearings on rent and to set all rents on new premises built in the province;

Establish the right of tenants to form associations and councils to bargain with landlords over rent and conditions and to aid in law enforcement;

Deletion of the 12 per cent renovation costs the new legislation would allow landlords to charge in addition to normal rent increases;

Elimination of the "hated security deposits" of one-half a month's rent provided for in the new bill;

Provision for rents to be set according to classification of premises rather than on an individual basis between each landlord and tenants.

Yorke said his organization

Nixon Goes Home

Times News Services

LONG BEACH — Pale and thin, former president Richard Nixon left hospital today in a wheelchair after 23 days of treatment for phlebitis.

Wearing pyjamas and a bathrobe, he was taken out a back entrance of Memorial Hospital Medical Centre of Long Beach.

Nixon's wife, Pat, rode away with him on the trip back to their oceanside estate in San Clemente where he will await the Watergate special examiners.

The three cardiovascular and internist specialists named by Judge John Sirica have until Nov. 29 to report back whether Nixon is well enough to testify at the cover-up trail, or give a deposition in California.

The former president's physician however, has warned that Nixon is troubled by touchy blood pressure, that shoots up under even minor stress, even friendly conversation.

Extremists Bomb Tokyo Embassies

The sudden attacks took place simultaneously just after 11:30 a.m. Several policemen on guard at the two embassies were hurt.

Metropolitan police said eight people taken into custody were identified with a Marxist Youth League. American embassy officials said there was no damage to the embassy, which is housed in temporary quarters while a new building is under construction, and no injury to Americans.

Communist and Socialist parties and labor groups have launched a campaign against the planned visit of Ford but have said they will oppose it only by peaceful means. This is the first instance of violence and seems likely to increase the already very tight security precautions in effect for Ford's visit.

Police said handbills calling for stopping the Ford trip by force were found near the Soviet embassy.

A group of six young men wearing red helmets appeared near the main entrance of the American embassy at 11:33 a.m. and tried to storm the compound by throwing Molotov cocktails, police said.

About the same time two young men threw six Molotov cocktails at the embassy from the roof of the Hotel Okura across the street, police said. Officers later found a bag and leaflets bearing the name, Marxist Youth League, on the 13th floor of the hotel. A total of 13 Molotov cocktails were thrown. Some exploded on the road outside the compound and some in the embassy parking lot. The Molotov cocktail attacks on the Soviet embassy also happened at almost exactly the same time.

NEWS BRIEFS

U.S. Wholesale Rise

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Spurred by a 56.4 per cent annual increase in food prices, the U.S. wholesale price index rose an adjusted 2.3 per cent in October, signalling worse inflation for consumers in the months ahead, the labor department reported today. The October surge was more than double the September increase, whose relatively modest 1 per cent increase had caused some administration officials to express hopes that inflationary pressures were easing.

Strikers Threatened

LA PAZ (Reuter) — President Hugo Banzer's government threatened Wednesday to fire factory workers and miners unless they returned to work as a crippling strike wave tightened its grip on Bolivian life. The country's 30,000 tin miners began a 48-hour strike Tuesday in protest against Gen. Banzer's decision to postpone promised elections and ban all political activity until 1980.

Israel Hikes Taxes

JERUSALEM (Reuter) — The Israeli government announced today new restrictions and tax and price increases to cope with the country's deep economic crisis. The ministry of communications declared a 43 per cent increase in telephone, telex and postal services abroad in line with last week-end's devaluation of the Israeli pound.

United Nations Divided As Arafat Off to Cuba

Times News Services

With the so-called "third force" expressing a more and more pro-Arab stance in the General Assembly, diplomatic sources said there is an increasing threat Israel might even be expelled from the current UN session as was South Africa.

Arafat's speech brought angry reaction from Israeli ambassador Yosef Tekoah in the assembly a few hours later — in a speech boycotted by many of the Third World group.

He termed the PLO a band of murderers and said Arafat's speech called for the end of Israel as a state. Israel had boycotted the actual speech.

"Israel will not permit the establishment of PLO authority in any part of Palestine," Tekoah said.

"The PLO will not be forced on the Palestinian Arabs. It will not be tolerated by the Jews of Israel."

At least 35 delegations walked out as Tekoah took the rostrum including the Soviet Union, China and many African nations as well as Arab states.

In his speech, Arafat said the PLO wanted self-determination for some 1.5 million Palestinians left homeless by the birth of Israel in 1948 and an equal number living in Israel or in Israeli-occupied land.

Two leading U.S. experts on the Middle East said the speech hurt the chances of peace in the region, polarizing the positions of the belligerents.

Columbia University Prof. J. C. Hurwitz said a new war is likely if the assembly adopts Arafat's proposals. John Campbell, senior research fellow at the Council on Foreign Relations, cited a "50-50" chance of war.

There was little doubt Arafat's speech had increased tensions in the Middle East, especially in the Israeli-occupied West Bank which an Arab summit conference at Rabat decided should come under administration of Arafat's Palestinians and not Jordan's King Hussein.

Arab youths jeered and cursed patrolling Israeli soldiers there Wednesday and shouted their support for Arafat's speech.

There was also tension along the Israeli-Lebanese border where Israeli soldiers were on alert against attack by Arab guerrillas who carried out a rocket attack on an Israeli village Wednesday. Israeli infantry and artillery attacked villages in Southern Lebanon today.

Tots Come First, Says Dentist

QUEEN CHARLOTTE CITY (CP) — The Queen Charlotte Islands' only dentist, Dr. Robert Orr, 34, said Wednesday he will no longer perform any but emergency work on adults.

Noting that the islands have 5,600 residents, Dr. Orr said his decision is "based strictly on time."

"I just can't work on everybody . . . there aren't enough hours in the day," he said.

"The need for dental care here is so great that I had to make a decision," Orr said. "So I have decided to work only on children because I believe health care is a birthright."

Besides, he said, it is adults who are most responsible for the dental problems of children because "they are the ones pushing candy and refined sweets."

Orr first gained attention when he overturned candy shelves in a store in Masset to protest the dietary prominence of sweets in North American culture.

In the new role he has defined for himself, Orr will work a minimum of one week a month at a medical clinic, funded by the Federal Indian Affairs Department, treating children in Old Masset Village.

He said he has worked out a special arrangement so he can treat non-Indian, as well as Indian, children free-of-charge.

In addition, he will spend occasional weeks in this city treating children and any adult emergencies.

The rest of his time will be spent in a cabin on the northeast tip of Graham Island writing on nutrition and preventive dentistry.

There is famine up-Country and daily trains bring starving and dying people into crowded Dacca

The City Of Death

For this child . . . no hope

Many of them never make it farther than Kamalapur railway station, and there are small family groups squatting on the pavement with the sunken and defeated look of extreme hunger. They are covered with fleas, which they do not brush away.

The children are so thin their ribs look like bird cages under the skin.

There is a naked man, hardly more than a skeleton, covered with sores, lying on the curb. People step around him with eyes averted as they pass.

There are others in the same condition lying along the station wall. Some of them are already dead but we cannot be sure which. The more healthy children are gathering handfuls of cow dung to burn as fuel, and others are searching through rubbish piles for something to salvage.

The official's name is Altaur Rahman, and he explains there are 10 trucks like his roaming the city picking up starving people.

His orders are to pick up only the worst cases, the truly desperate, for the new camps have no room for marginal cases.

He is also instructed to pick up only the newcomers from the countryside, not the urban poor and the beggars of Dacca.

Rahman explains to the refugees that the city can provide food for them and that the constables are here to get them to the camps.

But another, with a half-dead child, says that he does not want to go to the camps and that he will take the next train back to Nymensingh whence he came.

The trains have long since stopped asking people to pay but Rahman knows the man will simply go to another street and beg.

"Their thinking is that begging will be more beneficial," he says. "But the child would certainly die."

No one knows the extent of the disaster in terms of human tragedy.

In this country there are no reliable statistics, and communications are so bad that people have died by the hundreds in the more remote provinces without anyone in the government hearing about it.

Key Issues Dodged At Food Conference

Times News Service

ROME — Delegates at the World Food Conference skirted the key question of food aid today, but blasted Canada and other grain exporters for not doing enough to feed famine victims.

The delegates also voted:

—to control the tsetse fly.

—to use women fully in setting food and nutrition policies.

—to aim at creating a stable balance between population and food supply.

"We're still not at the point where they (grain exporters) are willing to sacrifice national interests for international reasons," a top official at the World Food Conference said.

However, Agriculture Minister Eugene Whelan of Canada told reporters Canada "is prepared to do anything within reason" to feed famine victims.

He reiterated his disappointment with the all-talk, little-action progress of the conference. He suggested that if it took as long to plant a crop as it does here to talk about it, there would be no food to distribute.

Addeke Boerma, head of the United Nations Food and Agriculture Organization (FAO), proposed last week that Canada, the United States, Australia, the Soviet Union, Argentina, the European Common Market nations and China take eight million to 12 million tons of grain off the commercial market in the next eight months to supply Asian and African countries that can't afford to buy it.

Whelan said other rich countries, including the oil states, should help finance Canadian and other wheat shipments.

He added that he would not be surprised to see members of the Organization of Petroleum Exporting Countries announce their willingness to supply funds by the end of the conference.

U.S. sources said their delegation had not responded to the FAO proposal because it had not been determined how much grain was really needed and who would pay for it.

U.S. economist Lester Brown, an adviser to the conference, said earlier this week that the U.S. had been asked to provide the bulk of the grain, perhaps as much as four million tons.

But Agriculture Secretary Earl Butz, the chief of the U.S. delegation, and President Ford's administration are opposed to any large-scale diversion from the commercial market unless they can get the Arab oil nations to help pay for it.

still maintains rents are already too high and the 10.6 per cent allowable rent increase figure "constitutes a crushing economic blow to tens of thousands of renters."

Powerful financial trusts control a large portion of rental suites in the province, said Yorke, and these trusts have "already ripped off the general public" and should not be allowed to acquire "further unearned income."

He also criticized provisions in the new landlord and tenant legislation allowing new rental accommodation to be exempt from rent controls for five years.

The BCTO's recommendations were to be presented to the NDP caucus today in preparation for third reading of the rent control legislation in the house.

Police Powers Sought

said it was up to the BCTF executive to decide when to present the draft "for negotiation with the government."

He said the committee studied teaching legislation in other jurisdictions as well as professional acts for other groups in B.C. and drafted the legislation on a similar basis.

The BCTF now operates under the Societies Act, he said, and the limitations of that act "has caused a lot of problems."

"The idea is to realize certain aspects of federation policy and to make the profession more self-governing," he said. "We brought together the matter of ethics and the business of compulsory membership."

The provincial government this year returned to the BCTF the right to compulsory membership which had been taken away by the former Socred administration.

Under the draft proposal the local school boards would have to negotiate directly with their teachers to determine a wide range of learning and working conditions in the school.

Those include: appointments of principals, head teachers, vice-principals and school district supervisory personnel; procedures for school policy decision-making, promotion, reports on teachers, leaves of absence and class size; buildings and facilities and the deployment of instructional and supportive personnel.

School boards would also have to consult with the local association in determining the staffing of schools.

Under "professional rights," the draft says any teacher "shall be responsible for the students assigned to his or her charge and shall assist in the promotion, development and implementation of a learning situation."

The report says the additions, rights and responsibilities outlined in the draft legislation would allow the federation to "play an increasingly effective role in influencing the professional practice of our members" and to be a "stronger organization."

ICBC HAS WHIP HAND

Strachan has continued to refuse to negotiate directly with the insurance agents association on the grounds the ICBC contracts were made directly between individual agents and the Crown corporation.

"We recognize the association as the unofficial representative of the agents but it can't be certified as a fit bargaining agency," he said in the legislature Wednesday.

He was responding to questions from the opposition.

Opposition leader Bill Bennett charged that the telegram was evidence of strongarm tactics being used by ICBC on behalf of the provincial government.

When Strachan denied the telegram was a threat, his remarks were greeted by shouts of "strongarm" and "threats" by opposition members.

Under terms of a five-year contract signed by the agents, the ICBC can recommend cancellation of licences to handle government business and has the power to suspend agents but any cancellation would have to be by cabinet order.

While the agents signed a five-year contract, an attached agreement said commission rates would be 9 per cent the first year, 7 per cent the second and then negotiated for the final three years.

In effect, the agents agreed to a two-year contract at fixed rates.

Cholera Kills 500

DACCA (Reuter) — About 500 persons died of cholera and other intestinal disorders last week in the Bogra district, 110 miles north of here, the news agency Bangladesh Press International reported today. The agency said epidemics of cholera and other diseases had broken out in the Bogra district and there was an acute shortage of medicine.

Egypt to 'Use' Canal

CAIRO (UPI) — Egypt will use the reopening of the Suez Canal as a bargaining counter in the next phase of negotiations with Israel to obtain a further Israeli troop withdrawal in Sinai, diplomatic sources said today.

Most of B.C. was cloudy this morning with fog and drizzle confined to the southern coast. However with daytime heating, the southern half of the province will receive frequent sunny periods for the next two to three days as an area of high pressure persists over southern B.C. Morning fog will still pose a problem to some coastal areas. Over northern B.C. a series of weak disturbances will give mainly cloudy skies and the odd shower or snow-flurry. A more vigorous system moving in from the Aleutians is expected to bring high winds and rain to the north coast late Friday.

James Bay residents will get a chance to look at their new community school from the inside out when the JAMES BAY COMMUNITY ASSOCIATION holds a general meeting there Monday night at 8 p.m.

"We'll bring them up to date on the general development of community school programs," said the Association's Lewis Madley. "About 600 residents are involved in its day and night pregrams now."

Latest developments on a community clinic will also be talked about Monday.

After two weeks of closure for renovations, the VIC WEST COMMUNITY NEIGHBORHOOD CENTRE is open again, and several William Head prisoners have been on hand this week helping with the last of the renovations.

Programs beginning again through the centre include Thursday afternoon soccer and other games in the park for anyone aged 6 to 17 and gym activities in Vic West Elementary every Monday and Wednesday nights.

Because its activities have spread, the NEWTON GARDENS RECREATION SOCIETY will change its name to the NEWTON-RICHMOND SOCIETY, it was decided at a recent meeting.

This group has been very active and staged the first of a regular Sunday series of "treasure hunts" or swap and shops last weekend in front of the apartments on Newton Ave. Noon to 4 p.m., weather permitting, people will be able to buy and sell.

Society members and others are invited to come out to child-parent communication meetings which began Tuesday night in Block 17-18 of the apartments. "I could just wring my hands that more people aren't taking it," said spokesman Velma McIntosh, "but they just don't know what it is."

"It's active listening between parent and child," she said. There are still spaces available in the class.

The society also urges people of the neighborhood to attend gym nights Wednesday at the Boys' Club on Yates and at Richmond School gym on Thursday. It's adults' activity time from 8 to 9 each of those nights.

Representatives from B.C. Med will be on hand at a JAMES BAY NEW HORIZONS forum Friday morning to answer people's questions and talk about some of the problems they have in dealing with B.C. Medical.

Retired citizens of the area are invited to this forum at 511 Michigan St. at 10 a.m.

The elderly of James Bay are also invited to activities going on this week from Friday to Sunday at 521 Superior St. at 2 p.m. each day. Activities include bridge, other games, and tea.

Bazaar Profit $13,000

Bazaars can net more than dimes and nickels for an organization, as the Royal Jubilee Hospital Auxiliary showed again this year.

Though the fair was held mid-week, "people were knocking me down trying to get in," said convener Melva Carter.

Sale items were more traditional than those popularized in recent years and still sold in large numbers in craft stores.

Rather than concentrate on pottery, batik, macrame and homemade candles the auxiliary sold dolls of all kinds, knitted items, fruits, flowers, homemade jellies and baked goods.

"As a grandmother I had realized a few years ago dolls had gone out of fashion," said Carter.

She believes they are becoming more popular now however, especially the homemade variety that neither walks nor talks without help from "Mum."

Over $500 worth of dolls were sold at the fair.

NO ROOM TO STOP IN WIDENING

People who drive Sooke Rd. between the Metchosin cut-off and Colwood Corners should watch out for buses that frequently stop without pulling over to the side.

The department of highways has widened the road but made provision for only three bus stops between Colwood Corners and the cut-off at Metchosin Rd.

"The right of way was restrictive," said a department spokesman who explained there just wasn't room for more stops.

He also said demand for more stops was insufficient and people shouldn't expect stops to be as close together in rural areas as right in the city.

South West Coach Lines runs a regular route along Sooke Road and realizes the hazard caused when buses cannot pull off the road to stop.

"Due to the curbing installed along the newest portion of the roadway, it is impossible for buses to pull even part way off the road," a Coach Lines spokesman said in a newspaper ad recently.

One objection to Coach Lines' complaint about lack of roadside space, however, is that rural buses too often tend to stop whenever and wherever people want to get on rather than sticking to the bus stop method of receiving passengers.

They're Paying the Arena Piper And Manager Wants Tune Called

By PETER MEDWID
Times Staff

"They're paying for it so why shouldn't they be the prime benefactors of the programs we'll be developing."

"They" are the areas of Cowichan Bay, Cobble Hill, Mill Bay and Shawnigan Lake and the person who wants them to get their monies worth is Denis McLean.

McLean is the manager of the $1.8 million Mill Bay Recreation Centre nearing completion on the Mill Bay-Shawnigan Lake Road and he has strong opinions on his objectives.

To work with he has an arena with a 200 by 85 foot ice surface seating 681 and a curling rink with four sheets.

It's what he intends to do in each of these structures that counts for the four communities.

There are all the standard things:

Schools will use the arena in the mornings; there will be hockey for all ages; figure skating, family, teen and public skating (11 sessions alone for this);

For curling . . . ladies', mens', mixed and school girl and boy leagues.

Timetable calls for the arena to open Dec. 15 and curling to start early in the New Year.

McLean hopes to get the four communities together in using the facilities—"if I can arrange programs that will involve all four areas then I'm happy . . . whether it's curling, hockey or whatever."

Once things start running smoothly McLean hopes to form a community league with teams from each of the four areas.

He has already scored a major deal for the arena with Team Canada Hockey College putting on its summer hockey school for seven weeks next summer. The school is expected to attract 60 boys each week. McLean was instrumental in having the last two weeks of the school set aside for boys living in the four areas.

"We insisted on this and the people connected with Team Canada agreed."

"If the four got together for a two-day event, I think it would be a heck of a caper . . . there could be giant dances in the centre . . . for the teens one night and adults the next."

In this vein he sees the arena and curling rink becoming the centre of activity for the teenagers and adults.

"I hope it does become a meeting place for children and teenagers and I see no reason in the world why it won't."

In the arena section there will be a concession and places for people to gather . . . in the curling rink there will be a coffee shop and a bar for adults.

McLean hopes to sponsor three major curling events a year and several inter-club events with Duncan.

There is room for expansion and McLean sees the centre adding a meeting room.

There is an arena at Fuller Lake to serve the north end of the region and now the Mill Bay area completes the picture serving the south.

It's designed to be used year-round; McLean will see that it is.

ABOUT THE SENIOR CITIZEN

I DO . . .

"Their last years should be the best years" and I pledge that, as a full time alderman, I shall always be available to listen to problems and to work to protect the interests of the senior citizens of Victoria. Council should work to ensure the minimum of anxiety concerning senior citizens' health and finances, both by their own actions and by working closely with the Provincial government in these important areas.

Maintain Heroin Addicts

Recent arrests and the seizure of millions of dollars worth of illicit drugs in Vancouver have not reduced the availability of heroin, according to Solicitor-General Warren Allmand. And B.C.'s Co-ordinated Law Enforcement Unit — composed of police representatives and a seven man policy board — says provincial heroin trade is an estimated $255 million annually. CLEU claims eight importation syndicates exist in the Greater Vancouver area alone and knows specific names of suspect individuals and organizations.

While CLEU is mainly a research and liaison group, not to mention its role as a public relations body, it has not illuminated the problem anymore than the average citizen could if he spent a few weeks researching the subject on Vancouver's Granville Street. The RCMP rounds up addicts, street pushers and even a few wholesalers, but Allmand's statement and the daily court parade in Vancouver and Victoria are a testament to the ineffectiveness of law enforcement. This is not a criticism of the RCMP. In order to make a charge stick the police have to catch people with heroin. Sophisticated drug syndicates which fund large heroin purchases are careful to deal at arms length through intermediaries. To build a case takes months of investigation and a great deal of manpower.

Yet every time the public is bombarded with new revelations about illegal drug trafficking the government announces plans to beef up the drug squads. Always the conventional answer to a radical problem. It is obvious that the punitive approach has failed abysmally. In the same speech in which the solicitor-general promised strengthened law enforcement he said that police knew of only 12 heroin addicts under 20-years-of-age in 1968 as compared with 16,000 to 19,000 now. If that doesn't underline the failure of current approaches to the problem then the solicitor-general's name is not Warren Allmand.

Strict law enforcement, heavy penalties for traffickers and methadone treatment programs have not worked. The government should experiment with a heroin maintenance program as the British have done. It is not a cure-all but at least it would make useful citizens out of thousands of young people who now live a squalid outlaw life. Maintaining addicts with free heroin could also reduce, if not eventually eliminate, organized criminal drug syndicates. Governments move slowly, afraid of the political consequences of such a program. But increased crime rates and growing numbers of addicts also have political consequences. Everything else has failed. An experimental heroin maintenance program should be immediately undertaken by the federal government. If the Trudeau administration can offer nothing but beefed-up enforcement, the B.C. government should start its own program. With more than 10,000 heroin users in this province there is no time for delay.

This Is Disclosure?

Judging from Prime Minister Trudeau's cute remarks about Health Minister Marc Lalonde's free trip to Israel in a distillery jet and his apparent ignorance of the barest elements of propriety regarding the all-expenses paid junket to the Orient by his wife and her friends and Trudeau's brother, we should not expect any shattering break with tradition on Friday, when federal cabinet ministers are to disclose their private financial interests.

After 16 months and numerous delays, presumably to allow ministers to tidy things up with their accountants and stock brokers and bankers, lists of their holdings are finally to be made public, so the public may judge for itself who is making money out of his position and who is a disinterested servant of the commonweal.

But listen closely. The registrar of the disclosure plan says only statements saying their financial affairs have been placed in trust will be made. "It is understood that the trust will have been seen and approved by the prime minister," he says. Trudeau is to be final judge of any conflicts.

This is disclosure? This is supposed to prevent conflict of interests? It's more like putting a six-year-old in charge of candy store, setting a fox among pigeons, letting the inmates run the prison. After Watergate, after the assorted scandals of his predecessor's Liberal administration, after disquieting testimony of political corruption at other levels of government in Edmonton and Quebec — Trudeau's limp guidelines for disclosure of his associates' financial interests (and only he will know of them) are supposed to be the answer? It just isn't good enough.

The prime minister may be an eminently fair individual, upright in his personal rectitude. But going by his flippant attitude toward the glaring conflict of interest involving his health minister, he is ill-suited to judge — in private, it must be added — possible conflicts involving other friends of long standing, political allies, close associates, men and women he talks to daily and upon whom he depends. Justice must be seen to be done.

Rocking the Houseboats

Esquimalt council should reconsider its decision to rid the municipality of houseboats located at the West Bay Marina. We live in an age when nearly every aspect of human behavior is so codified, homogenized and pasteurized that any unusual or eccentric deviation becomes an affront to official eyes.

Most homeowners and apartment dwellers probably concur and fear a houseboat colony could proliferate into a floating slum. Others will scorn council as a creature without imagination, threatened by creative housing which is not taxable. Both points of view have logic, but just to sweep the houseboats away on the strength of a fabricated bylaw is not really dealing with the problem.

A basic irony pervades the whole dispute: Victoria is in the midst of a housing crisis yet if Esquimalt council has its way it will destroy a few units of badly needed housing. Have we come to the point in this society when individuals with personal initiative to build their own dwellings should be squelched? On Seattle's Lake Union, Amsterdam's canals and Hong Kong's harbor, houseboats are a picturesque tourist attraction. Why should they be condemned here?

If houseboat owners have proper sewerage facilities and can find adequate moorings for their homes, municipal councils should not put any more obstacles in their way. Live and let live. There are quite enough municipal boats that need rocking without picking on a few people who wish to live on houseboats.

RICHARD GWYN

Sweet Problem, Stern Solution

OTTAWA — Consumer and Corporate Affairs Minister Andre Ouellet is, most of the time, a relaxed equable fellow. A lock of hair always escapes to fall across his forehead; his suits somehow look between pressings. When Ouellet gets angry, though, he gets very angry.

"We're on a merry-go-round that has to stop. Ten years ago we prosecuted them (the sugar refining companies) for pricefixing and restraint of trade. They paid their fines and now they are . . . well, all I can say is that we are prosecuting them again."

Ouellet's solution is a national sugar purchasing board. He's drafting a memorandum on the board that will go to cabinet within the month. At present the refineries buy their own sugar, mostly from Australia, Fiji, South Africa. Ouellet's board would buy the sugar instead, "government-to-government," and sell it to the refineries. We would know the prices the refineries pay, and so the prices at which they should sell. It's the only way to bring sense into this business."

Increased Five-Fold

As every housewife knows, sugar has soared from 13 cents a pound a year ago to close to 70 cents today. Each Canadian, adult and child, eats or drinks their way through 128 pounds of sugar a year. For a family of four that would add over $200 to their yearly food bill (we consume two-thirds of our sugar indirectly, in soft drinks, jams, jellies, cake and the like).

The price, obviously, isn't right. No one, though, knows how it got there. World output in 1974 is forecast at 83 million metric tons, a little higher than the 1973 crop and just ahead of world demand.

You can choose between two explanations, or add both of them together. The collapse a year ago of the international sugar agreement, which sets prices and world import and export quotas, has set off a wave of speculation.

The Arabs reportedly have used petro-dollars to buy up sugar reserves. Poland and the Philippines, both important suppliers, have reneged on contracts. Some countries—Trinidad is one cited in the trade—have deliberately cut back production.

The second explanation is price-fixing. The reputation of the sugar companies makes that of the oil companies seem pink-cheeked. In 1972 a European Common Market anti-trust inquiry described the business methods of 22 European sugar companies, led by Tate and Lyle of London, as "a text-book case of how a cartel and lobby operate."

RAW SUGAR
. . . Mauritian sugar in Toronto

Canada's eastern sugar companies—Redpath (owned by Tate and Lyle) Atlantic and St. Lawrence — were found guilty of breach of the combines law in 1963 and fined $25,000 each. The three companies now are back before the court in Montreal in a case which, and this is one cause of Ouellet's anger, will spin out for a year or more as evidence is collected in England, India and South Africa.

Mid-way between the two anti-combines trials, a 1971 tariff board inquiry found that "the price of refined sugar in Canada does not appear to be related to domestic forces of supply and demand . . . one company is the price leader and the others follow."

In defence of the industry, Redpath president Neil Shaw states: "High prices do us no good: our profits are down this year." And he adds, "The prices we have to pay, and therefore at which we have to sell, are quite ridiculous. Consumers should stop buying sugar. I mean that, it's the only way to bring prices down."

Boycott Sugar

Amid this mess, two facts are more or less clear. Agriculture Minister Eugene Whelan should let his eggs simmer for a while and make up his mind about sugar. Two years ago he promised a national sugar policy; he has yet to send his proposals to cabinet. In the meantime Canada produces only 10 per cent of our own sugar needs, mostly from Alberta and Manitoba sugar beets.

Secondly, Ouellet's purchasing board deserves a try. Combines issues aside, which are for the courts to decide, the board would enable Canada to search out new suppliers, in Cuba and Brazil. As important, the public would know that the prices paid for sugar, however high, were at least as low as possible.

The immediate choices all rest with the consumer. Sugar is the easiest of all foods to boycott. It has little nutritional value, and less sugar means also less fat and fewer cavities. Even the experts prescribe this remedy. "A boycott," said Redpath's Shaw, "would be the best thing that could happen."

LETTERS FROM OUR READERS

Second Thoughts

Your news item of Nov. 5 entitled 13 May Think Twice not only highlighted the problem of impaired driving but also raised serious questions about the handling of each case. Admittedly hindsight is always better than foresight, but when such tragic results occur one wonders what might have been if the police had considered other alternatives.

For instance, why didn't they lock the car and relieve the driver of his car keys? Surely for his own safety and that of others they have the right to do this? If nothing else his retrieval the next day may have beneficial results. Would it not have been impossible to put him in temporary custody, or take him home, put him on a bus, or even phone a relative or friend to pick him up? One shudders at the possibility he may have been involved in a multiple death or injury with untold consequences to the innocent.

It is generally accepted that alcoholism is a sickness one, like there seems no logical reason for persons to place themselves and others in financial and physical jeopardy. Barring more stringent penalties as a deterrent, and perhaps our laws need tightening up to assist both the police and the transgressors, let us hope the police now have second thoughts from this experience and exercise more judgment in the future. — "Concerned."

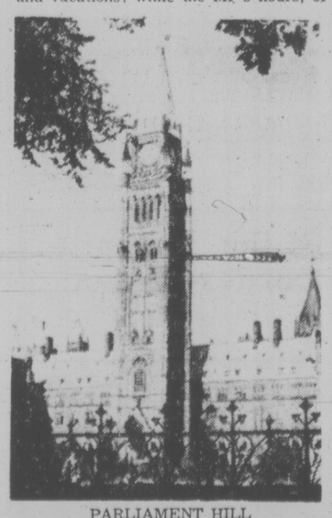
Unionize MPs

MPs will be getting a pay raise this session, their first since 1971.

Since so many of the electorate are working folk, it is interesting to speculate what an MP's pay would be had union rules been applied to it over the years.

In 1938, an MP's indemnity was $4,000 per session plus $2,000 expenses. Since then union wages have risen at least eight-fold, so that for starters, an MP today should be receiving $64,000 a year (assuming two sessions), plus $16,000 expenses.

This is not the whole picture. While union members now work about 20 per cent less hours than pre-war, they now receive about 33 days of paid holidays and vacations; while the MP's hours, of work, have at least doubled. There is also the question of time and a half and double time for weekend work, an MP being at the call of his constituents at all times. Taking all this into consideration one can only estimate that a fair remuneration for an MP should be at least $96,000 a year, plus expenses, and I am sure that all good trade unionists will agree with my reasoning.



PARLIAMENT HILL
. . . Canadian Brotherhood of MPs?

If MPs were unionized, they would of course have the right to strike, and we can only surmise the great benefits to the country, should they and the government as a whole go on a permanent strike, so that there would be no further increases in taxes, and none of those arbitrary and whimsical changes in high policy that do so much to bedevil our lives.—J. P. Thornton, 943 Wilmer Street.

Quebec Hostility

A recent newspaper column states an estimated $500 million a year is being spent to Frenchify Canada.

Today you are greeted with hostility in Quebec if you do not speak French; yet taxpayers' money, in these times of inflation and recession, is being wasted on this federal sacred cow — bilingualism.

In equalization payments from Ottawa next year (thanks mainly to Ontario, Alberta and B.C.), the province of Quebec will receive more than $727 million, by far the lion's share of cash doled out to the seven so-called have-not provinces.

Nevertheless, the rest of Canada is treated with contempt by the national assembly of Quebec with recent legislation making French the only official provincial language, an action contrary to the BNA Act.

In the February, 1973 edition of Maclean's magazine, Robert Bourassa, Prime Minister of Quebec, is quoted as saying: "I must make sure that our federal system is profitable to the population of Quebec."

The sooner Rene Levesque takes Quebec out of Confederation, the better it will be for the rest of Canada. — S. Eason, Victoria.

Cock Crowing

May I comment on your editorial Nov. 5 (More of the same please) in reference to Time and Reader's Digest.

Miss Simma Holt's statement on nationalism leaves a great deal to be desired. She said it is nothing more than cock-crowing—her language reminds me of Bernadette Devlin of Ireland. She was escorted out of parliament and Miss Holt should also be escorted out.

However, if her cock-crowing attitude was for those upholders of Time and the Digest as Canadian, then she and the Victoria Times — not forgetting a new editorial writer — has my whole-hearted approval. — Len Skelton, 4068 Grange Road.

Twain Explained

It is understandable that M. P. Paine (Oct. 29 and Nov. 5) would be dismayed to find Mark Twain's quote "If a man is not a socialist by the time he is 21, he has no heart. If he is a socialist at 40 he has no head" printed: "If a man is not a socialist at 40 he has no head."

However, Paine's deduction from that quote that "Mark Twain knew human nature and knew that given the nature of man, socialism was totally unworkable" is somewhat of a misrepresentation, too.

Samuel Clemens (pen name Mark Twain) certainly knew human nature, and the quote, if considered with Clemens' writings of the time, is more an indictment of human greed than of socialism. (Much as the statement: "How can you have a Christian community when people are so selfish and the over 30s have compromised their ideals").

Personal and financial misfortunes in the latter third of Clemens' life saw him writing some gloomy and cynical works such as What is Man (he thought humans motivated only by selfishness) and the short story The Man That Corrupted Hadleyburg, again emphasizing human greed in the community. Thus Clemens saw human greed as the greatest obstacle to replacing the individualist dog-eat-dog, devil-take-the-hindmost, with a sharing, co-operative, social order.

However, Clemens is not the only authority on human nature and should we then share in his despair and give up only to forces of greed and self? Man is capable of nobler things (even at 40!) While we can't legislate unselfishness we can legislate sharing, and it is just this that most anti-socialists would condemn, thus leaving out the above quote — not so much revealing socialism as unworkable but of man's selfishness as a fact.

Clemens might be happily reassured (if he could look in some 70 years later) to find public schooling (replacing individual schooling according to means), people having a democratic voice in their working conditions (slavery is also contrary to human nature) and other socialistic measures as people's ferries and forests, hydro utility, people's public health, share of resource benefits, pensions and Mincome and so on.

People can and must be prepared to operate in a more publicly-owned, co-operative society with controlled planning if not for nobler ideals, then for survival of the global family of man. — Heather Nicol, 1475 Banff Place.

Art Deco

Ald. Sam Bawlf is, I believe — from my reading of the newspapers — serving Victoria diligently and intelligently. I beg, however, to disagree with him on one point. The fact that it is an interesting example of art deco, or of any given moment of commercial architecture, does not necessarily make an edifice worthy of being saved, and all the more if the saving is to take place in a context where this remnant of a charming, if somewhat misguided, era is sadly out of tune with the lines, atmosphere and mood of the surrounding buildings. Preserving a structure (without considering its relevance to site and scenery) simply because it is 50 years old and then calling it a landmark, is a Disneyland approach to the history of art which should not be encouraged in the heart of the city. — Jean-Pierre Mentha, 4445 Tyndall Avenue.

60 YEARS AGO

From the Times of November 14, 1914

PARIS — Canadian troops are now upon the battle front in France and are taking part in the fighting along the line of the North Sea to Arras, according to reports received here. In London, it was reported that three Canadian officers, two identified with artillery regiments and one with the engineers, have been in the firing line for the past week at Ypres and Duxmude. They returned to London last night and today three more from Salisbury Plain, where the Canadian forces are encamped, will join the British headquarters staff in France. There are several bodies of Canadian troops doing duty across the channel, but only on lines of communication.

The Flower Child And a Supertanker

By JAMES EAYRS

You wouldn't think Margaret Trudeau and I had much in common, would you?

She's young and beautiful, I'm old and ugly. She loves Liberals, none of my best friends are Liberals.

But we're both married to elected politicians.

If the Canadian National Railway offered me a free pass on their system, if Cadillac-Fairview produced a penthouse with no rent, I'd have to decline—reluctantly.

No need to consult my spouse about it. As Louis Armstrong said to the lady who asked him what jazz was, "If you have to ask, you'll never know."

Margaret Trudeau's all-expenses-paid trip to Tokyo—the bill for which is more than $20,000, not counting a gift of jewelry—is as much a present to her husband as it is to her.

The sense of public relations which permitted such a caper is as warped as an election sign after freezing rain.

It's not as if Margaret and her entourage went to Tokyo to preside at the opening of a moss-garden, to take lessons in ikebana.

No, she went to launch a supertanker. And with supertankers self-confessed flowerchildren like herself ought to have absolutely nothing to do.

MARGARET . . . a no-no

"The malificent supertanker," as one commentator aptly calls the species, is a symbol for a society that foolishly equates size and efficiency, heft and excellence, bigger and better.

Nor is that all. When a Titanic hits an iceberg in the North Atlantic, only its passengers along with non-insured next-of-kin suffer. But when a Torrey Canyon hits a rock in the Strait of Juan de Fuca, sufferers are legion.

Canada's policy is or ought to be to keep super-tankers away from our territorial waters.

Is allowing a super-tanker operator to pick up what should have been the tab of the prime minister of Canada calculated to promote that policy?

About as much as allowing our minister of national health and welfare to use a distiller's jet for a junket is calculated to make things tougher for the liquor interests.

Moderns often belittle the classical education by which a young Quebecois was once prepared for life. They do it less than justice.

A Jesuit curriculum must have included that most influential of mediaeval treatises on politics — The Statesman's Book of John of Salisbury.

Pierre Trudeau has evidently forgotten John's strictures upon statesmen who take gifts from interested parties.

"No governor shall receive a gift or donation except of food and drink, and this must be consumed within the next few days."

"No proconsul or holder of other office shall accept a gift or donation, except for the sake of subsistence from day to day."

And: "Even the ancients counted it as a sordid thing to sell for a price that which ought to be done as part of the duty of office. And they so extended the interpretation of the word 'price' as to include not merely money or any physical object, but also every kind of service. For a thing which proceeds from filth, how can it be otherwise than filthy?"

John of Salisbury reserved a special sort of wrath for the statesman who tries to make light of such offences — citing Cicero no less for having "with an urbane witticism explained away what he could not deny, making it appear a matter more for laughter than for blame."

So much for Trudeau's jest in the House of Commons that the next time Marc Lalonde went touring, it would be in a Molson's jet, not Seagram's.

If our prime minister never met up with John of Salisbury, he must have met up with Marcel Mauss — the Eiffel Tower (along with Levi-Strauss) of French social science.

Mauss's masterpiece is a classic in anthropology called The Gift: Forms and Functions of Exchange in Archaic Societies. It reaches its conclusions about the expectations generated by gift-giving after examining the practice among the Maori, Samoans, Andaman Islanders, New Caledonians, Trobrianders, Northwest Coast Indians of North America, and ancient Romans, Hebrews, Germans and Hindus. No bad sample.

And what were its conclusions?

That "In theory gifts art voluntary, but in fact they are given and repaid under obligation."

That "Gifts demand countergifts. No matter how freely a gift may be tendered, or how unsought it may be, the very fact of its having been given or presented carries an obligation of some kind of return. Psychologically, this holds for all cultures."

And that "Pains are taken to show one's freedom and autonomy, yet all the time one is animated by the mechanism of obligation resident in the gifts themselves."

Lessons From U.S.

If by some chance Trudeau neglected the lessons of anthropology along with the wisdom of the ages, there were always the lessons to be learned from recent U.S. history.

Roland Evans and Robert Novak write in their biography of Lyndon Johnson that "if Johnson had been vice-president instead of president in January 1964, when the gift to Johnson by his insurance agent of an expensive stereo player was revealed, he might well have been dumped from the 1964 ticket. That was the opinion of high-ranking politicians not unfriendly to Johnson."

And Sherman Adams, ex-governor of New Hampshire, was dumped as head of President Eisenhower's staff when an investigation into influence-peddling revealed that he had accepted from a Boston textile magnate a vicuna coat costing its donor $69.

The most compelling cautionary tale of all comes not from American politics but our own.

If Mary Tudor died with "Calais" on her heart, for Mackenzie King the word was "Beauharnois".

It was ironic that tripped at last by conflict-of-interest, the sum involved was paltry—no more than payment of a hotel bill for a Bermuda holiday. For Mackenzie King had accepted, with neither qualm nor guilt nor scruple, immensely larger gifts from others — including hand-outs from the Rockefellers.

King's Bermuda benefactor was a Montreal tycooon, a Liberal named McDougald. McDougald charged the hotel bill to business expenses. And what was McDougald's business? The Beauharnois Syndicate, which required federal permission to divert water from the St. Lawrence River before it could begin generating power—and profit.

A scandal duly followed.

Will Margaret's Tokyo trip turn out to be Trudeau's Beauharnois scandal? That depends on public tolerance for sleazy conduct in high places.

In last week's New York Times magazine, a Canadian journalist informed Americans that our prime minister has attained political maturity.

South Africa Ready to Dump Rhodesia

By DAVID HOLDEN
The Sunday Times

CAPE TOWN — South Africa is contemplating the day when it may have to abandon Rhodesia's Ian Smith to his fate.

The difference of mood is characteristic of the growing gap between Rhodesia and South Africa in their reaction to dangers created by the Portuguese collapse in Mozambique.

In Salisbury, there is a bland refusal, or stark inability to come up with any new ideas. In Cape Town, and elsewhere in South Africa, there is such anxiety and impatience with Rhodesian sterility that the friendly attitudes of yesterday are being transformed into the hard-nosed belief that charity must begin at home.

Shrewder and more alert than the Rhodesians, South Africans of practically all shades of opinion have decided they can no longer afford to sustain Smith in his fantasy world of indefinite white supremacy. They are not yet pulling up the ladder behind them, but in spite of recent denials by South African Prime Minister John Vorster, that he is putting pressure on Smith to settle with the nationalists, there is every indication they are telling him they will have to if he doesn't settle soon.

The foreign minister virtually spelled it out in public when he told parliament in Cape Town recently that he hoped the establishment of "another two stable, friendly and independent states in Mozambique and Angola would be accompanied by "a speedy and satisfactory solution" to the Rhodesian problem.

About the same time, the leader of South Africa's white trade unions, Arthur Grobbelaer, was in Salisbury with a blunter message. "It is realistic to recognize," he told the Rhodesian Trade Union Congress, "that while your country has until now acted as a buffer zone in blunting terrorist incursions from black Africa, your importance to South Africa for that purpose has now declined."

A month later, that message is ringing even louder on all sides. "Rhodesia is now more than an embarrassment — it's becoming a danger to South Africa," the editor of one of the country's leading newspapers told me last week. "We don't want to be sucked into that fire."

Behind this radical shift in South African attitudes are three main perceptions. First is the conviction that the triumph of Frelimo in Mozambique has made continued defence of Rhodesia's "Zambesi frontier against African guerrilla warfare not merely immensely more difficult but also pointless for South Africa.

Outflanked by another 400 miles of potentially hostile territory to the east, there is everything to be said in strictly military terms, for pulling back the line of white defence to the far narrower front of South Africa's own northern border on the River Limpopo. That would leave 270,000 white Rhodesians out in the cold, but it would vastly improve chances of survival for four million white South Africans.

Second is the fear that Rhodesia's commercial demands will soon become inordinate. South Africa has helped to keep Rhodesia going, buying Rhodesian goods and arranging transit for many necessary imports through South African middlemen.

★ ★ ★

But most of Rhodesia's vital exports — tobacco, sugar, chrome and the rest — have always gone out by the shorter routes to the Mozambique ports of Beira and Lourenco Marques. If the new Frelimo government chooses to cut these, Rhodesia will be left with no alternative but the long and expensive haul through South Africa to Durban, Port Elizabeth or even Cape Town.

There is no escape to the north: the Zambian border was closed last year on Smith's own initiative.

To the south, too, black Africa is closing in, with Botswana taking full control of the old rail link through Francistown to South Africa. Rhodesians have just rushed to complete a new, direct rail link with South Africa at Beit Bridge on the Limpopo, but experts say it is inadequate for the traffic it may have to carry.

If Frelimo decides to close the Mozambique routes to Rhodesian traffic, a huge new load will be placed upon South Africa's already overcrowded ports and railways.

But even if Frelimo decides to compromise — out of unwillingness to sacrifice the revenue from Rhodesian traffic, which accounts for about 20 per cent of Mozambique's foreign earnings — there is a further danger.

Rhodesian exports have reached world markets through false documentation about their origins, arranged hitherto by the complaisant Portugese. To continue to do this through Mozambique would risk exposure by Frelimo of all the sanctions-busting operations on which Rhodesia has survived so far.

SMITH
. . . embarrassment

Yet to send exports through South Africa instead, as Rhodesians would prefer, would involve South Africa in false documentation. South Africans have largely shunned them until now, partly out of a pedantic respect for the letter of the law and partly out of fear that it would strengthen the international lobby for imposing sanctions on South Africa as well as Rhodesia.

Finally, according to well-informed sources in Cape Town, the South African government now believes if only the irritant of Rhodesia can be disposed of peacefully, there is a good chance stable black governments to the north will be induced by self-interest, both economic and political, to give South Africa more time and freedom to work out its own destiny.

To win that peaceful settlement, South Africa may be willing to support Smith for a little longer — perhaps a year, possibly two if he shows signs of sufficient movement. But beyond that, self-interest seems increasingly likely to dictate his abandonment.

The SONY® Dolbyized Stereo Cassette Deck

Sony proudly presents a quality Dolbyized deck complete with Ferrite & Ferrite head - the Sony TC-131SD. Moderately priced, this new Sony cassette deck provides smooth, reliable performance and faithful sound reproduction thanks to two advanced features. One is the Dolby* noise reduction system - a two-way device (record and playback) to substantially improve the quality of cassettes by reducing annoying background hiss. The other is Sony's new Ferrite & Ferrite head - an extremely hard head for long life and high performance. In addition, there are dozens of features that make top quality recording and playback unbelievably easy: a high performance limiter recording system combines the advantages of manual recording with the safety of automatic recording, a tape selector switch for optimum results from normal tape or chromium dioxide tape plus automatic capstan disengagement and push-button return in all modes at the end of the tape. The Sony TC-131SD's clean professional styling is an exercise in function. Sony engineers a complete line of cassette decks, but to really appreciate them you have to hear them. At your Sony dealer.

The Box Lunch Problem

By GARY LAUTENS

Margaret Trudeau isn't the only Canadian with problems. Mrs. Robert Stanfield has a cross to bear, too.

Q—What has been the most difficult thing to accept as Mrs. Stanfield?

A—The excess of privacy. When I married Bob, I was prepared to live with secret service agents, guns, and every kind of snooping device. But it hasn't been that way at all. Frankly, it was a shock to come to Ottawa and lead a perfectly normal life. I still have trouble coping with this complete lack of intrusion. Somehow, when I look around my living room and realize no one is spying on me, I want to scream.

Q—Is it that bad?

A—Yes. The realization that I'm not being watched occasionally gets to me. Once I even considered getting professional help. I thought it must be something I said or did.

Q—Did you consult a doctor?

A—No. Fortunately, Bob is very understanding. He explained to me that not being followed by the RCMP every time I go to the corner store for a carton of milk is just part of the life of the Opposition Leader's wife. He said he was ignored most of the time, too, but that was no reason to get uptight.

Q—Have you been able then to live with this sort of isolation?

A—Sometimes I get depressed when I wake up at 3 o'clock in the morning and realize I could go out for a pizza and nobody would care. But then I tell myself that my anonymity is a small price to pay for Bob's career. There must be thousands of wives just like me who aren't being tailed by the police every day. Besides, if I wanted to have Mounties hiding in my bushes, I should have married a Liberal.

Q—I'm told you sometimes try to fool the RCMP. Is that right?

A—Ha, ha — somebody's been telling you all my secrets! Well, it's true. Now and then, when I'm feeling blue, I put on a brunette wig, a little knitted hat and barrel down Sussex Dr. in a rented Volkswagen. The Mounties mistake me for Margaret and chase me for blocks before they realize they've made a mistake. I know it's silly but it does give me a feeling of harassment for a little while.

Q—Are you looking forward to the day Mr. Stanfield leaves federal politics?

A—Yes. It will be wonderful to go back to Halifax where on special occasions we won't be able to move freely and, now and then, even enjoy the luxury of police surveillance. It will also be a relief to get rid of those damn brown boxes Bob brings home every night from the office.

Q—For his secret papers?

A—No, for his lunch.

Government Employees Voting

Government employees in environmental, resource and conservation branches are voting this week on a proposed contract settlement with the provincial public service commission.

If the 4,800 members in the bargaining unit approve, they will be the fifth component of B.C. Government Employees Union to settle wages and working conditions in the current series of talks involving 13 separate groups of provincial civil servants.

A union spokesman said the environmental, resource and conservation unit's ratification ballots will be counted Monday.

Meanwhile the 650-member officers' section of the BCGEU marine division have completed a strike vote and a meeting of their executive today in Tsawwassen was to determine the chance of reopening negotiations for which mediation was unsuccessful two weeks ago, or of delivering 72-hour strike notice to the ferry authority.

Result of the strike vote tabulated last weekend is expected to show close to full support in favor of stopping government ferry services along the B.C. coast, lakes and waterways throughout the province.

The four components which have settled and signed contracts with the government agencies for which they work include:

Correctional services, hospital and allied workers, administrative support, and marine workers (general).

Four groups are in negotiation:

Educational and scientific services; administrative, fiscal and regulatory, trades and crafts, and engineering, technical and inspectional. The latter two, representing some 4,400 employees, started talks this week.

Three expected to start a scheduled series of talks shortly are:

Social and health services; operational services, and retail-wholesale liquor administration staffs.

Earlier reports referred to five settlements of which one is considered apart from the current series of negotiations.

This is the private sector, consisting of small groups of employees in such places as Canadian Cellulose office, small hospitals, community colleges and diking authorities and for whom the BCGEU bargains directly with local management instead of the public service commission.

The union and commission have agreed not to discuss publicly the details of individual settlements until all are negotiated.

The ones in contention at present are generally hung up on matters of wages, term of contract, overtime and work schedules.

Hospital Planner Not Appointed

The Capital regional hospital board did not appoint a new director of hospital planning as expected Wednesday.

Board chairman Art Young said today the subject was reviewed in a closed-door session "and directors are going to take another look at applicants."

The board has been without a hospital development planner since the resignation of John Forrester in August.

Ceremony at Co-Op

Victoria's first housing co-operative will be opened officially Sunday though owner-residents have been living there since the summer.

The Rochdale Place project is located in the Langford and McCaskill streets area of Vic West and is the first of several to be built by Pioneer Housing Co-op Association.

One-to four-bedroom townhouses provide living accommodation for 74 families on 5.5 acres leased from the province.

The co-op is owned and run by its members on a non-profit basis, and initial share purchases ranged from $1,600 to $2,000 with monthly payments from $107 to $252.

PUBLIC LABOR HEARINGS END

A legislative committee studying the possibility of including domestic and farm labor under provincial labor legislation wrapped up its hearings in Victoria today.

Commitee chairman Colin Gabelmann (NDP—North Vancouver Seymour) said final closed door sittings of the committee will be held later this year or in January to prepare recommendations for presentation to the legislature next spring.

The committee spent three weeks touring the province this fall listening to briefs and submissions from the public on the feasibility of covering domestic and farm labor under the umbrella of such legislation as the B.C. Labor Code, the Workers' Compensation Act and Hours of Work Act.

The task was assigned the all-party committee by the legislature last spring.

Today's meeting was called to hear a final report from Bill Hoskin, director of labor standards within the department of labor.

Hoskin told the committee it would be possible, from an administrative point of view, to include the two groups under B.C.'s labor laws and he explained how each piece of legislation could be applied.

In most cases, he said there would be no major problems with enforcement but certain special procedures for regulations would have to be worked out such as those governing the working conditions of apartment caretakers and other special groups.

Hoskin said the economic impact of wage and hours of work legislation could be a problem but said the decision in that area would be a political one.

'HARDER TO BE MAN'

"It's harder to be a man today than it is to be a woman," Dr. Philip Ney informed fellow Greater Victoria school board trustees Wednesday.

So it's only right that Reva Dexter, the education department's special adviser on sexual discrimination, should have a male counterpart to help her, Ney said.

Quoting an article which shows male mortality rates are higher than female," the trustee said: "It's not easy to be a man and it's far harder to be a gentleman. That concept seems to be in disrepute."

Ney said the appointment of a woman to investigate sexual discrimination was "a bit one-sided" and proposed that the board write Education Minister Eileen Dailly requesting that a man be appointed as well.

Trustees at Wednesday's committee meeting raised no objections, except for Bill Ross who objected but didn't say why.

Ottawa Sets Chlorination Probe

OTTAWA (CP) —The federal health protection branch will do its own investigation of some chlorinated municipal drinking water for the presence of possible cancer-causing chemicals, Dr. Emmanuel Somers, acting director of the branch's environmental health directorate, says.

The proposed investigation follows a United States plan for a national drinking water survey prompted by reports last week that chlorination is producing chlorinated hydrocarbons in the drinking water in Cincinnati and New Orleans.

Dr. Somers stressed that federal health officials do not believe there is cause for alarm.

The chemicals — chloroform, carbon tetrachloride and bromodichloromethane — were found in such low concentrations in the U.S. drinking water that they are exceedingly unlikely to cause cancer, Dr. Somers said.

However, published reports say a link is possible between the New Orleans drinking water, drawn from the heavily polluted Mississippi River, and the city's high cancer rate of 25 to 40 per cent above the national average.

Dr. Somers said the discovery of the chemicals in U.S. water supplies may be due to peculiarities in chlorination systems. Canadian authorities have not tested for the chemicals in drinking water supplies because it was not technically possible until recently to trace such low concentrations of the compounds, said Dr. Somers.

Recently, most analyses of drinking water have been for organic compounds such as pesticides, he said.

The benefits of chlorination — a process commonly used to kill disease organisms in drinking water — probably outweigh the possible adverse effects, he added.

Two Quints Go Home

BALTIMORE (UPI) — Two of the Rohrer quintuplets born prematurely Oct. 8 went home for the first time Wednesday, leaving three smaller sisters behind at University Hospital for "a few more days."

"The quints are picking up weight at the rate of about one ounce a day so the three babies staying in the hospital will probably be here just a few more days," one doctor said.

AN APOLOGY TO U.S. JEWS

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Under criticism from President Ford, the Pentagon and Congress, Chairman George Brown of the Joint Chiefs of Staff Wednesday publicly apologized for saying that Jews exert undue influence in the United States.

Brown, having acknowledged that his remark could be interpreted as anti-semitic, said in a telegram to the Jewish war veterans that his "poorly articulated statements" did not represent his true feelings.

Both Ford and Defence Secretary James Schlesinger disavowed the statement and Rep. Samuel Stratton, a senior member of the House Armed Services committee, called on Brown to repudiate it.

Sen. Jacob Javits, meanwhile, asked chairman John Stennis of the Senate Armed Services committee "to look into the whole episode," which occurred during a question and answer session with students at Duke University last Oct. 10.

Manitoba Fears Sugar Leak If Clamps

PORTAGE LA PRAIRIE, Man. (CP) — The president of the Manitoba Sugar Beet Growers Association, William Ronald, doubts a suggested provincial sugar marketing agency could be effective in keeping the lid on rising sugar prices.

He said if such a provincial agency was established, Manitoba sugar would "leak out" to markets in other provinces where prices are higher. A 10-pound bag of white sugar now sells for $5.89 in Winnipeg — about 60 cents lower than Victoria prices.

Mr. Ronald, of Portage la Prairie, said Manitoba produces about 11 per cent of Canada's sugar and over the years has been generally self-sufficient in sugar, neither importing from other provinces nor exporting.

The Manitoba cabinet has been considering establishing a government-appointed sugar marketing board that would control price changes but agriculture minister Sam Uskiw said no decision has been reached.

Ronald, whose association represents 500 producers growing beets for nearly 80 million pounds of sugar a year, said he hoped there would be consultation with producers before any government action is taken.

Harry Ferrier, sales manager for Manitoba Sugar Co., a firm that has contracts with all sugar beet growers in Manitoba, said the wholesale price of sugar has been deliberately held down.

He said Manitoba Sugar Co. has refused to sell sugar outside the regional market area, which also includes a part of northwestern Ontario.

Ferrier said it would be possible, however, for a wholesaler in Manitoba to buy sugar and ship it east, without the knowledge of Manitoba Sugar Co.

It was impossible to check such a move, he said.

A provincial government survey has estimated Manitoba sugar beet growers will have a net return of $563 per acre this year, compared with $95 in 1972, the last year for which accurate figures are available.

Consumer Affairs Minister Ian Turnbull said recent sugar prices increases are "ridiculous" and the Manitoba government would have as much authority to regulate sugar prices as it has to control the price of milk.

Turnbull said the government wants to reduce sugar prices and has not yet decided whether to intervene. The possible alternatives under consideration included a marketing commission and an excess profits tax.

However, Turnbull said he doubted that an excess profits tax would be constitutional. He said in an interview the sugar question was not on the agenda for today's regular cabinet meeting.

Booby-Traps Own Home

ALBUQUERQUE, N. M. (AP) — A man who killed two employees at a state employment office and then killed himself apparently also had booby-trapped his house, police said.

A policeman who went to the man's home was wounded when he opened the door and a series of explosives went off.

The man, whose unemployment claim had been rejected, walked into the appeals division of the Employment Securities Commission office in downtown Albuquerque and fired at three employees.

Mary Ann Velario, 28, and Betty LaPorte, 34, were killed and George Jaramillo, 51, an appeals adjustor, was critically wounded.

BEFORE THE JUDGE

A fine of $375 was given in provincial court Wednesday to a man who received $811 from the Unemployment Insurance Commission while he was working.

Abtar Dheensaw, of 3953 Long Gun, received $1,400 income from a job at Victoria General Hospital while getting the insurance benefits.

He had made false statements on benefit applications between March and April.

An unemployment insurance commission official told the court Dheensaw had repaid the $811.

Defence counsel M. E. Botterell said Dheensaw readily admitted he had done wrong.

Judge William Ostler said the offence was a serious matter of plundering funds. He also said it made the situation more difficult for others who were entitled to them.

★ ★ ★

Anklovitch, who pleaded guilty, replied, "Yes, I realize that."

★ ★ ★

A 70-year-old woman was fined $50 and put on six months' probation for stealing slippers Oct. 25 from The Bay.

Edith Sarah Luff, of 4035 McLellan, pleaded guilty earlier.

She had previously been convicted of theft in 1971.

Mrs. Luff was seen by a member of The Bay's security staff to have two slippers, but one fell on the floor.

When checked later in another store on Douglas the other slipper was found in a bag.

The slippers were worth $6.

Two men were separately charged with breaking into King John's Inn, 2668 Sooke, Nov. 9 and 12 and committing theft.

Larry Allan Preston, 31, of Langford and Hilton Kenneth Reid, 22, of 120 Gorge, were remanded to today for bail hearing.

Lorne Joseph Patzack, 34, of 531 Pearkes, was fined $325 and banned from driving for 30 days for impaired driving.

★ ★ ★

Five persons were sentenced for impaired driving:

Perry James Dobie, 23, of Victoria, was given a 14-day jail term and banned from driving for a year; Mervin Bennett Black, 30, of Barriere, and Charles Allan Brown, 40, of 5582 Ridley, were each fined $400 and banned for two months; and Palmer Edward Begg, 49, of 1337 Gladstone, and William Henry Ebel, 48, of 1165 Yates, were each fined $350 and banned for two months.

Donald Victor Gunn, 55, of 200 Dallas, was fined $350 and had his licence suspended for being in the care or control of a motor vehicle while impaired.

Arnold Gordon Mason, 32, of 820 Craigflower, was remanded to Nov. 28 for sentencing after being found guilty of setting fire to a house, owned by himself, at 3330 Happy Valley Road, July 25.

★ ★ ★

A 20-year-old man who told the court he fired a starting pistol to try to gain the attention of a female friend was fined $50 and ordered not to carry or have weapons or ammunition for six months.

Houses' Second Chance, Co-op's First

Jim Douglas prepares flooring

By SUSAN RUTTAN
Times Staff

Four houses saved from the bulldozer are being given a second chance at a new location on Pembroke Street.

The homes had been slated for demolition along with 12 others at their original location on Foul Bay Road, across from the Fort and Foul Bay shopping centre, to make way for construction of a senior citizens' housing complex.

Members of the Springridge Co-operative Housing Association asked if they could have the homes if they moved them to a new site.

"They said we could have the four only on condition that we took all the houses," said co-op member Mona Braschuk.

So, since the first of this year the co-op, which numbers about 25, has undertaken to do just that.

They moved the first four houses during the summer to the Pembroke Street property, leased from the provincial government for 50 years.

Two more they intend to move when another land deal is finalized.

The rest of the houses have been carefully dismantled and all the boards, nails, windows and other material are stored in a warehouse.

Everything but the plaster, the stucco on the outside, and the shingles, has been saved, Braschuk said.

All the work of dismantling the houses and the work going on now to fix up the four Pembroke Street houses is being done by co-op members.

Thirteen members have been paid a salary by a federal Local Employment Assistance Program grant which lasts till the end of the year.

Five others are being paid out of a $57,000 Central Mortgage and Housing Corporation mortgage the co-op has taken out.

The mortgage also pays for the cost of having the buildings moved, for the electrical and plumbing work needed, and other costs in renovating them.

Our Part in a Bombing —But Who Could Care?

Item: Who says the age of miracles has passed? I've just met a family who bought an exercise bicycle two weeks ago and they're still using it!

★ ★ ★

Item: A note today from my good friend Berta Schmidt to tell me of Victoria's Voice of Women demonstration on the Legislative Building's lawns and I wonder how many felt a shudder at the re-creation of the kind of prisoner-of-war cage used to hold more than 200,000 political prisoners of the Thieu government in South Vietnam.

Trouble is, I suppose, that Vietnam seems so terribly remote when we're absorbed with our own troubles so that even a symbolic replica of the "Tiger Cages" may seem beyond our grasp.

Berta sends some excerpts from Charles Taylor's new book, "Snow Job" which are, themselves, hair-raising, yet seem to have induced little or no reaction across the country.

Taylor documents the fact that we were selling more than 300 million dollars in military materials to the United States in the years of the involvement in Vietnam. What's more we were making hardware that was used when the Americans were bombing both South and North Vietnam — bombing computers built in Ontario, radar equipment by Marconi Doppler, dynamite shipped from Quebec, polystyrene, used in napalm, supplied by Dow Chemical, defoliants made in Elmira, Ontario, and so on.

"In the eyes of other nations, Canada was at best an apologist for the Americans, at worst an ally of the United States in a barbarous and senseless war," Taylor writes. "Above all, Canada's acquiescence in the atrocity of the U.S. bombings made a mockery of Ottawa's claims to play a constructive role in support of peace and as a bridge between the rich and poor nations . . .

"In the future, Canadians would be wise to be wary whenever their government fails to stand up and be counted on a major international issue . . . all too often — as Vietnam has shown — secrecy involves a sell-out."

It is a sell-out now, of course, that we don't raise our voices against the police state of Saigon. Thank God we have, at least, a few concerned women who will take a stand.

★ ★ ★

Item: A nurse in the children's ward at Jubilee phones me to say that this story is absolutely true and who am I to deny it. Seems two youngsters in adjoining beds were discussing their experiences. Said one: "Are you medical or surgical?" The other shook his head. "I don't know what you mean," he said. The first little boy was scornful. He's been a patient for several weeks. "Were you sick when you came?" he persisted, "or did they make you sick after you got here?"

★ ★ ★

Item: Reading this week with much pleasure an ancient book, published in Philadelphia in 1828, titled, "The American Chesterfield, or A Way to Wealth, Honour and Distinction; Being Selections from the Letters of Lord Chesterfield to his Son." The Saanich gentleman who thought it would do me good was exactly right.

All that's dated about this book is that fathers nowadays don't seem to feel it part of their responsibility to lay down a code of [illegible] to give advice from the [illegible] of their years. Perhaps if we revived the custom we might preserve some of those old-fashioned points of view that often seem so sorely needed today.

Lord Chesterfield on how to judge character:

"In order to judge of the inside of others, study your own. Men, in general, are very much alike; and though one man has one prevailing passion, and another has another, yet their operations are much the same; and whatever engages or disgusts, pleases or offends you, in others, will engage, disgust, please or offend others in you.

"Observe, with the utmost attention, all the operations of your own mind, the nature of your passions, and the various motives that determine your will; and you may, in a great degree, know all mankind."

★ ★ ★

Item: An envious visit today to the beautiful home of our architect friend and we discussed at length the question that, next to why there's not more of it, may be the most important in home building: Will "the public" accept truly advanced designs or, as a great many architects claim, do they cling to the old-fashioned and the traditional?

Our friend believes that Victoria is one of the least architect-aware cities of Canada and reports, sadly, that fewer than one in a hundred modest homes are designed specifically for the people who may spend the rest of their lives in them.

I wonder if there's any other major decision we make in life in which we have such scorn for the expert.

Seniors Feel Powerless To Fight Big Rent Hike

By PAT DUFOUR
Times Staff

The 152 elderly residents of James Bay Lodge at 336 Simcoe received notice this month of an average 28.5 per cent hike in rates as of Dec. 1.

They're powerless to fight the massive increase. They feel trapped. There is nowhere else for them to go.

Provincial government officials agree the residents' predicament is caused by a tragic void in the government's programs designed to lend a hand to those who need it.

Of the 152 people at the lodge, two are under 70, the rest ranging from the early 70s to 97.

Typical of those who find the coming financial pinch too tough to take is a resident who now pays $14 a day for a single room and bathroom. This is minimal care rates. The resident has his laundry done for him but is completely mobile, able to move around the city and take his meals in the dining room.

His rate will be $18 a day, as of Dec. 1, an increase of $120 a month and $1,460 a year.

"We don't blame the people who run the lodge," he said," They have to meet the rising costs but a hike of $4 a day at one crack is a pretty awful blow.

"Most of us have no escalator clause in our pensions, except for the old age pension and that's pretty minimal. It doesn't allow for an increase like this."

He and others point out the ambiguity of government legislation that allows them to get the renters' annual $85 grant from the department of housing yet bars them the protection of the Landlord and Tenants Act, which has set a ceiling of 10.6 per cent on rent increases.

This is because the lodge is licenced under another government agency, the department of health.

A housing official said, "Our department considers the human element here", in giving the $85 grants to people in rest homes or in special buildings for the handicapped.

A spokesman for the rentalsman's office in Vancouver expressed frustration at having no control over such rate hikes as the James Bay Lodge residents face.

"The problem is how much of the hike is for rent and how much for services," he said, "They could say that 18 per cent is for food and services," and the rest, rental.

"It's legal, unfortunately. From my point of view, these people need help. But where do they get it from?"

Lodge administrator T. C. Shuckburgh and his staff have been trying to soften the blow this week by persuading residents they've talked with to alter their life style by sharing their rooms with others and thus keeping the charges as low as possible.

He admits, however, that even after having done this, some of the residents will be hard pressed to meet the costs.

"This type of elderly citizen has been totally missed," Shuckburgh said. "They're not down and out enough to be helped by the department of human resources nor helpless enough to be admitted into extensive care hospitals and get help that way."

He added, "Yet they're the ones that have paid their taxes for years and helped keep this country going."

Lodges in Ontario and Manitoba, he explained, were given government subsidies to help them operate and keep residents from facing the dilemma at James Bay Lodge.

"The tragedy here," he said, "is that so many of them are helpless to face the problems of a rising run-away economy."

Hospital Wing Top Priority

A new commission with power to dictate hospital development in the Capital district was formally established by the regional hospital board Wednesday.

But regional directors also delivered the word on what the new agency should do first — add an acute-care wing to the year-old Saanich Peninsula Hospital to replace obsolete Resthaven Hospital in Sidney.

The 12 voting members of the new Hospital and Health Planning Commission will be appointed by the end of this month, board chairman Art Young said Wednesday. They could have a first-phase report on regional development of hospitals from consultants by the end of January.

Before passing the bylaw establishing the commission, the board narrowly defeated a resolution from Central Saanich Mayor Jean Butler which would have had the Central Saanich hospital project go ahead regardless of the new commission.

But having approved the bylaw, directors did pass a similar motion recommending that project be a first priority with the new commission.

Region-wide planning of hospital expansion has been delayed in recent years by bickering and red tape which at one time or another has involved hospital boards, municipal, regional and provincial governments as well as doctors.

But the regional hospital board won from the provincial government earlier this month clear authority to rule on what hospital facilities will go where.

This power has now been transferred to the new commission, which regional directors will control through budget approval.

Five of the commission members will be chosen by established hospitals in the region, four will be regional board directors and three will be regional residents at large, chosen by the regional board.

Responsibility for hospital development now rests firmly with the regional board, he said.

In her resolution, Mrs. Butler said the regional board and provincial government approved in June of 1969 construction of the acute care wing at the Mount Newton hospital and services were built to handle the addition.

In April this year regional directors endorsed that decision, she said, and asked board members to approve approaching Health Minister Dennis Cocke for approval to start immediate planning and construction of the acute care wing.

Director Jim Campbell said that while he is sympathetic to the spirit of the resolution, it would frustrate the new planning body.

School Closure Feared

Burnside elementary school at 3130 Jutland may be closed in September, 1976, if enrolments in Greater Victoria School District decline as projected.

Enrolment projections presented to the school board's administration committee Wednesday show Burnside's enrolment of 223 dropping to 185 in 1975.

School board staff propose moving the remainder of Burnside pupils to Tolmie elementary school at 556 Boleskine Rd. in 1976 if the decline occurs.

Tolmie's enrolment, now 360, is expected to drop to 340 in 1975 but would jump up to 450 with the addition of the Burnside children.

This year's total enrolment in elementary schools, 16,324, is expected to decline steadily in the next five years, leaving an enrolment of roughly 13,500 in 1979.

High school enrolment, 12,954 this year, is expected to rise until 1976 when it will peak at about 13,170, then begin a gradual decline. Projection for 1979 is roughly 12,500.

The board is planning to build four new elementary schools in the next few years, one on Torquay Drive, one on Edgelow St., one in the Roy Rd. area, and one in Victoria West.

Fastcat for Library

New books will be available to Greater Victoria Library patrons more quickly when the library's Fastcat system goes into effect today.

Fastcat is quick cataloguing of newly-received books.

Bright orange signs depicting a running cat will identify new volumes for readers, and these books will be listed in the card catalogue under title only.

Library director Donald Miller says the plan has been under study for some time and will free the backlog of new books at the main branch downtown.

Under the Fastcat system, a minimum of processing will be done when books are received, and they will be fully catalogued later into the library collection.

Volumes that have accumulated because of the former cataloguing system number several thousand and include reference, children's and general circulation books, said a library spokesman.

Tree Health Oak Bay Program

Oak Bay council knows about every tree in the municipality and will likely approve Monday night a continuing program to help them all to good health.

But it's going to take over 13 years, at an estimated $13,608 a year.

Council's works committee Wednesday night considered a "municipal tree inventory" prepared by Greenleaves Tree Service Ltd.

It shows:

– There are 9,240 trees in Oak Bay.

3,850 are shade (large) trees, about half of them Garry Oaks.

5,390 are ornamental (small) trees.

The survey also measured the diameter of each tree at breast height and rated its health from A to D, where D is for dead, nearly dead or in a hazardous condition.

Also calculated was the amount of doctoring needed, by pruning, surgery, root work or removal — $181,440 worth, with men and equipment currently costing $12 an hour.

The report says that ideally shade trees should be pruned every five years and ornamentals every two years. But at today's prices that volume of work would cost $40,000 a year for those first five years.

It proposes instead that a more economical approach would be to spend about $13,000 a year to do the urgent work only. Such a program would take 13.3 years to bring all trees, in theory at least, to as good condition as possible.

The inventory has been set up so it can be kept up to date as trees are attended to.

B.C. Urged to Run Ferry

After a group of businessmen failed earlier this week in their attempt to acquire the Princess Marguerite, the provincial government was urged Wednesday to purchase the vessel and operate it for a two-year trial period between Victoria and Seattle.

In a meeting with Transport Minister Robert Strachan, a delegation from the Greater Victoria Visitor Information Centre pointed out that such action would not only help the city's economy, but prevent serious additional pressure on the already overburdened B.C. Ferries route between Tsawwassen and Swartz Bay.

The delegation claimed that unless the service abandoned by Canadian Pacific is revived, the 16,000 cars carried by the Princess Marguerite this summer will be dumped on B.C. Ferries vessels next year.

It said this route is the only practical alternative open to visitors, because the Black Ball ferry from Port Angeles is "pretty well taxed to capacity" during the summer months, and the Anacortes-Sidney 8 a.m. departure necessitates a 6 a.m. start from Seattle.

In a follow-up letter to Strachan summarizing the points made, Terry Farmer, president of the visitor information centre, said handling the additional volume of traffic would require "an additional vessel similar in size to the Queen of Victoria operating continuously for 21 days . . ."

Farmer said today that was a simplified formula to give some idea of the impact created by the extra passengers, and noted that the load would actually be spread over three months.

He said Strachan "listened, had a few suggestions, but didn't seem to be as concerned as we hoped he would be."

His letter to the minister said the 16,000 additional cars would be only the minimum extra traffic resulting from the cancellation of the Seattle-Victoria run.

In addition, at least one-third of the 100,000 day-trippers who came to Victoria this summer aboard the Marguerite could be expected to make the longer journey via Tsawwassen and bring their cars with them.

This could add another 6,000 to 8,000 cars, and perhaps result in waits up to seven hours at Tsawwassen.

As a side-issue to the purchase proposition, Farmer pointed out that the government would also have to acquire the leases on the CP docks and access property below Belleville.

This would be an "extremely strategic property," he said, in view of the current negotiations between the government and Marathon Realty (the company's development subsidiary) to acquire the adjacent property on the Inner Harbor.

Small Businessmen Guided In New Tax Publication

A man who owns his own business and pays his wife a salary must consider her income as his own for income tax purposes, Revenue Canada says in a new publication for small businessmen.

The same applies to a woman who owns a business and pays her husband a salary.

The businessman must also consider as income the cost of all goods removed from stock for his own personal use or consumption, the income tax office says.

Automobiles used for both business and pleasure must be pro rated to calculate the business portion in determining the claim for expenses against income. Personal use of business goods can not be claimed as a business deduction.

The information is contained in a new publication, Income Tax and the Small Businessman, released this week by Revenue Canada. The booklet is free at the local income tax office.

In addition to operating expenses, capital cost allowances can be deducted from business income. The annual deduction for motor vehicles is 30 per cent.

The annual deduction for frame and stucco buildings is 10 per cent while only 5 per cent is allowed for steel, brick and concrete buildings.

When the asset is used for both business and pleasure the amount must be pro rated to determine the portion deductible.

The taxation department says that a business is not regarded as a single asset but a collection of assets.

Therefore each one must be assigned a value so depreciation can be calculated and capital gain ascertained in the event of a sale of an item.

Assets include buildings, equipment, trucks and such intangible items as goodwill, patents, copyrights, trademarks, trade names and franchises.

Both the owner's profit and the salary he pays himself are considered personal income and are subject to direct taxation.

The department has also prepared an information circular 73-10 which defines the difference between tax evasion and tax avoidance.

"The department does not object to a taxpayer openly arranging his affairs within the framework of the law so as to keep his taxes to a minimum," the new Revenue Canada publication says.

"Any program which has, as one of its main purposes, avoidance or reduction of taxes that might otherwise be payable under the law should be treated with caution to ensure it is within the bounds of legitimate tax planning.

"Such programs may be illusory and, when all provisions of the law are applied, may result in higher taxes than had the transaction not been undertaken.

"If a taxpayer deliberately conceals income or attempts to evade the payment of taxes by misrepresentation, conspiracy, accommodation or other means, he will have committed an offence and be liable for criminal prosecution."

Union Oil

Union Oil Company of Canada Ltd. reports net income of $12,204,000 or 85 cents per share for the first three quarters of 1974, up from $5,976,000 or 42 cents per share for the same period one year ago.

A company statement said "although the company's earnings and cash flow continue to improve it must be acknowledged that the costs incurred in carrying on business are ever increasing and the amount of capital which the company will require in its endeavors to find new energy reserves is rapidly growing."

The company said net earnings were adversely affected by increased royalties in Alberta and Saskatchewan, and said the demand for Canadian crude oil and condensate is weakening in international markets because of the higher price of Canadian oil.

Dome Petroleum

Dome Petroleum Ltd. reports net income for the first three quarters of 1974 of $22,088,000 or $1,97 per share, up 350 per cent over the same period a year ago.

Net profits for the first nine months of 1973 were just $6,872,000 or 65 cents per share.

The company reports third quarter earnings of $7,282,000 or 65 cents per share, compared with net income a year ago of $2,577,000 or 24 cents per share.

A statement by the company concedes that earnings "have shown a sizable increase" but warns "Dome is currently benefiting from low cost reserves and facilities. If the replacement cost of these reserves and facilities were used the company's net income would be reduced by up to 50 per cent."

Help your company by helping someone else.

Most people want to work.

To help Canadian business grow and reduce unemployment, let's work together to encourage people with job hang-ups to get involved.

So we want to interest you in our Industrial Training Program.

We'll help you develop your own training program for people who cannot get or hold a job (for any one of a number of reasons).

We can pay all direct training costs. And if your project qualifies, Canada Manpower could pay as much as 85% of each employee's salary, up to a maximum of $130 per week per trainee for the duration of the training plan.

You, in turn, will set up the course, with the assistance of the province of British Columbia, and will be responsible for the training.

Sit down with an Industrial Training consultant at your nearest Canada Manpower Centre soon, and together we can design a training program that will benefit you and your new employees.

Because when you give a person a chance, you've got the best and happiest employee of them all.

BLEACHED PULP SUPERINTENDENT
UNBLEACHED PULP SUPERINTENDENT

The Bleached Pulp Superintendent will be fully responsible for all aspects of bleaching, screening, cleaning and chemical preparation.

The Unbleached Pulp Superintendent will be fully responsible for all aspects of cooking, causticizing, lime kiln and washing.

Both positions require self starters who require a challenge and have the ability to work under minimum supervisions. Opportunities for development are excellent.

Salary is commensurate with experience.

Interested candidates should provide a detailed resume, which will be treated in strict confidence. All replies will be acknowledged.

Stock Brokers Optimistic Monday Budget to Help

By AL FORREST
Times Business Editor

Stock brokers are looking forward with optimism to the federal budget Monday night — if for no other reason, things couldn't possibly get much worse.

There are firm indications Finance Minister John Turner will proceed with plans to make the first $1,000 of interest income completely tax free.

On the surface, this might seem to be a strong negative factor for the stock market, where investors have been selling stocks in order to invest in bonds or deposit income.

However, this would encourage saving rather than spending and be a first step towards increasing the pool of funds available for investments, says James Bassett, Vancouver Island director for the Investment Dealers' Association.

"Any step that encourages Canadians to invest money will be helpful at this time," he said.

He said the IDA remains hopeful the budget will announce that the first $1,000 in dividend income will also be made tax free.

However, there has been no clear signal from Ottawa that dividend income will be included.

Turner has said the budget Monday will be remarkably similar to the proposals introduced in May that provoked a federal election.

One major change will be an infusion of capital into the housing market to counter the construction slump. This might be aimed at apartment construction as well as single family homes.

Bassett said the budget is expected to emphasize saving and production rather than spending and consumption and this would help to bring inflation under check.

There already were signs that interest rates were on the way down and federal government policies would encourage this. He said abnormally high interest rates were bad for all sectors of the economy, including the government, which was forced to pay high interest rates for Canada Savings Bonds — at 9.75 per cent — in order to compete with other forms of savings.

The Canada Savings Bond sales end on Friday.

Bassett said, however, it was not tax concessions or lower interest rates that would bring a return to the stock market.

"The main thing needed is confidence," he said.

Deposit interest rates of 10 per cent would not be attractive if the economy were clearly on the upswing and investors could make 15 per cent or more in the stock market with a high degree of safety.

Federal government actions to increase production and encourage saving would assist in bringing about a return to confidence in the market, he said.

For that reason any positive step taken by the government Monday would be welcome by the stock industry, he said.

OTTAWA TAXES 'FAVOR' U.S. COMPUTER FIRMS

MONTREAL (CP) — Because of discriminatory federal government policies, a Canadian computer industry could provide cheaper service to Canadian cities if it was based in the United States, a Toronto executive said Tuesday.

Canadian companies, using only domestic products to build a computer would "pay more to the government in federal sales tax" than a company like IBM exporting equipment to Canada "pays in combined duties and federal sales taxes," said I. P. Sharp, president of I. P. Sharp Associates Ltd.

"Not just a little bit more, but almost twice as much," he told delegates attending the fifth annual Canadian Computer Show and Conferences.

He said the Canadian government believes IBM's equipment "has no fair market value in the country of origin the U.S. and continues to permit the prevailing duty and sales tax rates to be applied on a greatly reduced 'across the border' valuation."

The purpose of trade tariffs, he said, "is generally believed to be for the protection of the domestic producer. The way in which the federal government has applied and continued to apply these tariffs insures that indigenous computer manufacturers will be wiped out."

Sharp said Canada has no indigenous computer manufacturers because "they have all been effectively exterminated and the instrument of extermination was and is the federal government."

The tremendous political power of foreign-based multinational corporations insured that "the Canadian content of the product of a Canadian company is subject to federal sales tax, only if it is an indigenous company, and not if it is a subsidiary of a foreign-owned corporation."

Sharp said computer service industries "are in general not looking for protection or favored status, merely the opportunity to compete in our own country with those based outside it, on an even basis."

About 8,000 delegates representing the Canadian computer service and data processing industries are attending the three-day conference and show involving 90 exhibitors.

CP Air Stalled, Japan Streaks

OTTAWA (CP) — While CP Air officials fiddle impatiently, Japan Air Lines is building a bonfire business on its new route to Peking.

CP Air sources say they don't expect to begin business on their Vancouver-Peking route for months as talks plod along with the Chinese on ticket prices and other issues.

But Japan Air Lines, which will be CP Air's chief rival on the Peking run, has been operating on the route since early in October.

The airline reports aircraft have been operating 50-per-cent full on average, higher than expected. The airline originally estimated flights would operate at about 30 per cent of capacity.

The passenger load factor is still about 10 per cent below the financial break-even point, but the Japan Times Weekly says airline officials expect the new service will be making money soon.

An external affairs spokesman said Wednesday that the passenger fare problem between China and CP Air is still unresolved.

There were other technical details to be ironed out as well. But he said he could not expand on those problems.

The spokesman said negotiations are being carried on between Ottawa and the Chinese government by diplomatic letter. No formal meetings were planned.

Ron Keith, CP Air information officer, said in Vancouver more than a month ago that his airline was trying to arrange a meeting between governments in Peking to settle these issues.

Even after a final settlement is reached, there must be a 45-day waiting period before the service can begin. This is required under the air agreement signed by the two countries in March, 1973.

CP Air had planned to begin flights to Peking May 4 this year. But the Japanese government held up stopover rights in Tokyo until JAL got permission for its own Peking service.

After Japan and China reached agreement on a twice-weekly Tokyo-Peking service, the Japanese government announced CP Air would be allowed to refuel aircraft in Tokyo for flights to Peking.

The latest problem springs from a Chinese demand that Vancouver-Peking fares be lower than existing Tokyo-Vancouver ticket prices.

CP Air objects that this would allow JAL to undercut CP Air prices on the Vancouver-Tokyo route.

With lower prices for Vancouver-Peking flights, JAL could allow passengers to buy tickets for Peking but leave the plane at Tokyo, Mr. Keith said.

CP Air originally planned one flight a week between Vancouver and Peking until business justified more flights.

'Timid' Ottawa Hit For Not Fighting Tankers

Premier Barrett is urging the federal government to make "the strongest possible representations" to the U.S. government to find an alternative to the proposed oil tanker route down the west coast.

The Premier, who believes his "way out" proposal for shipping oil south by rail is still the most feasible alternative, released correspondence Tuesday which he has had with federal Transport minister Jean Marchand.

In the most recent letter, Barrett said the recent Canadian National and CP Rail study proves the rail proposal is feasible and he asks the federal minister to take up discussions with the U.S. government and to begin follow-up studies on the "way out."

But in a letter mailed last week, Marchand indicated he believed further study of the B.C. rail proposal "is not warranted" despite the findings of the $1.5 million CN-CP study.

Barrett said, in releasing the correspondence, that the federal attitude is a "timid one" and Ottawa should "take courage in its hands" to go to Washington and fight the tanker route.

Liberal leader David Anderson, however, said Barrett's stand shows a "total lack of realism."

It is simply too late to change the U.S. government's mind on the pipeline-tanker route for shipping Alaskan oil south, he said.

The only thing that could stop the tankers now is "an act of God ... an earthquake," said Anderson.

The Liberal leader, who lead a fight against tankers three years ago, said the only alternatives considered by the U.S. at that time were the pipeline-tanker route and the MacKenzie Valley pipeline.

"Of course anything is feasible," he added, "if you are willing to spend enough money."

Barrett said no one has rationally opposed the plan to ship oil south by rail and if the federal government had supported the plan in 1973, when Barrett first proposed it, the U.S. would have shown more interest in it.

The CP-CN study which Barrett feels vindicates his proposal, said a rail line to carry Arctic oil south would cost $3.2 to $14.4 billion to build.

The premier said he believed the $3.2 figure is the one which refers to his "way out" plan, which involves moving oil by rail through Alaska and the Yukon to Lower Post, B.C. where it would move on to the U.S. through existing B.C. rail lines.

Despite the fact the U.S. has already begun construction of the trans-Alaska pipeline, Barrett said he believes the country can be convinced to change its mind because the rail route would be of benefit to both the U.S. and Canada by eliminating the danger of tankers.

Reports Wednesday that a second Alaska pipeline and more fleets of oil tankers down the coast are expected as part of the development of Alaskan oil resources, only strengthens the B.C. position, said Barrett.

SOCRED QUESTIONS ELECTION VALIDITY

Some school board elections already held in the B.C. interior may be invalid because the government's "patchup legislation" for local enumeration has come too late, opposition critics charged Wednesday.

The charge came during debate of two amendment bills designed to allow rural voters not enumerated this fall the opportunity to vote in regional and school board elections.

Most local elections will be held Saturday with advance polls Wednesday, today and Friday, but some interior districts have already held school board elections.

The bills are retroactive to Nov. 1 anh would therefore cover all the elections and the advance polls.

Opposition first questioned whether advance voters are being covered by the new legislation and were told by Municipal Affairs Minister James Lorimer that returning officers had been directed to act as if the legislation had already been passed.

"Therefore all eligible rural voters who were not enumerated would be entitled to vote by a written declaration.

But Socred Cariboo MLA Alex Fraser said some school board elections have already been held and since the new legislation should have applied to them, the candidates may try to declare the elections invalid.

In one district, he said, the winner had only a seven-vote margin. In another, the only nominee was declared ineligible because he was not on the voters list.

The retroactive legislation could have affected the outcome of both those elections, he said.

Since the bill is retroactive, the government should have brought in and passed the legislation earlier in the month to avoid the confusion, he said.

Education Minister Eileen Dailly did not have a chance to respond to the charges, however, because debate on her amendment bill was adjourned when another apparent problem in the legislation was brought to the government's attention.

Lorimer's bill, an amendment to the Municipal Act, was quickly passed through third reading and the house had moved on the companion legislation, amendments to the Public Schools Act, when it was discovered that the two bills may not be the same.

The municipal bill allows only voters in regional districts who have not been enumerated to make a declaration and vote on election day. Voters in municipalities, which were covered by a full enumeration canvass, are not included.

But the public schools amendment according to the Liberal opposition, means that both electors in municipalities and regional districts can declare their eligibility and vote in this fall's elections.

Opposition members had called on Lorimer to include municipal electors in his bill because enumerators apparently missed many people on the minicipal rolls.

Lorimer rejected the change and then discovered, along with other members of cabinet, that the companion bill may contain the change.

Dailly asked the opposition to adjourn debate and she left the house quickly to review the bill.

Lorimer said outside the house the two bills must be identical but he wouldn't speculate on whether Dailly would need to change her bill to match his.

He said he would "assure" the people of B.C. no one would lose his vote because of the late introduction of the bill and he said the amalgamation votes in Prince George and Nanaimo are not affected since eligibility for those votes was specified on a separate basis.

TRUSTEES DRAW BLANK

Some 45 trustees of school districts around the province Wednesday failed to prompt withdrawal of the government's new policy governing teacher salary negotiations.

Trustee representatives canvassed support from all three opposition party caucuses and met with Education Minister Eileen Dailly in an attempt to show they "remain in firm disagreement" with the bill. They also met with cabinet representatives.

President of the B.C. School Trustees Association Eileen Madson said the meeting was "productive" although it didn't produce any change.

"We demonstrated that trustees are unhappy with the bill" extending this year's negotiating deadline from Nov. 15 to Nov. 29 in an attempt to break the bargaining deadlock.

She called the legislation a "power play by Burrard Street teachers" referring to teachers central office of the B.C. Teachers' Association which maintains that local bargaining be conducted in local areas.

Haas Ready To Rejoin Cougars?

Which, of course, wouldn't displease Cougar coach Pat Ginnell one bit.

Haas, a 19-year-old Trail product who was one of the Cougars' better players last season when he managed 24 goals and 33 assists, failed to report to the Cougars' training camp this season, choosing instead to play commercial hockey in Trail.

But now it seems the starry centreman wants to play for the Cougars.

"I told him he still has a position here if he's willing to work. He said he was interested and will let me know when he wants to return here," said Ginnell Wednesday.

But getting Haas to agree to sign helps the Cougars a great deal since the six-foot, 170-pound centre would have been eligible for the Western Canada Hockey League's annual draft of unsigned 19-year-olds, which takes place Monday in Saskatoon. Cougars would have received only a $250 waiver fee for him.

Haas would probably have been selected by a bottom-placed club since the teams draft in the reverse order of point standings, the lowest-placed club of the 12-team WCHL getting the first choice.

Atop the Western Division, the Cougars will leave Victoria Friday for an encounter the same day against Calgary Centennials. Other games on the road trip are against Regina Pats Sunday and Saskatoon Blades Tuesday.

In the only WCHL game Wednesday, Kamloops Chiefs got two goals ech from Daryl Ferner and Terry McDonald on the way to a 5-4 win over the Flin Flon Bombers in Kamloops.

Brad Gassoff added the other Chiefs goal with Bob Watson replying twice for the Bombers. Rich Gosselin and Kim Davis were the other Flin Flon marksmen.

Should the Cougar centreman maintain his pace, he would finish the season with 171 points compared with Bobby Clarke's all-time point scoring record of 168 set during the 1967-68 season when Clarke played for Ginnell at Flin Flon.

Rick Blight remains in second place behind Bridgman. The Brandon Wheat Kings rightwinger has 43 points on a league leading 24 goals.

Two other Victoria Cougars are on the list of top 10 scorers. Peter Morris is fifth with 36 points while Jim Gustafson holds down eighth spot with 32 points.

Medicine Hat Tigers' goalie Jerry Farwell, the shutout leader with two, leads all WCHL netminders who've played 300 or more minutes this season in goals-against average with a 1.83 posting.

Boxers Win Six in Row

London Boxing Club staved off a rally in the second half Wednesday night and went on to chalk up its sixth straight victory by dropping Stevens Interiors 85-78 in a Victoria Senior "B" Men's Basketball League game at Victoria High School.

In the only other game, played on the same boards, James Bay Athletic Association charged from behind to trip winless Victoria Junior Men, 59-56.

Boxers, also unbeaten this season, led 43-31 at half time but Stevens fought back to within four points, 64-60, during the second half before the league-leaders once again pulled away.

Jim Cunningham set the pace for Stevens with 25 points, including 15 in the second half. Other double-figure scorers were Ken Kern (13) and Gary Woodburn (12).

Juniors led 37-28 at the break but couldn't contain James Bay in the second half. Ian Scott led the comeback dunking 12 of his 16 points after the intermission. Mike Morrill added 12 points to the James Bay total.

Cool Christmas and Cuba For Victoria Soccer Pair

THE SOCCER SCENE

By Max Low

Nowadays, it seems, the economic situation is being blamed for everything.

But it would appear, though, that lack of funds or a reluctance to spend them was behind the decision not to base Canada's Olympic soccer squad in Vancouver.

In the early days of Olympic planning, the west coast was mentioned frequently as the likely training home for soccer. And, when you come to think about it, the milder weather and the ability to play outdoors make it the logical choice.

But life doesn't always follow logical lanes. The training camp was set up in Toronto. And that's a pity, really, for there have been hardships.

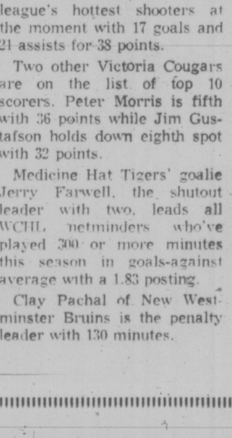
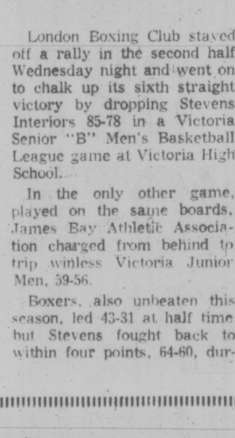
And across the water at least one young man has, for family reasons, turned down coach Erkhart Krautzman's invitation to join the 18-man national squad.

For talented Mike McLenaghen, being based in Toronto for two years with a hope of making Canada's starting XI for the 1976 Olympic Games in Montreal meant just too much of an upheaval.

McLenaghen, former captain of Canada's youth team in several international tournaments, was in Victoria Monday, helping Pegasus of the B.C. Soccer League trounce London Boxing Club of the Vancouver Island League 5-1.



BRIAN ROBINSON



BOB BOLITHO

Pegasus manager Roy Outram said Mike, who like his brother Kelly, is also a top lacrosse prospect, had reluctantly rejected the chance to play soccer for Canada.

Brian Robinson and Bob Bolitho of Victoria accepted the challenge and so will live in Toronto for the next two years. Both have quit their jobs as laborers with the City Council and Robinson and his wife are already on the way east.

Neither mind the upheaval too much although Bolitho, who expects to leave early next week, said both he and his wife Susan will miss being with their families here.

"We had thought they would establish the training camp on the west coast," Bolitho said.

"Now, in the east the training sessions will have to be held indoors," he added. "But the main reason for the squad being based in Toronto is to make it cheaper to go on tours to Europe before the Games."

The first tour followed the recent two-week training camp, after which both Robinson and Bolitho made the cut as Krautzman trimmed his squad from 28 to 18.

In lands where soccer is king, Canada did well, losing only 2-0 to East Germany's World Cup team; going down 5-0 to the East Germany Under-23 team; being nipped 1-0 by West Germany; tying 1-1 with Hungary's national team and being shaded only 2-0 by powerful Poland.

It was the first time that the 22-year-old Bolitho had represented his country and he played in all five games. Robinson, 26, had already played 19 times for Canada before going on tour and 16 of those appearances were in full internationals against other countries.

Anyway, for the young men accustomed to life on the balmy west coast, there will be welcome warm interludes in the months of ice and snow that lie ahead.

ISLAND SCHOOLS BID FOR TITLE

Four teams representing Vancouver Island today started down the road each hopes will lead it to the B.C. high school soccer title.

Spectrum and Reynolds of Victoria, Max Cameron School of Powell River and Alberni District High School are the four island zone teams in the three-day provincial championship tournament in Burnaby.

It is the first time in the B.C. tourney for new school Spectrum, which won the Victoria High School league playoffs, although coach Joe Bekkers had four Mount View teams in the provincial playoffs.

Reynolds, the Victoria league champion squad coached by Henry Kuyvenhoven and Tony Fantillo, was in the B.C. tournament for the first time last year.

Both Victoria schools, which are on opposite sides of the draw, are considered to have a good chance and could even meet in an all-Island final.

But hot favorites again are hosts Burnaby North Vikings, who have won or shared the title each year since the tournament began in 1970 apart from 1971, when they were edged 3-2 in overtime by Vic High Tyees.

Last year, the Vikings and Nanaimo had to share the title after battling to a 3-3 draw in overtime. Nanaimo was elminated by Powell River and didn't make the provincial tourney this year.

Other schools competing in the 16-team tournament are Vancouver Technical College, Burnaby Central, John Oliver of Vancouver, Chilliwack, Semiahmoo, Centennial in the Fraser Valley, Prince Rupert, Vernon, Asheroft, L. V. Rogers of Nelson and Rutland.

Finals are set for Saturday afternoon.

A Bad Break For Richard

By The Canadian Press

The Sabres beat the Canadiens 8-6 for their first win in 12 starts in Montreal since the Sabres joined the National Hockey League in 1970.

In other games, Kansas City Scouts upset St. Louis Blues 4-3, Minnesota North Stars beat Detroit Red Wings 7-4, Atlanta Flames edged Washington Capitals 4-3, California Golden Seals beat Chicago Black Hawks 2-0, Los Angeles Kings whipped Toronto Maple Leafs 4-0, and Pittsburgh Penguins defeated New York Islanders 8-2.

Montreal's Richard fractured his left ankle two minutes after the game started. He said his skate caught in the boards as he was checked.

The Canadiens' captain will have to wear the cast for about six weeks, a club spokesman said.

Rene Robert scored three goals and Gilbert Perreault added a goal and three assists to lead the Sabres.

It was Buffalo's ninth consecutive win and widened its lead in Division 2 to seven points over Boston Bruins.

HENRI RICHARD

At New York, the Flyers' Bobby Clarke intercepted a Giles Marotte shot and scored the winning goal with 26 seconds remaining.

"I was just lucky," Clarke said. "Marotte's shot hit the shaft of my stick."

The victory was only the Flyers' second at New York since they joined the NHL in 1967, but it was their 12th this season and kept them five points ahead of second-place Atlanta in Division I.

At Bloomington, Fred Stanfield scored three goals to lead Minnesota in its fourth win in 15 starts this season.

Pittsburgh, picking up its fifth win in 14 starts, got two goals each from Syl Apps and Lowell MacDonald to beat the Islanders.

The Penguins, playing before a home crowd of only 8,833, outshot the Islanders 42-30.

Atlanta picked up its 12th consecutive home-ice victory when Curt Bennett scored his ninth goal of the season midway through the final period against Washington.

Kansas City, led by Ed Gilbert's two goals, won its first home-ice victory — the second victory of the Scouts' first season. Ace Bailey had two goals for St. Louis.

At Oakland, only 4,955 showed up to see goalie Gilles Meloche kick out 28 shots to record the shutout for California. Butch Williams and Bob Stewart scored for the Seals.

Goalie Rogatien Vachon stopped 35 shots in his second shutout of the season for Los Angeles. Dan Maloney scored twice while Mike Murphy and Don Kozak got the other goals against the Leafs.

The win stretched the Kings' unbeaten string to nine games.

Joe Set To Give Some Aid

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Former heavyweight champion Joe Frazier says he plans to use some of the wealth he accummulated in boxing to help young fighters get the kind of start he got in the sport.

Frazier, who became a millionaire with the help of Cloverlay, Inc., says he will invest some of his millions in a similar, but smaller, corporation to provide security for new fighters.

Cloverlay was created by a group of businessmen to advise young boxers and help them with finances.

"I'm not looking to get a lot of money from these kids," said Frazier. "I got good treatment from a lot of people who saw to it I had something from my fighting.

"Boxing is a complicated business. A guy can use some help keeping it all straight. If you have good people taking care of you, this can be a great thing to do for a living. If you don't, you can wind up hurt and broke. It shouldn't be that way."

Frazier announced last week that his nine-year association with Cloverlay would end when his contract runs out next month. He said he was disenchanted with the idea of being managed by 944 stockholders who own 37,000 shares.

It was announced earlier this month that Cloverlay's assets will be liquidated and the proceeds distributed to the shareholders later this year.

Oilers Enjoy New Home Ice

By The Canadian Press

The box office at Edmonton's new Coliseum wasn't nearly as busy Wednesday night but the Oilers continued to enjoy their new home, scoring a 5-3 upset over Winnipeg Jets.

The Oilers opened their home World Hockey Association schedule Sunday, two weeks late, with a crowd of 15,326 in the Coliseum and won 4-1 over Cleveland Crusaders.

Wednesday, the attendance was down to 10,873 but that didn't deter the Oilers who got three goals from Ken Baird on their way to their fourth win in six starts this season.

In other games, Toronto Toros beat Vancouver Blazers 5-3, Quebec Nordiques whipped Indianapolis Racers 10-3, and Houston Aeros defeated Minnesota Fighting Saints 8-5.

The Oilers are last in the Canadian Division but have played seven games fewer than the division-leading Toros because they had to wait for completion of the Coliseum before beginning their home schedule.

Bobby Hull scored his 13th goal of the season for the Jets who lost their second game in 10 starts and dropped three points behind the leading Toros.

Goalie Jacques Plante, 45, stopped 28 shots in the Edmonton goal to preserve the win.

At Vancouver, Tom Simpson's 11th goal of the season broke a 3-3 tie at 18:57 of the third period and Paul Henderson scored into an empty Blazers' goal as the Toros picked up their ninth win in 13 starts.

Johnny McKenzie scored twice for Vancouver.

Houston's victory over Minnesota put the Aeros in first place in the Western Division, two points ahead of San Diego Mariners.

A crowd of 6,504, smallest this season, showed up at Quebec where the Nordiques announced they have given Quebec City $150,000 worth of stock in return for use of the Coliseum for regular-season games. Previously, the club paid $3,000 a game rent.

School Basketball Preview:

Oak Bay Aims at a Third Crown But a Close Race Looms

By JIM CRERAR
Times Staff

Three in a row?

If Don Horwood says so, pay attention. He's guided Oak Bay Bays to two straight B.C. senior high school boys' basketball championships, so he knows what he's talking about.

"I think we have tremendous potential," Horwood said. "By the end of the year, we'll have at least as good a team as we had the last two years. I see no reason why we shouldn't win another B.C. championship."

Obviously, the power of positive thinking figures largely in Horwood's success at Oak Bay. It's an effective weapon and could be enough to offset the loss of four of Bays' big guns from last year — Robbie Parris, Evan Jones, Dave Kirzinger and Tim Carlson.

The regular schedule starts Jan. 3 and with the addition of two teams, Parkland Panthers and Dunsmuir Demons, the Greater Victoria league has been divided into two five-school divisions.

It's an alphabetical split with Division "A" consisting of Belmont Braves, Claremont Spartans, Dunsmuir, Esquimalt Dockers and Mt. Douglas Rams. In Division "B" are Oak Bay, Parkland, Reynolds Roadrunners, Spectrum and Vic High Totems.

Each school plays a 13-game schedule, home and away with the other four teams in its own division and once against each school in the opposite section.

Top four finishers qualify in each division for the South Island playoff tournament, new this season and taking place Feb. 27-Mar. 1. Five schools advance from that tourney to the eight-team Island finals.

The school-by-school preview:

Oak Bay

Bays finished with a 17-game win streak last season and Horwood feels he has a better shooting and more balanced club this term. Steve Pescod (6'2") is his only returning starter but he also has Larry Dalziel (6'1"), Dennis Trumpy (6'1") and Scott Nobel (5'11") back.

Vic High

Coach Ash Valdal has eight players back and Totems are given the best chance of dethroning Oak Bay. Gone are starters George Lomas at Guard and Kerry Short at forward. Back, however, are Doug Calbeck (6'1"), Richard Griffin (6'1"), Tim Lampard (5'11"), Charlie Davis (5'11"), Rick Pyatt (6'4"), Tony Carlson (6'1"), Peter Covin (5'9") and Rod McKinnon (6'1").

Two newcomers likely to crack Totems' starting five are Forrest Parthington, a 6-foot-7 centre from Lansdowne Junior High, and Ken Wiens (6'1"), a guard who attended Vic High last year but did not play.

Reynolds

Wayne Erickson, Roadrunner's coach who is doubling as league chairman this year, has one of the more interesting teams.

He has the tallest player in the league in Jim Dunn, a 6-11 centre who transferred from St. Michael's University School where he played rugby. This is Dunn's first year of basketball and Erickson is giving him plenty of opportunity to pick up the moves during the Roadrunners' pre-season exhibition schedule. Dunn brings an aggressive style of play to the game from his rugby background.

Roadrunners' strength lies in their returning first-stringers. They are guards Eric Jones and Keith Bridge and forward Charlie Hunter, an excellent playmaker. They're joined by second-string returnee Greg McGinnis, a centre last season. If there's a problem, it could be a thin bench.

Parkland

New in the league but not to be taken lightly, the Panthers concentrated on their junior team last year under coach Joe Milligan with the move to senior in mind. Milligan is moving up with several top junior prospects, including centre Ted Inman (6'3"), forwards Sean Hunter (6'3") and Steve Akam (6'1") and guards Stu Montgomery (5'9") and Rick Nyren (5'10").

They're joined by three potential first stringers from Parkland's Senior "B" team last season, forward Mike Nauss (6'2"), and guards Greg Tredgett (5'10") and Jeremy Gye (6').

Spectrum

With a new coach in Rick Mark and nowhere to go but up after an 0-14 league record last season, Spectrum is shooting for at least the fourth South Island playoff berth.

Mark has two of last year's starting guards forming this season's nucleus. They're Gordie Gummer (5'11") and Joe Grewal (6'1"). Of the newcomers, four stand out. They're Roy Girath (6'3"), a post candidate from Colquitz Junior High; Larry Cole 6'3"), also post who didn't play last year; Paul Sharples (6'1"), a forward who also sat out last season, and Dan Hood (5'8"), a guard from Colquitz.

Belmont

Bill Spotswood is loaded with talent among his newcomers. They're so promising, in fact, he's had to cut four players from last year's Braves to make room for them.

Braves lost Malcolm Moscrop, Bob Wilson, Brian Foley and Jim Wallace, but returnees include David English (6'2") at forward and post-man Bruce Robertson 6'3"), second in rebounding last season only to Oak Bay's Dave Kirzinger.

The newcomers include Bruce English (6'4"), a forward from Belmont-Fisher Sun Devils who was considered by many as the best junior player on the Island last season. Other standout rookies are Sun Devil grands Steve Dunbar (6'6") at forward, Rob McTavish 6') at guard and Ken Hilchy (6'7") at the post, and Darrell Johnson (6'3"), a forward who transferred from Dunsmuir.

Mt. Douglas

Rams lost heavily this year through graduation. Gone are guards Doug Mosher and Rick Jones, forwards Mike Gains and Gordon Wood and centre Bruce Lubinich.

But coach Dale Bate has John McManaman (6'2") back at forward and he's excellent in all facets of the game. Other returnees include Tommy Watson (6'2"), Bob Spanier (6'1") and Chris Grew (5'11").

Newcomers include guards Bob Jones (5'11") and Danny Pimlott (5'10") from Cedar Hill, Rick Shenton (5'9") from Arbutus, Dale Douglas (5'10"), who sat out last year, Lee Woodruff (5'9"), a grade 12 transfer from Campbelll River, and forward Bill Kent (6'3") from Cedar Hill.

Esquimalt

Dockers have a new man behind the bench in Skip Standish, who coached high school ball in his native Missouri. They also have seven returnees — starters Ben Shooton (6'), Bob Vandeford (6'3") and Rob Zeitz .6'3") along with Wayne Bull (5'8"), Ron Arcuri (5'8"), Mike Oleinik (5'10") and Dave Carey (6'1").

Gone are first-stringers Colin Ross and Brian Townson but newcomers include Highrock grads Roman Kubica (6'2") at forward, Scott Browning (6') and Murray Allan (5'8") at guard, and Jim Bergin (6'2"), a Vic High transfer playing his first season of basketball.

Claremont

All of last year's first stringers are gone but Spartan coach Doug Latta is back and has four second stringers with him. They're Gary Gawley (6'4") at centre, Grantly Westmorland (6'1") at forward and guards Ken Berry (5'10") and Paul Estrada (5'9").

Along with new forwards Mike Wyatt (6') from Mt. Newton and Pat Sabourin (6'3") from Royal Oak, they'll have to fill the holes left by departing Larry Stansfield, Paul Davidson, Bob Lee, Les Lohr and Don Tilley.

Dunsmuir

A fine junior team from last year forms the nucleus of this year's senior Demons under coach Jim Kilpatric. With no grade 12 students — the school only goes to grade 11 this year — Kilpatrick may have to bring up a junior player to augment the senior team.

He has, however, an excellent crop of junior grads, including centre Royal Edmondson (6'2") and forwards Glen and Gary Newman (both 6'2"). His best new prospect is David Shergold, who played junior in Esquimalt last year.

Kilpatrick's major problem is getting practice time in Dunsmuir's undersized gym. Six school teams must share it.

COACHES' PICKS

Bays, Belmont Teams to Beat

If Greater Victoria high school basketball coaches know anything about the game — and there isn't much doubt they do when you look at the record—Oak Bay Bays and Belmont Braves will finish first in their divisions this season.

The 10 coaches were asked to pick the order of finish in each section of the league. All but two picked defending provincial champion Oak Bay first in Division "B" and all but three named Belmont as the first-place finisher in Division "A".

And all agreed on one point — this will be one of the most competitive seasons in years. None of the coaches would be surprised for example, if Vic High Totems, with eight returnees, upset Oak Bay, which has lost heavily through graduation. Two coaches, in fact, picked Vic High first.

And they expect a three-team scramble in Division "A" between Belmont, Mt. Douglas Rams and Esquimalt Dockers.

First place in the voting is worth four points, second is worth three, third worth two, fourth worth one and fifth worth zero. Here's how the coaches rate them:

DIVISION "A"	Pts.	DIVISION "B"	Pts.
1. Belmont	37	1. Oak Bay	38
2. Mt. Douglas	27	2. Vic High	31
3. Esquimalt	24	3. Reynolds	18
4. Claremont	9	4. Parkland	11
5. Dunsmuir	3	5. Spectrum	2

College Volleyball Title Chase Begins

Six teams will be aiming this coming weekend for the first-round lead in the race for the Canada West women's volleyball championship.

Five squads from the universities of Lethbridge, Calgary, Saskatchewan, Alberta and British Columbia will compete with host University of Victoria Vikettes in the first of three meets set to determine the Canada West University Athletic Association champion.

The other two tournaments will be held Jan. 24-25 in Lethbridge and Feb. 14-15 in Edmonton. The club with the best showing over the three meets will be awarded the title.

The defending champions are the UBC Thunderettes.

Action at the UVic Gym will start Friday at 3:30 p.m. and end at 10 p.m. before resuming Saturday at 10 a.m. and ending at 4 p.m.

Cool Reception

By The Canadian Press

The Canadian Football League said Wednesday that the door may be open to merger talks with the World Football League, but the reception inside is likely to be anything but cordial.

In Montreal, Alouettes owner Sam Berger said he has reservations about such a merger.

"I don't want to become involved in even thinking about it at this time," said Berger. "It could be that when the playoffs and the Grey Cup — if we make it — are over, maybe we'll take a look at it."

And in Edmonton, Jim Hole, president of the league and of the Eskimos club, said:

"Jake Gaudaur (league commissioner) has said our league would be willing to talk to the WFL if they came to us and asked to talk. And that's exactly the way it is.

"But why would we want to merge with the World Football League? They have nothing to offer."

Otto Jelinek said in the Commons Tuesday that CFL attendances are declining and a merger with the WFL may be the only way to stop CFL disintegration.

However, the claim of declining CFL attendance was denied by Gaudaur and Hole.

John Bassett, owner of the WFL Memphis Southmen, said there are "no merger talks being considered whatsoever."

In Wednesday's WFL games, Birmingham beat Shreveport 40-7, Memphis defeated Charlotte 28-22 and Hawaii downed Portland 23-0.

SPARTANS, BRAVES PREVAIL

Claremont and Belmont both scored wins Wednesday night in high school boys' exhibition basketball games.

At Claremont, Ken Berry scored 14 points to lead the Spartans to a 48-37 victory over Dunsmuir Demons. Royal Edmonson paced the losers with 17 points.

And at Belmont, the Braves made up for a 49-45 loss at Duncan a week ago by trouncing Cowichan Timbermen 66-36.

Dave English, who scored 17 points, and brother Bruce English, with 12 points, led the Braves and Kevin Elder, who had 10 points, was the top Cowichan scorer.

Grid Barons Not Coming

Vancouver Barons, a team hoping to enter the Can-Am Western Professional Football League, won't play in Victoria Saturday after all.

Barons were to play the Northwest International League All-Stars at Royal Athletic Park but the game has been cancelled because wet weather left the field unplayable.

Bigger Burden for Olympic Trust

TORONTO (CP) — Canada's program for developing Olympic athletes may cost an extra $1-million because of a recent rule change allowing salary compensation for athletes training for the 1976 Olympic Games.

W. E. Halder of Toronto, president of Olympic Trust of Canada, says the rule change made at an October meeting of the International Olympic Committee (IOC) will add to the $9-million budgeted for the three-year period preceding the Montreal games.

Olympic Trust, the fund-raising branch of the Canadian Olympic Association; the federal government and most of the provinces provide funds for the development program, known as Game Plan.

Halder said Olympic Trust, already committed to raising 40 per cent of Game Plan's budget, would probably have to raise most of the extra $1 million because it would be difficult for governments to work a new item into their budgets.

The IOC ruling permits athletes in training to receive their full salaries, from employers or other persons, for time lost from work. No time limit is set on the training period.

Halder said each national sports governing body will propose its own candidates for salary compensation. The coordinating committee of Game Plan will screen the candidates, with priority going to those athletes showing the strongest potential.

JUVENILE SOCCER SCHEDULE

Hawaiian Team Here

The Punahou High School girls' volleyball team from Honolulu will play a series of matches at Vic High Sunday, Nov. 24.

Opposition will be provided by Vic High, Spectrum and University of Victoria. Matches slated from 1-4 p.m., will consist of two 5-point games with the winner determined on games won.

The Punahou team, coached by Mary Perry, is in first place in its league. Vic High, meanwhile, won the city high school title under coach Val Egan and is headed for the provincial championships in November.

BOWLER OF WEEK

Dorothy Krimmer's sharp eye and steady delivery combined for a winning touch in sixth week of 12th annual Times Bowler-of-the-Week competition. Bowling at Town and Country Lanes, Dorothy started with a 259, reached a peak 318 and then added a 229 for a 806 total to capture weekly award in women's fivepin division. Dorothy has now qualified for Bowler-of-the-Year rolloffs.

Pats' Security Beefed Up

FOXBORO, Mass. (AP) — Security forces will be doubled this Sunday and squads of plainclothes policemen will roam through the stadium crowd because of increased violence among spectators at New England Patriots games.

"Something has been going bad down there the past three games, and I don't like it," he said.

Last Sunday, one spectator was stabbed in a parking lot brawl after the national Football League game. It was the first stabbing reported at the stadium, but the fights in and around it have become as commonplace as touchdowns.

"It's getting too much to handle," McCarthy said. "After the Baltimore game we had to arrest 15 people for creating a disturbance. We thought that had been the worst. Then we got the Buffalo game. We arrested 26 and had to let as many go."

Little but loaded.

Plymouth Cricket and Dodge Colt are loaded with standard equipment. We'll match our little economy cars against cars costing a lot more. And we'll give you some surprises.

For instance, every Colt and Cricket is standard equipped with a tilt steering column. It lets each different driver in your family select his or her own most comfortable driving position. Most of our high-priced competition offer it only at extra cost. Colt and Cricket make it standard.

Naturally, Colt and Cricket give you front bucket seats. You'd expect that. What you might not expect is the fully reclining seatback feature on all the models except the very lowest-priced 2-door coupes. Again, a little more comfort for you. And once again a feature you'll find on the option pages of some other cars' catalogues.

There's plenty more. Like front disc brakes and rugged Unibody construction. Standard for your peace of mind.

A 1600 CC overhead cam engine with a fully-synchronized, four-speed manual transmission provide you with great economy and extra kick for highway passing. Some of our competition offer a much smaller engine as their standard equipment.

There's a lot more to the Dodge Colt and Plymouth Cricket story. Like a wide choice of models. Sports models, 2-door hardtops, 2-door coupes, 4-door sedans and smart looking 4-door wagons. Plus a custom wagon that gives you woodgrain side and tailgate panels.

Now if you really feel you need some options, here they are: automatic transmission, 2000 CC engine (and when you order the 2000 CC engine with automatic transmission, you get Chrysler's famous Torqueflite automatic transmission), AM push button radio, wagon roof luggage rack, electric rear window de-icer and white wall tires (standard on Cricket Formula "S", Colt GT and custom wagons). You can almost count our extra cost optional equipment on one hand.

Dodge Colt and Plymouth Cricket. Built by small car experts in Japan. Sold and serviced coast to coast in Canada by your Dodge and Plymouth dealers. Stop in and surprise yourself.

Berths Decided Tonight

Vic High takes on Esquimalt at 7:30 and Belmont plays Mt. Douglas at 8:30 in the semi-finals and the final will be played at Oak Bay Junior High School at 8:30 Friday night. The consolation game to decide third and fourth spot will be played that night at 7.

All four semi-finalists go on to the Vancouver Island tournament to be played Nov. 22 and 23 in Victoria.

League-champion Vic High topped Division "A" in round-robin play this week and Mt. Doug, which finished third in the league one point behind Esquimalt, won Division "B".

Vic High defeated Dunsmuir 2-0, Belmont 2-1, and Claremont 2-0; Belmont beat Claremont 2-0 and Dunsmuir 2-0 to place second in the "A" section, while Claremont edged Dunsmuir 2-1 for third place.

In the "B" section, Mt. Doug upset Esquimalt 2-0, beat Oak Bay 2-0 and downed Reynolds 2-0. Esquimalt beat Oak Bay 2-0 and Reynolds 2-1 to take second place and Reynolds nipped Oak Bay 2-1 to finish third.

Kareem Injury Felt

By The Associated Press

When Kareem Abdul-Jabbar joined Milwaukee Bucks, he turned them from an also-ran to National Basketball Association champions.

Now, with the 7-foot-2 centre injured on the sidelines, the Bucks have a 1-12 record, the same as the expanion New Orleans Jazz.

Their latest defeat, a team record 10th in a row, was 98-91 to Detroit Pistons Wednesday night.

Washington defeated Kansas City-Omaha 118-81, Phoenix beat Philadelphia 105-100, and Seattle stopped Los Angeles 108-103.

Bob Lanier scored 40 points for Detriot. Milwaukee was led by Bob Dandridge with 28 points.

Washington Bullets were paced by Phil Chenier's 25 points. Nate Archibald led the Kings with 16.

Charlie Scott scored 41 points for Phoenix while the high for Philadelphia was Doug Collins with 20.

St. Mike's Squashes Claremont Spartans

Dave Wasylynko, Ed MacAuley, Dick Browning and Frank Leung scored tries and Dave Olson kicked three conversions and a penalty goal Wednesday to lead St. Michael's University School to a 25-9 exhibition high school rugby victory over host Claremont Spartans.

Bombs Explode For Sixth Win

VANCOUVER — Vancouver Buzz Bombs extended their unbeaten streak to six games by defeating Simon Fraser University 65-15 in one of two Senior "A" Women's Inter-City Basketball League battles here Wednesday night.

In the other encounter, University of British Columbia Jayvees moved into a second-place tie with Saanich Westerners and SFU by edging winless Vancouver Jonos, 63-61.

Joanne Sargent sank 17 points to lead Buzz Bombs, who enjoyed a 33-18 advantage at the half. Gail Klaver led SFU with 18 points.

Tallon Out Two Months

VANCOUVER (CP) — Dale Tallon's dislocated hip, suffered in National Hockey League action here Tuesday night, could keep the Chicago Black Hawk centre and defenceman out of action for a couple of months.

Dr. D. Ross McNaught said he expects Tallon, in hospital in nearby New Westminster, can be released in a few days to return to Chicago.

Lakers Pad String

LAKE COWICHAN — Lake Cowichan Lakers tripped James Bay Athletic Association Gulls 5-3 here Wednesday, to extend an unbeaten string to 13 games in the South Vancouver Island Junior "B" Hockey League.

Doug Hanna pumped in what turned out to be the winning goal at 15:55 of the third period and Mike Hadden added an insurance tally with a shot that went into the empty net in the final minute of play.

. . . A Time to Relax!

OTTAWA (CP) — Canadians on United Nations peacekeeping duties in Cyprus and the Middle East will soon have a leave centre where they occasionally may be joined by their wives.

Proposals for the centre, possibly on Cyprus, were made in the Commons Wednesday by Defence Minister James Richardson.

The minister gave no indication of what plans the government has to reduce the size of the Canadian contingent in Cyprus and he was strongly criticized by the opposition for the omission.

Michael Forrestal (PC—Dartmouth-Halifax East) said he was expecting a fuller statement. The inflation-hit armed forces were "getting damn sick . . . they've some real problems."

Stuart Leggatt (NDP—New Westminster) said Richardson delivered a motherhood statement that had no information about the real problems of peacekeeping, such as the need for some proper backup support from the United Nations and other countries.

Before he left, he said he would see if Canadian troops on Cyprus could be reduced. At present there are about 950 Canadians on Cyprus.

He told the Commons Wednesday that he met the president and vice-president of Cyprus, the deputy premier of Egypt and the defence ministers of Israel and Syria.

He announced that flights by Canadian aircraft between Damascus and Beirut, stopped when a plane was shot down last August by Syria with the death of nine Canadians, will shortly resume.

Forrestall said there was nothing in the minister's statement to say whether the inflation-hit forces can fulfill their peacekeeping role.

MORALE 'STILL HIGH'

OTTAWA (CP) — Defence Minister James Richardson rejected claims Wednesday that armed forces morale is low because of spending restraints.

He told reporters that such talk is self-defeating. He had found no evidence of low morale in his talks with forces' members.

His comments were made after being peppered in the Commons with opposition questions.

He described as completely inaccurate a newspaper report that the government plans to spend $40 million to $50 million on defence facilities in his hometown of Winnipeg.

He told Opposition Leader Robert Stanfield that the government is considering what changes are necessary now because of inflation-caused budgetary restraints.

A statement on the future forces tasks would be made, but probably not in time for next week's budget debate.

Later, Mr. Richardson said in an interview that the cabinet must decide how much money it can spend on the forces and what jobs it wants them to do.

Guide Rules Urged On Trade-Curb Bill

OTTAWA (CP) — Parliamentary action is needed to define the powers of a restrictive trade practices commission proposed in the government's Bill C-2 to establish a business competition policy, representatives of 13 of Canada's largest corporations told a Senate banking committee Wednesday.

Referring specifically to provisions of the bill that empower the commission to order suppliers to sell to anyone in order to maintain "adequate competition," A. J. MacIntosh said it should be up to Parliament to set out guides on what constitutes acceptable competition.

Until that is done, "no one can give advice to a manufacturer or a distributor, or to a retailer, as to what the law means, because the legislation does not contain any guiding principle . . ." to determine whether competition is adequate.

MacIntosh is a lawyer with the Toronto legal firm of Blake, Cassels and Graydon.

Also appearing before the committee were J. W. Younger, vice-president and general counsel for Steel Co. of Canada Ltd., J. F. M. Douglas, vice-president of Cominco Ltd. and F. G. Felkai, also of Blake, Cassels.

The corporations they represented — a cross-section of primary producers, resource companies and retailers — have been lobbying against successive proposed competition bills for some time.

MacIntosh said the bill represents an attempt to transplant economic theories developed in the United States to a Canadian setting.

This is impractical, considering that the U.S. population exceeds Canada's by 10 times and that five per cent of the U.S. market is equal to 50 per cent of Canada's, he suggested.

There is an argument to be made for permitting producers to limit distribution, he suggested, particularly since the provinces are becoming concerned with ensuring that producers provide service, adequate parts and product availability.

Cheap Tags Hit

OTTAWA (CP) — Health Minister Marc Lalonde said Wednesday he will find out why there are no federal controls on the sale of non-prescription medical bracelets.

He promised to investigate after Bob Holmes (PC-Lambton-Kent) said persons with serious medical problems are entrusting their health to bracelets sold over drugstore counters.

Lawrence Stevenson, president of the Canadian Medic-Alert foundation, said in Toronto earlier this week that the $2.98 bracelets encourage persons to diagnose their own medical problems.

The danger is wearers might have incorrectly diagnosed their problems.

"Thousands of Canadians with serious medical problems are trusting this inadequate protection for emergency treatment," he said.

Medic-Alert bracelets, which cost $9, are issued by prescription only.

Up-to-date medical files on all Medic-Alert bracelet owners are kept in a central registry. Their medical histories are supplied to hospitals in emergency situations.

Report Confirms My Lai Atrocities

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States Army's investigation of the My Lai massacre of possibly 347 Vietnamese civilians concludes it resulted primarily from orders given by some task force officers.

The Peers report released Wednesday says no orders were given to kill everyone in My Lai but that some of the soldiers involved thought that had been implicit in orders they were given.

Briefings by Lt.-Col. Frank Barker, commander of the task force, and Capt. Ernest Medina exaggerated intelligence reports that My Lai was an armed Viet Cong stronghold and that anyone there would be the enemy, the report says.

The report says Medina's orders to the platoons that committed the atrocities "left little or no doubt in the minds of a significant number of men in his company that all persons remaining in the My Lai area at the time of the combat assault were enemy and that C-Company's mission was to destroy the enemy," the report said.

The two-volume report was released Wednesday by army secretary Howard Callaway who called the massacre "a dark chapter in the army's history" but said he does not think it could happen again.

He said the army has a new attitude and that the kind of officers training now "is different than it was then."

Callaway said he will not issue thousands of pages of the report that he said include inflammatory, unsupported accusations against individuals.

The secretary also said the army has no plans for any further action against Calley, the only man jailed in connection with either the massacre or cover-up.

The report is named for Lt.-Gen. William Peers who headed a special army inquiry into the massacre and cover-up.

The report says part of the cover-up of the massacre was the failure of the commander, Maj.-Gen. Samuel Koster, to send any word of the incident to Gen. William Westmoreland, than U.S. commander in Vietnam.

The report says some of the cover-up "continues to this day," with six officers refusing to talk and with others giving false testimony and key documents still missing. Because of this, it "has not been possible to sort out acts of concealment' 'that were initiated by the task force and those initiated by officers at higher levels.

However, the cover-up went no higher than Koster, the report says.

Indian Students Stumble

OTTAWA (CP) — Of the 3,691 Indians who entered Grade 9 in 1970, only 1,185 made it into grade 12 in 1973, the Commons learned Wednesday.

For instance, of the 1,021 Indians who entered Ontario schools for Grade 9 in 1970, only 733 entered Grade 10 the following year, 504 entered Grade 11 in 1972 and 407 entered Grade 12 in 1973.

All provinces reported a similar decline in that period. Nova Scotia reported 52 Indian students in Grade 9 in 1970 and only 22 Grade 12 Indian students in 1973.

In New Brunswick, during the same period, the figure dropped to 22 from 54, in Quebec to 110 from 339, in Manitoba to 111 from 397, in Saskatchewan to 96 from 403, in Alberta to 176 from 409 and in British Columbia to 241 from 815.

Score 5 for The System.

GM's Maximum Mileage System continues to produce– this time in dollars.

Good news for you about savings in overall operating costs ranging from $440 to $1,000 on Chevrolet Impala, Pontiac Catalina, Oldsmobile Delta 88, Buick LeSabre and Cadillac DeVille for '75.

GM Canada

Once again, the new GM Maximum Mileage System has lived up to our expectations. And as a result, you can realize substantial savings in overall operating costs on each of these cars as compared to last year's models. These impressive savings range from over $440 on the '75 Impala to more than $1,000 on the Delta 88 over 50,000 miles of driving...say about 4 year's worth.

How? Through the money you would save on gas and scheduled maintenance costs.

For example, let's compare the 1975 Chevrolet Impala with its 1974 counterpart. Based on Urban Driving Tests conducted by the U.S. Government's Environmental Protection Agency, which emphasize stop-and-go city driving, the '75 Impala, using unleaded gasoline shows about a 10% mileage improvement over the '74 model using leaded fuel. Our own proving ground tests, which include suburban-type driving conditions, confirm this 10% improvement. Over 50,000 miles, that amounts to 315 fewer gallons of gas. If you paid 67.9¢ per gallon, which allows a 3¢ per gallon increase for unleaded fuel over regular fuel, this represents a net savings of $130 (these calculations could vary depending on the prices of leaded and unleaded fuel in your area).

Now let's compare scheduled maintenance costs. If you followed the owner's manual for recommended service, the '75 Impala with the Maximum Mileage System could save you nearly $310 on parts, lubricants and labor over the '74 model using leaded fuel. Since the System features GM's Catalytic Converter, High Energy Ignition, Fast Warm-up Carburetion and Steel-belted Radial Tires, the predominant savings occur in fewer scheduled changes for spark plugs, oil, oil filters and lubrications. And with our Maximum Mileage System, there are no points or ignition condenser to replace. Of course, parts and labor costs will vary throughout the country, but we've used current list prices and figured labor at $11 per hour.

All together, then, when you add it all up, it amounts to an impressive savings of over $440 on the Impala and even more on these other cars. Which is another reason why we say that The System is the most advanced engineering and technology we can offer on 1975 General Motors cars.

We want you to drive what you like and like what you drive.

Steel Report Ready

OTTAWA (CP) — Prime Minister Pierre Trudeau disclosed Wednesday that the steel inquiry conducted by Willard Estey is ready to report within a few days, its findings to the government.

Industry Trade and Commerce Minister Alastair Gillespie assured the Commons later that the report would be made public.

A demand that the government tell parliament what had happened to the steel inquiry launched last June, was made in the house by Ed Broadbent, New Democratic Party parliamentary leader.

He said the inquiry was set up by the Trudeau government to determine if the spate of steel price increases last May were justified. But so far nothing has been heard of its findings.

Whelan, Board Criticized

OTTAWA (CP) — The Canadian Egg Marketing Agency (CEMA) should be revamped, recognized as a public utility and forced to answer to the public for its actions, the National Anti-Poverty Organization recommended today.

In a brief to the special Commons egg inquiry, the organization said low-income consumers cut their egg consumption by roughly 13 per cent, to about 19 dozen, last year because of "unrealistically high prices," set by the marketing agency.

executive director Marjorie Hartling said in the brief.

CEMA and provincial marketing boards have monopoly powers to control supplies, prices and surpluses of eggs, keting

"We therefore view CEMA and provincial marketing boards as public utilities which must be accountable to the public for their actions."

As a public utility, CEMA should have public representation from all groups affected by it—"especially the people living at or below the poverty line as they represent the bulk of egg consumers today."

The organization uses Statistics Canada's definition of poverty—a state where a family is spending 65 per cent or more of its income on food, shelter and clothing. For an Ottawa family of four, this meant earnings of $6,854 or less last year.

Ms. Hartling was critical of Agriculture Minister Eugene Whelan, saying domestic prices are not at the marvellous level the agriculture minister "would have us believe."

At one time, she said, Canada had the second lowest price of eggs among 15 major countries. In March, 1973, shortly before CEMA went into operation, Canadian prices were up to fifth place. By July, 1974, a year after CEMA was in operation, Canadian egg prices were ninth.

"What we fail to understand is how cities like The Hague, London and Tokyo can enjoy cheaper eggs when the grain to feed the chickens, was grown in Canada.

"The transportation costs of the grain have been absorbed and still the price is lower."

Metchosin 'As Is'

About 100 Metchosin residents have sent a letter to Municipal Affairs Minister James Lorimer asking their area not be included in any present or future municipality.

NEW POST FOR YOUNG

OTTAWA (CP) — John Young, controversial chairman of the federal government's now disbanded prices and incomes commission, will be named an assistant deputy finance minister specializing in the resources field, commencing with the New Year.

Finance Minister John Turner confirmed Wednesday speculative reports that Dr. Young would be soon returning to Ottawa in a new post with the finance department.

Dr. Young headed the government's experiment with wage and price controls in the period 1969 to 1972. But when he returns to Ottawa it will be in the resources role.

He is being named to fill the vacancy left in the department by the departure of T. K. Shoyama who was an assistant deputy minister.

DUNCAN RCMP TRACK ATTACKER

DUNCAN — RCMP and a tracking dog are searching today for two young men who fled into the woods after attacking a police officer and stealing his gun during a routine check Wednesday.

An RCMP spokesman said the two men, described as being in their early 20s, attacked Sgt. William Benedek as he approached them after noticing they had thrown away a bag containing what was later identified as marijuana.

The incident occurred in front of a motel on the Trans-Canada Highway at 10:45 p.m.

The spokesman said the men jumped Benedek, head of the Duncan RCMP detective division, from the rear, then kicked him and took his revolver.

Benedek was not injured and was back at work today.

Que. Farmer Slams Waste Of Carrots

HEMMINGFORD, Que. (CP) — Farmer Rene Guinois who has to throw away half of his crop of carrots because they lack "sales appeal" has called on the federal government to help stop the waste.

Mr. Guinois, 33, who operates a 700-acre family farm near this Eastern Townships' community 40 miles south of Montreal, said this week that millions are going hungry round the world while stringent government controls cause "fantastic wastage" of fruit and vegetable crops in North America.

Last week storage bins at his farm were overflowing with carrots from his main crop judged unworthy of Canada No. 1 Grade standards. A dump truck used to haul away the rejects was immobilized in an orange sea of unwanted vegetables.

Mr. Guinois encourages neighbors to take away truck loads of the crop at no charge when it cannot be sold cheaply as livestock feed.

He blames the federal government for failing to subsidize processing plants to turn "waste" carrots into juices, soups and other products.

"Or the government should take produce that Canadians don't want to buy and market it abroad where people are starving," he said. "You hear a lot of talk about the different kinds of shortages in the world, but I think it's often more a question of bad distribution of what's available.

Quebec food stores pay him about $2.50 per 50 pounds of packaged carrots, he said. Two pounds of carrots retail for around 23 cents in Montreal.

"People like to buy long, thin carrots," he said. "Short, fat ones usually taste better but they don't sell so I'm stuck with them."

Local famer Donald Campbell, 21, agreed that although some carrots "may have a funny shape it doesn't matter when they are sliced up for cooking."

Yves Baricault, chief of the federal agricultural department's fruit and vegetable inspectors for Montreal region, defended the government's produce standards.

"Broken, misshapen carrots have no sales appeal," he said. "If we allow them on the market, prices will fall and the producers will be worse off. If the customer is paying for Canada No. 1 Grade, we have to make sure he gets it."

To receive this top quality rating, a carrot must be at least 3½ inches long and three-quarters of an ich in diameter.

A COMPLETE LIST OF NEW CARS WITH FUEL INJECTION.

UNDER $4,000.	UNDER $10,000.	OVER $15,000.
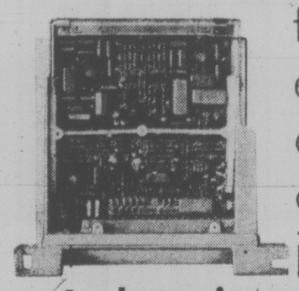
	Alfa Romeo Berlina, GT Veloce, Spider Veloce	Mercedes Benz 450 Series
	Renault R.17 Gordini
	Audi 100LS
	Porsche 914
	SAAB 99

As you can plainly see, fuel injection is to be found on some of the world's greatest cars. And, as you can also see, it's found on some of the world's most expensive cars.

However, from now on fuel injection will be standard equipment on one of the world's greatest, least expensive cars: The 1975 Volkswagen Beetle. And electronic fuel injection, at that.

In a nutshell, here's how our system works and here's what it does for you: An electronic brain receives signals from the engine, evaluates those signals, and in split seconds, determines exactly how much fuel should go into each cylinder. And then, again in split seconds, the fuel injectors actually inject only the precise amount of gas that each cylinder needs. (Also we might add, our system still only requires good old regular gas.)



An electronic brain, no less.

Now, what all this means to you, is that you don't waste a drop of gas. Your engine runs more smoothly, more efficiently and more trouble-free. And that's just for starters.

As well, and at no extra cost, every VW Beetle is covered by the Volkswagen Owner's Security Blanket, probably the most advanced car coverage plan in the world.

Mounties Seek Terror Help

FORT SMITH, N.W.T. (CP) — RCMP here have asked headquarters in Yellowknife for help in dealing with violence involving students at the Northwest Territories vocational training centre.

The call for assistance was made after a woman Eskimo student at the centre was raped and another was robbed during the weekend.

Sgt. William Siemens of the Fort Smith RCMP detachment said in an interview Tuesday that plainclothesmen from the Yellowknife general investigations unit are being sought on a temporary basis.

But, Sgt. Siemens said, not even doubling the regular strength of the Fort Smith detachment to 16 regular members and two special constables would prevent the attacks on students from continuing.

An Eskimo girl was raped and two men, all natives and all students at the vocational centre, were involved in violent incidents last month.

The incidents brought a warning from education officials within the terrororial government last week that unless the situation is cleared up soon the vocational centre might have to be relocated.

"I hope not," Mayor Paul Kaeser said. "It's the only thing we've got."

Norman Mair, principal of the centre, said in an interview that the conflict between certain townspeople in the Alberta-N.W.T. border community and the students "isn't all black and white."

Mair said that in one of the beatings and robbery the victim "got what he deserved."

Even Diapers Held for Pay

VANCOUVER (CP) — An Ottawa family lost all its belongings including treasured wedding photos and had to give up a new start in British Columbia because of a moving company.

The family — we'll call them the Wrights — is back in Ottawa now and the mover, one of the biggest in the business, plans to auction their belongings to pay a $1000 moving bill.

The Ottawa agent for the move gave the family an estimate of $484.50, buf when the truck company arrived at their new apartment in the Vancouver suburb of Burnaby the price had more than doubled to $1,000.10.

The moving crew demanded payment in full on delivery by cash or certified cheque and when the Wrights couldn't pay, the crew slammed the doors of the van and put the family's belongings in storage.

They wouldn't even let the family have diapers for their baby.

The company said the Wrights showed their estimator only 26 pieces but there were 62 pieces shipped. The Wrights denied the charge.

Unable to raise $500 in a strange city, the Wrights returned to Ottawa.

"Even though it means losing everything we ever had, I had to tell the moving company to keep our goods in lieu of payment," said Mr. Wright.

He asked a consumer organization to try to retrieve their wedding album, birth certificates and wedding certificate but the company refused.

Disputes with moving companies arrive daily on the desks of the Consumers' Association of Canada CAC, the Better Business Bureau and government agencies.

"The industry gets a black eye time and again and I can't say it's all undeserved," said George Williams, head of Williams Moving and Storage of Burnaby, a major moving company.

"We have formed a professional movers' group in BC to upgrade standards and hopefully this professionalism will be picked up by the Canadian Association of Movers in Ottawa.

One technique of dishonest movers is giving low estimates.

"We had an example the other day when we quoted people $1,400 for a move to Cranbrook in eastern B.C. and another company quoted $700. They went with the low estimate and when the good arrived found the bill had jumped to $1,400."

Vince Forbes, manager of the Vancouver branch of the Better Business Bureau, said if a company is found to be deliberately setting estimates low it can be charged under the Trade Practices Act.

Forbes said he wonders how many times a delivery is made on an evening or a Saturday when the customer has no access to further cash.

"In such cases, the goods are simply sent to the warehouse where they incur a storage charge," he said.

CAC manager David Hinks objects to the payment on delivery because it means customers have to hand over their money before inspecting their goods.

One way to avoid distress is to pay in advance but it doesn't always work. CAC is handling a case in which a woman paid $627 in advance for a move to Vancouver from Toronto. When the goods arrived the mover demanded his cheque and wouldn't believe the woman had already paid.

He hauled the shipment off to a warehouse and after a week the woman owed another $106 for storage. The agent in Toronto hadn't told the agent here the woman had paid.

Hinks said one of the problems is the people who are hired to do the work.

"The drivers do OK but the loaders don't. It's not a high-status job and you're not going to attract many conscientious people."

He said if a customer goes to the courts he risks losing his case and paying thousands of dollars in legal fees to the moving company.

Hinks said people planning a move should check with the Better Business Bureau, get the complete name and address of the carrier and the destination agent and make sure there is money at the other end.

He also advised that packing and loading should be supervised. The customer should write "subject to hidden damage" on the inventory, having first noted any visible damage or loss in the sheet in writing.

The carrier should be notified promptly of any damage.

And finally the CAC advised:

"If there is one guiding rule to cover all aspects of moving from a consumer's point of view it is: Be aggressive and read the fine print."

Heat Bad for Heart

DUESSELDORF, Germany (UPI) — People who like it warm in their homes are prone to fall victim to heart attacks, circulatory troubles and other ailments, says Prof. Peter Pichotka, a public health department official.

Before a recent health congress, Pichotka gave the "ideal room temperature" as 18 degrees centigrade (64 degrees fahrenheit). He said, however, that most people feel most comfortable at 21 degrees centigrade (70 degrees fahrenheit).

Hobbies on Display

Hobby projects by members of five Saanich area societies will be on display at the Saanich fairgrounds Nov. 16 and 17.

Small machinery and artifacts from the past collected by Saanich Artifacts Society members will be seen, and skills will be demonstrated by Model Engineers Society and Violin Makers Society members.

Other displays will be featured by the Saanich Pioneer Society and North Saanich Agricultural Society.

Home baking and Christmas decorations will be for sale, and teas will be served on both Saturday and Sunday.

Fair times will be 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. Saturday and 1 p.m. to 5 p.m. Sunday.

HEAVY EARTH compactor is handled with little struggle by University of Alberta graduate Lynda Jean Newton. Miss Newton, 23, is the first woman hired by Alberta Government Telephones as a casual laborer. She's working on a project in Red Deer.

Mom Short on Fat Diet

Last night before the children had taken a bite of dinner, in a series of rapid motions my son swapped his mashed potatoes for his sister's green beans and took her pork chops in return for his pineapple jello.

"Now just HOLD ON!" I exclaimed, confiscating the pork chop in mid-air. "What do you think you're DOING!"

Over their protests, I redistributed everything but my daughter's pork chops, which in the ensuing confusion had dropped onto the floor and been eaten by the dog, who, I believe, traded three dog biscuits for it.

"Do you realize what you can get from eating nothing but mashed potatoes and pineapple jello?" I asked my daughter.

"What can I get?"

"FAT!" I exclaimed.

Quite unwittingly, I seem to have given birth to a diminutive Mr. and Mrs. Jack Spratt. Left to their own dietary whimsies, my son would exist on a strict regimen of broiled sirloin steak and raw cauliflower, while my daughter would wallow about in a double portion of lasagna with a side order of butter patties.

While I am understandably afraid that my daughter, unless strictly supervised, will spend the rest of her life not only going to concerts alone, but having to buy two seats, my son's diet bothers me as well.

Aside from the economic impossibility of feeding him raw meat three times a day, I am not at all certain that I want to give a goodnight hug to a body that is hard as granite, taut as a bowstring, and covered with rippling bronzed muscles.

Not that he lets me hug him, of course. He insists that I hit him in the stomach instead.

Another Day For Charles

LONDON (UPI) — The world's most eligible bachelor celebrates his 26th birthday today, although you'd never know it from his working schedule.

It will be a day like any other for Charles Philip Arthur George, Prince of Wales, Duke of Cornwall, Earl of a number of other things and England's future king.

But it is typical of the prince that one London newspaper Wednesday termed "too good to be true" that even his official birthday photographs have been taken by a pretty woman.

Mrs. Carole Cutner, slim and darkhaired, snapped pictures at a dinner celebrating the jubilee of her daughter's school. One of the guests was Prince Charles. He saw Mrs. Cutner's pictures, liked them and asked to see more.

"They particularly liked the portraits I had taken," Mrs. Cutner said. "I was asked to Buckingham Palace for a preliminary sitting."

She said she found the experience "terrifying," but was invited back to take Charles' official birthday portraits, both in civilian clothes and in the prince's uniform as a Royal Navy lieutenant.

Both navy and royal duties will occupy Charles' birthday, a Buckingham Palace spokesman said.

Charles will spend the day at Yeovilton Air Station, where he is based, then journey to London for the Queen's palace reception for delegates to the North Atlantic Assembly, composed of parliament members from NATO countries.

The "too-good-to-be-true" accolade came from Audrey Whiting in Wednesday's Daily Mirror. She said she went looking for faults in this young man who "seems never to have put a foot wrong."

"He epitomizes the son every parent longs for — upstanding, athletic, impeccably mannered and intelligent, interested not only in the arts but in science as well," she wrote.

But she said one of his intimates confessed that Prince Charles "can be ruddy bossy and even pretty autocratic at times," is inclined to monopolize conversations and "can be more than a little stubborn."

But palace insiders say Charles is in no hurry, preferring to play a very wide and very pretty field. Some sources believe the Prince already has chosen the girl, but there was general agreement that Charles is so touchy and secretive about his private life that no one will know her name until an official announcement is made.

Spence Bay Arctic Fashion Centre

CALGARY (CP) — Spence Bay, may never replace Paris or New York as a fashion centre but a group of women is putting the eastern Arctic community of 406 on the fashion map.

The women, supported by a $30,000 Canada Manpower grant and funds from the Canada Council and territorial government, design and make fashions based on the traditional clothing of Canada's Eskimos.

They brought a fashion exhibit from Spence Bay 1,350 miles south to Calgary this fall to show the rest of Canada that Eskimo clothing has applications in the south as well as the north.

The designers and models were accompanied by artisans and an array of carvings, artifacts, pictures, films and food.

Spence Bay has no bank, library, hotel or heavy industry but the people have created a clothing and craft industry which has won them world-wide acclaim from artists, collectors and fashion critics.

The project began three years ago when the wife of the area's economic development officer suggested marketing local clothing and art.

Eighteen women now work out of a converted house to produce clothes and art work.

There are some problems unique to Arctic fashion, including high freight rates. Wool for the clothing is flown from Prince Edward Island.

The women have skills ranging from seamstress to plant-gatherer. The sewing machines and materials are supplied by the federal government and the profits go to the Eskimo people.

Designs include Mother Hubbards adapted for use from toppers to patio wear, flattering coats of stroud or duffel elaborately decorated with nature-dye embroidery, furs and pantsuits suitable for apres-ski.

Among the projects planned for this year are creation of fishing flies out of polar-bear hair, dyed in a rainbow of colors, and Arctic perfume.

The perfume would be distilled from the pure essences of Arctic flowers, and while there is some joking in the community about the plan — some have dubbed the product "Tundra No. 5" — no one seems to doubt that it will be a success.

Change for Housewives Women's Council Target

elizabeth forbes

Going back to the plea for recognition of housewives in the Canada Pension Plan, as made by June Menzies, member of the National Advisory Council on the Status of Women, at the recent Women's Festival, sponsored by Victoria's Status of Women Action Group (SWAG), let me continue where I left off in my last column.

Menzies touched on three areas in which women's (including housewives') position must change before they can be considered to have equal status with men.

First, within the institution of marriage; second, on a social, political and taxation basis and third, in the economy.

All three areas are important. At the same time they must be carefully examined, especially within the context of the basic principles which now govern the Canada Pension Plan. And especially where the participation of housewives in the plan is advocated.

Organizations and individuals asking for this participation appear to have two goals in mind.

One, to give recognition to work in the home as regular employment and two, to provide some measure of financial independence to the housewife.

Of course, there are a number of alternative suggestions that would meet the above goals to a greater or lesser degree.

These are separated into two main groups, in a discussion paper on Housewives and The Canada Pension Plan, presented by national health and welfare minister Marc Lalonde, to a House of Commons standing committee on health, welfare and social affairs, last April:

- Those which would be most consistent with the basic principles currently governing the CPP, and
- Those which would introduce new principles in the plan.

Attempts are also made in the paper to identify some of the main alternatives which fall under the two main categories and to describe the principal issues arising out of those alternatives.

First, there are what the paper classifies as mandatory alternatives: contributions on earnings, splitting pension credits and splitting pension credits in case of marriage breakdown.

In connection with contributions on earnings it states that "it would presumably be possible to create a cash income for the housewife by requiring the husband to pay her a wage for work in the home."

At the same time the question is asked, "how many Canadian families would consider it acceptable for the government to intervene in this way in the financial arrangements made between husband and wife."

Or, for that matter, "how many families would consider it acceptable to be required to make additional Pension Plan contributions from the same level of family income?"

Unless answers to those questions "were to be much different than anticipated," it is suggested, "there would not seem to be much point in pursuing this alternative."

Splitting pension credits is specifically recommended in the report of the Royal Commission on the Status of Women — "crediting to the spouse remaining at home a portion of the contributions of the employed spouse and those contributions made by the employer on the employed spouse's behalf."

In the case of a housewife, this would involve taking half of the contributions based on the husband's salary, and crediting that to a record of earnings in the name of the wife.

It might also mean that where both husband and wife are working, the earnings of each could be added together, divided by two, with equal portions then credited to the individual CPP records of each.

"Such an approach would probably be in harmony with the notion that many Canadians hold with respect to the nature of the family unit," the discussion paper suggests.

It would also be, in the words of the Royal Commission "in keeping with the concept of marriage as a partnership."

This approach therefore, would go some distance toward meeting the goals which have been identified, without requiring a drastic departure from the basic principles which now underlie CPP.

However, it does raise certain problems. Perhaps the most fundamental being the fact "that in many cases, families would have to get along with less income and less protection than they would have received had all the contributions been credited to the wage earner."

Families in which the husband was the sole wage earner would have less protection against the effects on family income of the disability or death of the breadwinner.

Since a disability pension and a widow's pension are based, in part, on the amount of contributions, these benefits would clearly be lower if part of the husband's contributions had been credited in the name of his wife. (The size of orphans and disabled contributors' child benefits would not be affected, however).

Financial disadvantages could also occur at the time of retirement for families in which the husband has been only wage earner and is substantially older than the wife.

If the pension credits had been split, then the couple would have, on the husband's retirement only part of the retirement income arising out of the contributions on his wages, until such time as the wife also reached retirement age.

Therefore, while this approach is attractive in many respects the paper asks — to what extent are individual contributors (male or female) ready to accept the idea that pension credits based on the wages they have been paid should be split in the manner?

Also, to what extent are Canadian families willing to accept less of one type of protection in order to obtain more of another?

These alternatives all spawn arguments that should be considered, and debated until the uncertainties are cleared away and the path is wide open toward recognition of housewives (as June Menzies put it) as "economically productive, not economically parasitical."

In my next and final column on these issues I will tell you how the Lalonde discussion paper deals with pension credits and marriage breakdown and with the final alternative of voluntary coverage for housewives.

Males Organize To Oppose Lib

WINOOSKI, Vt. (UPI) — Fearing that women's liberation might force them to cook dinner, some 200 male students at St. Michael's College have organized the "Fraternal Order of Male Chauvinists" and hope to establish chapters across the country.

The organization began partly as a joke and partly, "as a glorified excuse to get drunk," said Michael Levesque, one of the organizers.

But the members have become more serious.

"It's pointing toward the direction that we're going to be serving the dinner while the wife carves the Thanksgiving turkey," Levesque said. "That scares us.

"The people at our meeting don't think too highly of women's liberation," said Levesque, a senior from Essex Junction. "Most of them think it's getting a little out of hand."

The group is attempting to arrange a debate on the subject: "Are women inferior?" A male psychology professor has agreed to take the affirmative, and a woman professor who is active in the campus feminist union is being asked to oppose him.

Several members of the feminists union demonstrated outside the first meeting of the organization last week, but most co-eds seem to be ignoring the movement.

Future meetings will be held in an off-campus bar. "We'll let only men in," said Steve Shover, a senior. "We'll sit down and play poker or get drunk or whatever people want to do to relieve their tensions."

"We're trying to bring a little unity to the males on campus," said Levesque, who added that the title was chosen because "they'll call you a chauvinist for anything."

"Women should be treated like women," said Kevin Ryan, a junior from Fair Lawn, N.J. "We're sick of being told we're chauvinists for opening doors."

But why did Levesque think having men serve dinner was such a bad idea?

"I don't have any logical arguments," he said. "That's just how we feel. I mean I can't imagine my mother cutting the turkey while Dad walked around in an apron."

Same Old Story

DEAR ABBY: For the last eight years I have been "engaged" to a married man. I know you've heard this story a thousand times, but he says we will be married as soon as he can get a divorce. Lately I am beginning to wonder.

He is 42 and I am 29. When I met him he said he was separated from his wife. Later on he said he was trying for a divorce but she was contesting it.

He claims he lives like a gypsy, staying with one relative after another, and sometimes with friends. I have never had a phone number where he can be reached in case of emergency. And no address either.

He owns his own business and has given me some expensive gifts, but I want to get married and live a normal life. I used to tell my family and friends that I was too young to get married, but at 29, that's a ridiculous excuse.

How do you figure this, Abby? Am I just a slow learner? I promise to take any advice you give me. Please help me. — Tired of Waiting.

DEAR TIRED: I think you've been used. Don't waste any more of your valuable time on him, dear. Quietly relocate, and make sure he doesn't have your phone number or address.

DEAR ABBY: I am a widow in comfortable circumstances. My daughter divorced a very wealthy man six years ago. (He was in oil). She got a good settlement, seeing as how she caught him in the act with another woman.

I live in Colorado and my daughter lives in Texas. She had written that she was serious about a bachelor (also in oil) so I wasn't surprised when she called and invited me to the wedding.

She really went all out with a catered sit-down dinner for 200 guests. At the reception someone complimented my daughter on the elegance of the affair and she said: "Oh, Mother is paying for all this." Then she laughed and said: "I was only kidding."

My question: Was she? Am I obligated to pay for her wedding? Her father and I paid for the first one. Puzzled

DEAR PUZZLED: Are YOU kidding? Certainly not. You weren't consulted about the plans or the cost, so forget it.

DEAR ABBY: My husband and I have a healthy, handsome, little five-year-old son. When people ask us when we're going to get a brother or sister for Joshua, we say: "We don't plan on having any more." (It's true. We happen to think that one is enough.)

Well, you should hear some of the remarks we get. "How can you raise a child all alone? You're selfish, you're lazy! You owe it to yourself to try for a girl. A mother isn't really a mother unless she has a daughter. You'll regret it later on!"

Our relatives and friends keep pressuring us to change our minds, but we're really very happy with one child. What can we say in our defence?—Mother of one.

DEAR MOTHER: What makes you think you have to say anything? Tell them you don't care to discuss it—then change the subject.

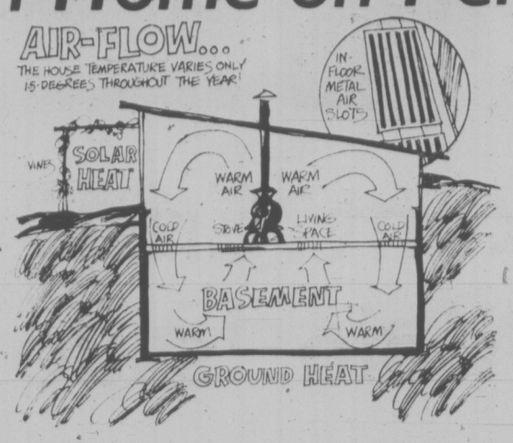
Warm Home on Pennies a Year

By JOHN SHUTTLEWORTH

I have to chuckle every time I hear one of the government's (or industry's) "experts" rattle on today about energy conservation. "Give us 20 billion (or 100 billion or a trillion) dollars," they say, "and, by 1985 (or 1990 or 2200), we'll be able to design and build houses that use only half (or one-third or one-fourth) the energy our homes now consume."

I chuckle because a fellow named Wendell Thomas has already made the breakthrough that those self-styled experts are looking for. He did it 26 years ago. On an investment of practically nothing. And, from the day that his ideas were put into operation, he spent not one single cent on fuel to either warm or cool his home!

It was in 1948 that Wendell and his wife retired to the Celo Community in the mountains of western North Carolina. The couple bought an acre of land for $100 (those were the "good ole days") and set to work building a 32 by 24 foot shed-roof dwelling.



"It was a moderately solar-heated house," says Thomas, "but its main feature was the way I arranged vents in the main floor and set up a Rite-way heater in the building."

What Wendell did was: (1) he dug a generous basement under the house, (2) he cut a series of vents in the building's main floor just inside the exterior walls and (3) he installed a large grill — again, in the main floor — and his wood-burning heater right in the centre of the dwelling. This rather unusual arrangement of vents and heater set up a very interesting circulation of air in the Thomas home.

During the winter, cold air flowed down the inside of the building's exterior walls, through the vents around the outside of the main floor and into the basement. There, since the surrounding ground was warmer than the outside atmosphere, the air was somewhat heated and began to rise back to the main level through the grill in the centre of the house. As it passed the wood-burning stove, it was warmed still more. This made the air flow up to the dwelling's roof where it spread out to the exterior walls, was cooled and began to sink to the basement again.

The normal winter air circulation in the Thomas home, then, took the shape of a giant two-storey doughnut that rolled up in the middle and down around the outside.

In the summer, this doughnut was still there . . . but it flowed the other way. The air on the main floor just inside the building's exterior walls was warmed by the heat coming in through those walls . . . and it rose. As it did so, it pulled cooler air up from the basement to take its place. Which, in turn, pulled more air across the basement's floor . . . still more air down through the central grill . . . and so on.

Thus the two-storey doughnut of atmosphere in the Thomas house sank in its centre and rose around the outside during the summer . . . and the main floor was cooled with "air conditioning" from the basement.

Wendell says, "On the coldest winter mornings, when the temperature outside was zero, the temperature inside — with no heat in the stove — was about 50 degrees F. A fire in the stove would raise that to 70 degrees within 10 minutes and, at nine in the morning, we'd let the blaze go out. The sun would then take over and keep the temperature of the house above 70. What little wood we burned was cut from our own property and we spent not a cent on fuel. During the summer, it never got more than 85 degrees in the place."

Wendell Thomas' first "self-heating-self-cooling" house, then, worked a whole lot better than approximately 99.9 per cent of all the dwellings ever constructed in North America. Still, he figured that he could do better and — in 1957 — Thomas constructed an improved version of his home.

This second house had all the good features of the first and, in addition, was set right down into the ground on its north and west sides. No windows at all were placed in the north wall and the glass used on the other sides of the building was two — and even three — panes thick for insulation.

Result? Temperatures inside the house never drop below 60 degrees F in the winter and never climb above 75 degrees during the summer. That's a maximum variation of only 15 degrees year-round!

And there's more: Thanks to the largely vertical circulation of air in the Thomas home, the upstairs walls never dry out and crack in the winter. Nor does the basement become damp and moldy during the summer. Wendell's house, in short, works the way a house should work.

So, all you "experts," take note. You don't need umpteen zillion dollars and forty-seven years of paper shuffling to develop and test a comfortable dwelling that can be heated and cooled for mere pennies a year. Wendell Thomas has moved away now, but he left two versions of such a house behind him in the mountains of western North Carolina. And they're still working just fine, thank you.

For a more complete and illustrated description of the construction and operation of the Thomas homes, send 10 cents and a stamped, self-addressed long envelope to The Mother Earth News, c/o Victoria Times, 2621 Douglas St. Ask for Reprint No. 39, "The Self-Heating, Self-Cooling House."

YOUR HOROSCOPE

Forecast for Friday, Nov. 15

By SYDNEY OMARR

ARIES (March 21-April 19): You get chance for greater freedom of movement—and expression. You perceive potential—and beauty. You hear sounds and see colors in vivid manner. You get out of shell and others say this is a new you. Whatever, you are invigorated, replenished and it is all to the good!

TAURUS (Apri 20-May 20): You may be tempted to spend, spend and "buy" your way. This would be an error. Know it and be aware of "bottom line." Check details, fine points and between the lines. One who is supposedly an ally does not have necessary capital.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20): In making changes, be sure you stay within rules, regulations. Avoid tendency to "climb over" one in authority. Deal with Virgo and another Gemini. Be analytical. Discover reasons. Take nothing for granted. Legal aspects are important.

CANCER (June 21-July 22): You deal with those who know you, understand and wish for your success. Be diplomatic—show appreciation for support. Taurus, Libra probably will be involved. Maintain calm, steady pace—and keep health, diet resolutions. Employment is emphasized.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22): Involvement is keynoted. You find that more people seem concerned with where you are and what you do. Pisces, Virgo individuals are spotlighted. Your creative resources are called upon—and you utilize them.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22): What appears a setback will boomerang in your favor. Accent is on what is solid, price, appraisal and property. Stick to familiar ground. Refuse to sell yourself short. One in authority is due to lend support.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22): Finish rather than begin project. Strive to reach more people with efforts, product. Information obtained from relatives may need checking. Be aware of it and act accordingly. Sagittarian plays key role.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21): Be independent and original, not rash or arrogant. You get some good money advice—key is to be receptive. Don't chase rainbows with your cash. Instead, be aware and insist on seeing, feeling, knowing. Get money's worth, not mere promise of pie in sky.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21): Cycle is such that you can trust a hunch. You pierce veil of mystery. You gain access to special information. You teach and learn—and an influential person will share knowledge. If you own property, value is on upswing. That may be verified very soon, to your surprise!

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Light touch is essential. Otherwise, you frighten prospects and chase allies. Go easy—be subtle. Display humor, versatility. Get behind the scenes—and work quietly. Co-operate with hospital, charitable organization.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): A friend may make a promise — and be sincere about it. But indications are that there is no substance to it. Means the cash isn't there—know it and prepare elsewhere. Another Aquarian, Leo and Scorpio could be in picture. Don't take lovers' quarrel too seriously!

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Reserve strength, energy comes to your side. You enjoy! There is added vitality. You receive meaningful compliment from member of opposite sex. Significant changes occur. Your own style is appreciated. Personal magnetism flows—Gemini, Virgo are likely to be involved.

IF TODAY IS YOUR BIRTHDAY you are musical, a natural psychologist, capable of persuading, being a diplomat and, most important, you have the capacity to love. June was important—next year you are freed of emotional burdens. Taurus, Libra individuals play significant roles in your life. LID PRODUCER PLANS REFUNDS

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — The Kerr Glass Manufacturing Corp. said Tuesday it will make refunds to consumers for home canning lids that failed to seal, and will reimburse home canners for food losses.

The refunds will be on lids sold between November, 1973 and August, 1974.

"We have now concluded that a relatively small, but unknown quantity of lids, which were not of the quality either we or our customer expects, were inadvertently shipped to a few states," said William A. Kerr, president.

"Consistent with our history of standing behind the products that bear our name, we are preparing a program for payment direct to consumers for Kerr lids that failed to seal and for food lost as a resulty of such failure.

"I personally regret the difficulties our customers suffered because of our sealing failure."

Kerr said a lid sealing compound changed in accordance with federal directives did not at first produce consistent results, and was modified for 1974 shipments.

He said not all the lids containing the unmodified compound were removed from shipments to Washington, Oregon, California, Michigan, Minnesota, Ohio, Wisconsin, Idaho, Pennsylvania and Illinois.

Victoria: Rent Crisis The Main Issue

The rental housing crisis and inflation-fighting awareness of the need to keep property taxes in check have emerged as the only real issues in Victoria's civic election on Saturday.

Voters will be asked to choose four aldermen from 11 candidates. The list includes two candidates who have run unsuccessfully in several previous elections, four who will be making their first attempt at an aldermanic seat and three incumbents.

Six of the 11 are also seeking one of two vacant Victoria seats on the Capital Region Board.

Following the first-ever enumeration of voters for a mucipal election and the automatic registration of tenants, the city's list of eligible voters shows a 50 per cent increase this year — from 22,983 to 36,017.

Last year's voter turnout for a mayoralty election was 38.7 per cent.

Following is a list of the candidates and their platforms:

Automobile dealer Cornell Babie, of 1483 Tolmie Avenue, is running for a city council seat because he says he disagrees with the way the city's affairs have been managed for several years "and I feel that council requires some new blood, new faces as soon as possible."

He has no specific platform because he is interested in "all aspects of orderly city development and management based on each proposal to council."

Says Babie: "I do not believe in making promises because the decision for overall development must be made by council as a whole rather than by individual members.

"My bid for council has been relatively low-profile and is not funded or sponsored by any political group or organization — and therefore I feel I will represent all the citizens of Victoria fairly without being bound or committed to anyone."

Ald. Sam Bawlf, 30, of 5789 Brookhill Road, a businessman known for his involvement in the restoration of several old buildings, is seeking his second term on council. He is chairman of three city committees — central area development and transportation planning, central business district advisory committee and heritage advisory committee.

Bawlf says he is committed to continued efforts toward solving Victoria's key problems, including an increased supply of rental housing; improving bus service and easing traffic problems; rehabilitating the city's neglected areas; and preserving Victoria's "fine architectural heritage."

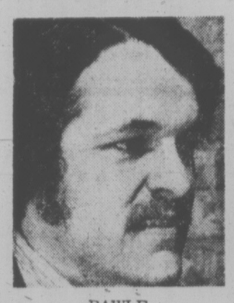
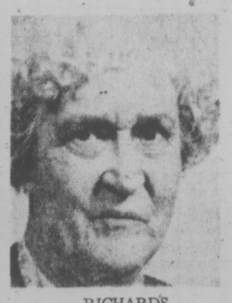
He claims this can be accomplished by pushing the provincial government to pay its fair share of taxes in the city, and by harnessing assistance and funds available though various federal and provincial programs such as the Neighborhood Improvement Program, winter capital works assistance and waterfront beautification.

Robert Ellis, businessman, of 1521 Shasta Place, has contested several previous city elections and more than once has missed election by a slender vote magin.

As a native Victoria, he says he has seen "serious mistakes" made in the planning of the city, and adds: "Despite the advice and expertise of several excellent public servants, many good ideas are strangled by red tape."



BAWLF



RICHARDS

Ellis promises he would attempt to snip through much of this tape, particularly what he considers cumbersome planning approval procedures, in an attempt to stimulate housing development.

He says his 16 years' experience in the banking, credit and investment field would be an asset to the city.

"In the conduct of city business there is a time to listen and a time to act. I know how to listen well and I know when to act and how to get things done."

Ald. Percy Frampton, an accountant, of 112 Montreal Street, is a city council veteran having been first elected an alderman in 1966. He is chairman of the housing, neighborhood improvement and community relations committee.

If re-elected, Frampton says he would strive for "progressive civic development within fiscal capability," with priorities including the encouragement of light industry, a "commonsense" approach to planning and maintenance of a a healthy downtown core.

He says council must concentrate on providing rental housing for people on lower incomes, through co-operation with the federal afd provincail governments.

For residents whose gross annual incomes are $8,000 or less, he would like to see rent subsidies in cases where the actual rental paid are over 25 per cent of income.

Frampton, who is also seeking a regional board seat, pledges to remain "constantly aware of my responsibilities whatever the issues during the next two years."

Consulting engineer Murray Glazier, 39, of 2532 Orchard Avenue, believes his 14 years' of professional experience, principally in the municipal field of sewage and water systems, roads and land-use planning, have given him a "background in urban problem solving" that would be valuable in civic service.

The experience was supplemented, he says, by three years on the board of Central Mortgage and Housing Corporation in Ottawa, during which he helped bring about extensive amendments to the National Housing Act, including the Neighborhood Improvement Program.

Says Glazier: "The very qualities of this region which make Victoria so desirable as a living place are bringing complex problems to urban government.

"Urban growth demands protection of the very fragile natural and social environment and at the same time an accommodation of that growth — very especially in the fields of housing and land-use planning."

Ald. Alfred Hood, a retired army officer, of 1710 Rockland Avenue, has completed three years and his first full term on city council. He is currently acting mayor, acting chairman of the Capital Region Board and an executive member of the Union of B.C. Municipalities.

Hood says while the present council has made "considerable progress," much remains to be done and he would like to be involved in that work.

"Of particular concern is the current housing crisis, the solution of which requires the closest co-operation between federal, provincial and municipal authorities," he says. "During this period of excessive inflation there is also an urgent need to ensure financial accountability and controlled taxation."

He says the city's planning process launched last year must be completed and the official regional plan adopted to permit "orderly and disciplined development" both in a city and regional context.

Hood is also seeking election as a regional director.

Lorimer Defends 'Freeze'

Municipal Affairs Minister Jim Lorimer said Wednesday freezing assessment rolls at the 1974 level will enable the government to deal more effectively with hardship cases this year.

Problems under 1974 assessment rolls "are now known and action can be taken to resolve them, whereas with 100 per cent assessment, we don't know what problems there would be."

He listed a variety of considerations, including mill rate structure and inequitable assessments as "matters to be looked into before going forward with our heads down" on 100 per cent assessments.

"We do not have the luxury of playing Russian roulette throughout the province," he said, criticizing the former Socred government tax assessments.

He made the comment during the second day of debate on the government's Assessment Amendment Act which delays for at least one year a switch to assessment at real property value.

Socred MLA Bob McClelland, Langley, described the legislation as a "real farce" which demonstrates the government's "ignorance" of tax procedures.

"The government stormed ahead and the taxpayer is the loser again," said McClelland.

Several non-Socred opposition members said the old assessment procedures, established by the former Social Credit administration created unjust and inequitable assessments in the province but they criticized the NDP for not moving positively to correct those inequities.

Liberal Pat McGeer (Vancouver-Point Grey) said B.C. needs a government with "more backbone" to tackle the necessary changes.

What's behind Finbar's Color TV Guarantee?

When we first sat down to put together our supplemental guarantee, we wanted to give our customers something of value. With so many companies having abused the term, most "warranties" are judged by people as meaningless or a selling gimmick.

And rightfully so.

But at Finbar's things are different. The only color TVs we sell are Hitachi. These 100% solid state sets are considered by many experts to be the finest available in the world. And we at Finbar's are CONVINCED that you can't buy a better set. That's why Hitachi products are all we sell.

It is this confidence in quality that forms the basis of our guarantee. We give two years parts and labor on the picture tube, and five years parts and labor on everything else in the set. Sounds too good to be true? Well, it's as simple as that, and we think it's the best coverage in Canada.

Best of all, Finbar's doesn't charge you extra for this protection. It's included for the regular retail price.

So when you're ready for a color TV, come see Hitachi at Finbar's. The best sets, with the best written guarantee.

PRE-ELECTION DISCLOSURE COMING

Attorney-General Alex Macdonald said Wednesday he will bring in legislation during the current session making it mandatory for candidates to make public financial disclosures filed under the terms of the Public Officials and Employees Disclosure Act.

He said in an interview that candidates now are required to file statements on their financial interests but these statements need not be made public until the candidate is actually elected.

The attorney-general said disclosures from candidates should be made public as soon as they declare themselves candidates.

Macdonald said he realizes the proposed legislation would be too late to affect Saturday's municipal elections but it would be in effect for subsequent elections.

Six Candidates Bid For Double Chances

has enunciated a campaign strongly opposed to the principle of elected representatives having any private involvement in land matters during their term of office.

"A council member, no doubt, has more foresight and direct information on important city bylaws, upcoming zoning issues and land acquisition," he states.

"Such knowledge could mean a very favorable combination of all sorts of direct or indirect personal gain and is a continuous conflict of interest for those in this position."

Besides special emphasis on easing the housing shortage, Kop says he would support "controlled and intelligent" city planning free of spot zoning in residential areas; housing projects for senior citizens with integrated medical, food and recreational services; more recreation facilities for young people; and work projects which would employ able-bodied welfare recipients and "eliminate them from welfare payrolls."

Businesswoman Kay Lines, of 27 South Turner Street, is one of two candidates endorsed by the Association of Concerned Electors. An advocate of greater citizen involvement in the planning process, she says: "Council and citizens working together can harness enough energy to influence the quality of growth and development.

"At present, homes, cities and highways are designed without the involvement of the major users."

Lines would like to see a Victoria initiative in the housing field to "chop out archaic building codes that hamper fast action." To reconcile increased pressure on housing with limited land available, the city should consider "low, step-stacked cluster housing and low-cost housing shells that people can afford and finish themselves."

Of vital importance, says Lines, is the need to provide rental units at reasonable cost and to protect senior citizens from the problems of inflation.

"Victoria cannot continue to be a city of shopkeepers; secondary industry must be encouraged," she argues.

Lines is also seeking a seat on the Capital Region Board.

Margaret Richards, housewife, of 901-740 Burdett, has been a regular contestant in city elections of recent years. In her 1974 bid, she again stresses that special consideration must be given to the rights and needs of the elderly.

"Senior citizens should have the minimum of anxiety regarding health and finance. They should have free, or almost free, spectacles, hearing aids and dentures. Some elderly people who can just afford meat cannot afford the teeth to chew it with."

Richards says her recent experience as the tenants' representative on the Greater Victoria Landlord and Tenant Advisory Bureau left her "appalled" at the critical shortage of rental accommodation. City council must make the maximum effort toward easing this situation she feels.

Extensive travel "on three continents" and three years as a member of Victoria's Advisory Planning Commission have contributed to her special interest in city planning, she states.

Ann Tarasoff, seamstress, of 902-701 Esquimalt Road, is the official candidate of the Capital Region Tenants Association and strongly emphasizes a better deal for tenants in her election campaign.

She says a "crash program" to build 1,200 units of low-rental accommodation is needed to combat the city's "desperate housing shortage."

"We believe the only realistic solution is to have multiple housing built by the public sector on a scale adequate to meet the needs of the people and at payments working people can afford," she says.

Tarasoff advocates evening meetings of city council and its committees; the encouragement of shipbuilding and secondary industry to provide more employment in Victoria; recycling of domestic and industrial waste; and long-range regional planning, including a mass transit system, "to meet the needs of all people and not just the downtown business sector."

Tarasoff is also running for a regional board seat.

John Warren, a welder, of 12-1010 Queen's Avenue, is Lines' running mate on the Association of Concerned Electors ticket. He says through his father (former city parks superintendent Herb Warren), his friends and his own experience he has leaned to "appreciate everything unique and fine about Victoria."

Warren says the city should co-ordinate efforts in the field of new housing construction, which can be done without higher taxation. "It will require intelligent use of federal and provincial programs. There is little such at present."

Active neighborhood participation in neighborhood planning can be achieved through restructuring the Advisory Planning Commission and "direct links to the planning department," says Warren.

He also advocates holding evening meetings of city council and its committees to enable public attendance; liaison with the regional district and B.C. Hydro to introduce a dial-a-bus system in the city; greater support for the regional recycling program; permanent preservation of heritage sites and buildings; and a policy of appointing only city residents to city boards.

Warren, who was a member of the original Cool-Aid group and a founding member of the Pioneer Housing Co-operative, is also running for the regional board nomination.

Ald. William Tindall is not up for re-election as an alderman but is running for a seat on the Capital Region Board.

Fast Kick Still Best

EDMONTON (CP) — An all-female audience at the Alberta Hospital Auxiliaries Association convention was told Wednesday that a kick in the groin remains the best defence for women trying to ward off male attackers.

"An attacker doesn't play by the Marquis of Queensberry rules," S. Sgt. R. E. Fladager of the Edmonton police said.

The officer said while it may be shocking to some, "we can't put our heads in the sand like ostriches and expect the problem to go away."

FIRE SALE of baked goods really hot from the oven was held in Leduc, Alta., when fire broke out on the main street destroying two buildings and causing $100,000 damage.

Lutheran Magazine

WINNIPEG (CP) — A national popular magazine for Canadian Lutherans, backed by three Lutheran church bodies, is to be launched with three issues in 1975.

The magazine, the National Lutheran, is to provide communication between church bodies and geographical regions and to further a sense of Canadian identity among Lutherans.

The first three issues of the magazine will be distributed to every Lutheran home in Canada. It is hoped readers then will subscribe to a continuing publication.

WAFFLE OUT

REGINA (CP) — The Saskatchewan Waffle, a group which split from the provincial New Democratic Party a year ago, will not run candidates in the next provincial election, a spokesman has confirmed.

Waffle co-president Don Mitchell, speaking at a news conference following the group's closed annual meeting, said members will conduct an information campaign instead.

REWARD OFFER

EDMONTON (CP) — The families of three men who have been missing since Sept. 22 while on a helicopter flight to Grande Prairie, have posted a $3,000 reward for information on the men.

The reward will be paid whether the men are dead or alive.

They Lied to George

CALGARY (CP)—The Society for Prevention of Cruelty to Animals (SPCA) in Edmonton destroyed 58 dogs owned by George Woodward of Didsbury, Alta., only a few hours after the elderly pensioner handed them over to a society official who promised him that the dogs would be placed in homes.

Woodward, forced to move from a rented farmhouse after the owner claimed that his 100 tiny inbred mongrel dogs had ruined the dwelling, learned of the deaths of the dogs Wednesday from a man who went to Edmonton to try to adopt one of the dogs.

Woodward said he was promised by SPCA official H. A. Howard of Edmonton that the society would find homes for the dogs.

The Calgary Herald said Wednesday that two of its reporters witnessed the assurance at the time that the dogs were handed over to the SPCA.

"Everybody has a dream. Mine was to own a resort hotel.

Thanks to Investors, I'm in business for myself."

"I always wanted to run my own show. I had lots of ideas. The only thing that kept me back was money.

I got together with an Investors man and he said he'd help me organize my finances.

I told my Investors Representative I wasn't too knowledgeable about investing. He took me step-by-step through each of the services offered by his company.

It was ten years ago that we worked out a program for me. I'm glad I took the time to think ahead.

I've just sat back and let my investment grow. When I was ready, so was the cash. Now my Investors man and I are working out a new program—for me and my employees. Like they say at Investors. It's easy."

How Investors makes it easier.

Investors brings the kinds of financial planning services usually associated with banks, stock brokers, trust companies and insurance companies to your home. Your Investors Representative is your own personal money consultant.

"The tax man used to take a big bite out of my pay check. I not only pay lower taxes now, I'm set for a comfortable retirement."

"It never even crossed my mind to sit down and discuss my retirement. I've got plenty of years before that day rolls around.

But the Investors Representative suggested I develop a plan with both short term tax benefits and long term retirement benefits. When I'm in my prime and earning more, I should be able to invest more. At the same time I can reduce my income for tax purposes. This further increases the size of my investment.

Then I'd draw up a plan to pay myself a regular, worthwhile income when I'm retired. The more I thought about it the better it sounded.

My Investors Representative told me I could use a tax break. I couldn't have agreed more. I was entitled to invest up to 20% of my earned income in registered plans with a limit of $4,000.

This way, I'm keeping more of the money for myself that would have gone to pay taxes. I save so I can enjoy my retirement."

Get your future going today.

When buying a 1975 car, consider 6 important facts.

Cars equipped with catalytic converters require the use of unleaded gasoline. Unleaded gasoline is not readily available. However, all Ford of Canada carlines have been engineered without catalytic converters and can run on any gasoline—regular, premium or unleaded. Read the full story:

In order to meet the new Canadian exhaust emission standards, some 1975 cars are equipped with a catalytic converter, which is an emission control device that requires the use of more expensive unleaded gasoline.

2 Unleaded gasoline is not readily available.

Although unleaded gasoline may be available at up to 40% of gasoline stations in some major urban centres, it will be substantially less in rural areas. The Department of Industry, Trade and Commerce survey, dated June, 1974, states that on a national basis, unleaded gasoline will not be available at 8 out of 10 stations in Canada, as of October 1, 1974.

3 Government sources had this to say regarding 1975-1976 Canadian emission control standards.

"The Federal Government plans to require emission controls for 1975-model cars in Canada that will produce a further reduction of 5% in exhaust emissions but will neither require use of catalytic converters nor result in any further reduction in fuel economy."

"The new proposed Canadian 1975 automobile emission standards, while they will be more stringent than the present 1973 standards, will not be as stringent as the proposed U.S. 1975 standards."

"The proposed 1975 standards for Canada will not require use of any catalytic converters."

"The federal announcement yesterday said that the 1975 Canadian emission standards 'can be accomplished by the use of such devices as early fuel evaporation, electronic ignitions, and improved carburetors.'"

"If catalytic converters are not required on Canadian cars there will be less of a demand for unleaded gasoline in Canada."

—From a news report published in The Globe & Mail, July 20, 1973.

The Ministry of Transport has stated "that the Ministry intends to enforce in the year 1976, the same automobile exhaust emission standards as are being established for 1975."

—Excerpt from a Department of Transport letter to the Motor Vehicle Manufacturers Association, dated February 20, 1974.

4 All 1975 Ford of Canada carlines have been engineered to run on any gasoline and meet the Canadian emission control standards without requiring catalytic converters.

There's a significant difference between Canada and the United States in exhaust emission standards for 1975 cars.

The Canadian Government decided to adopt more reasonable emission standards than those in the United States, which meant that catalytic converters were not necessary to meet the Canadian standards.

So for 1975, Ford of Canada decided not to follow suit with Ford in the United States—although it would have been much easier (and less costly) to do so.

Ford of Canada's decision to minimize the need for catalytic converters in Canada shows our real concern for you, the motorist.

We decided to offer cars without catalytic converters because a) a catalytic converter could be an extra expense for you, b) the unleaded fuel that's required for catalytic converters is in limited supply in Canada, and, c) unleaded gasoline is more expensive than the lower priced regular.

Now in order to meet the 1975 Canadian exhaust emission standards, without the use of catalytic converters, Ford of Canada invested over $1 million in an extensive program involving significant engineering changes, additional complexity in our assembly plants and other special programs.

The result is that all engines (with the exception of one—the optional 2.8 litre V6), for all 1975 lines of Ford of Canada cars, meet the standards, without requiring catalytic converters, and do so while running on any gasoline—unleaded, premium or the lower priced regular.

Ford of Canada feels that this will mean a lot to motorists who are not able to find unleaded gasoline in their normal driving and fuel-shopping patterns. Particularly, those who live in rural areas, or are travelling to the cottage or ski slopes—where unleaded gasoline availability is substantially less than major urban centres.

5 These "Economy Extenders" have been engineered into every 1975 Ford and Mercury carline.

In addition to the convenience of being able to use any gasoline, anywhere, a number of features, which we call "Economy Extenders", have been engineered into every 1975 Ford of Canada carline. These include: • Solid state ignition that eliminates the points and condenser and improves fuel economy over long periods due to a more stable spark plug performance • Improved engine tuning on many engines which results in better fuel economy and performance • Optimized rear axle ratios that contribute to less engine wear and lower fuel consumption by proper matching to load and use requirements • Steel-belted radial tires that extend tread life and reduce rolling friction for better gas mileage.

In addition, extended service intervals contribute to reduced maintenance requirements, and therefore, lower operating costs.

6 Right now, Ford and Mercury dealers can give fast delivery on cars in stock which run on any gasoline—unleaded, premium or the lower priced regular.

Ford and Mercury dealers can give you fast delivery of a new 1975 car from the large stock they have on hand right now. We're sure there's the model you want, in the colour you want, equipped with the options you want to meet your personal needs. And no matter where you are in Canada or wherever you're going, you can use the gasoline that's available: unleaded, premium or the lower priced regular.

When you choose from a 1975 Ford or Mercury carline, it's nice to know you can settle for any gasoline, anywhere.

The clinic will be held 9:30 to 11:30 a.m. in Oak Bay's Henderson Park Pavilion at 2291 Cedar Hill under the joint sponsorship of Action B.C. and the Victoria YM-YWCA.

Ms. Pruden, well-known through her books, television shows and manuals, did the research for the late President Eisenhower that led to the formation of the President's Council of Physical Fitness.

Founder and director of the Institute of Physical Fitness, she has received recognition of the American Medical Association, honorary degrees and the YMCA award for service to youth.

She and her partner are conducting one-day fitness clinics in various parts of British Columbia.

Between them, they have developed successful programs for groups of all ages, schools, colleges, nursery care centres, prisons and other correctional institutes, mental hospitals, clubs, Y's and recreational camps.

Registrations for the clinic should be made by phoning the YM-YWCA.

MINING MAN SLAMS TAXES

OTTAWA (CP) — Excessive federal income tax on the mining industry represents confiscation without compensation, John L. Bonus, general-manager of the Canadian Mining Association, said Wednesday.

Speaking at the Ottawa Richelieu Club, Bonus said it has become impossible to speak of the mining industry without mentioning taxation.

In the past, the industry had received favorable tax treatment, he said. But new tax laws had considerably modified its financial position.

He said recent measures adopted by British Columbia, Manitoba, Ontario and Saskatchewan, coupled with federal taxes, have made the industry's position almost unbearable.

"The global fiscal load of mining companies could reach as high as 70 per cent and even close to 100 per cent for some of them," Bonus said.

It is generally accepted, he said, that some governments have gone too far with their excessive tax loads and now risk destroying the mining industry.

25 Bodies Recovered

DACCA, Bangladesh (AP) — The bodies of 25 persons have been recovered from the cabin of a passenger launch that capsized in the Dhaleswari River, reports say. Dacca newspapers said the death toll might be more than 200. But police sources said they did not believe the figure would reach that high. They added that at least 100 persons aboard the launch are known to have swum to safety.

U.S. Miners Win Hefty Increase

WASHINGTON (AP) — The striking United Mine Workers (UMW) won a hefty package of wages and benefits from the coal industry in a tentative contract settlement which might reopen the soft-coal mines in the United States within two weeks.

UMW President Arnold Miller predicted his 126,000 members would approve the pact. The union's ratification process is expected to take about 10 days.

In the meantime, the two-day strike that has already idled about 20,000 workers in the steel and railroad industries will continue.

"It's a very good settlement — one I think I can sell to the membership," Miller said in announcing the settlement Wednesday night. He said it would "eradicate some of the gross inequities that have existed for years."

The union's 38-member bargaining council, summoned from the coal fields, meets today to consider the three-year package. Its approval is needed before the proposed contract can be sent out to the members. Under the tentative settlement, miners would receive wage increases of nine per cent the first year and three per cent in each of the next two years. In addition, they would get cost-of-living increases in the second and third year. Miners now earn between $42 and $50 a day.

The contract also guarantees sick leave for the first time, and an increase in pensions from the present $150 a month to $250 at the end of the contract.

Numerous other fringe benefits, including a one-time $80 "inflation catch-up bonus," add up to what appears to be the biggest U.S. labor settlement this year.

The negotiators refused to put a price tag on the agreement, but industry sources said it represented a 46-percent increase in wages and benefits over the three years while union sources figured it as closer to 40 per cent.

Coal prices have quadrupled over the last year and the settlement is likely to lead to further increases.

Guy Farmer, chief negotiator for the Bituminous Coal Operators Association, called the contract expensive, but added: "We hope it will achieve increased productivity and balance off the costs."

The industry had sought in return for higher wages and benefits a reduction in wildcat strikes and absenteeism, to maintain high-level production. The new pact provides for a new grievance procedure to help settle such disputes.

Union officials indicated that the earliest the mines might be reopened is Nov. 25, beginning with the midnight-to-8 a.m. shift.

This is the first time in at least a half-century that a coal contract will be put to a rank-and-file vote and no one is sure how the miners will respond.

The breakthrough in the negotiations came late Tuesday night on the 83rd day of the talks when the coal operators presented the UMW with a new offer that sources said included many concessions. The union responded with a counter-proposal Wednesday and the two sides spent the rest of the day tying up the loose ends.

Region Plan Zips Through

Greater Victoria's regional development plan whisked through third reading at Wednesday's Capital Region Board meeting, but direectors voted to put off final approval until the next meeting.

Sidney director Wilkie Gardner cast the only dissenting vote and a similar vote is expected at the Nov. 27 meeting.

Fun Evening Provided By St. Luke's Players

By AUDREY JOHNSON
Times Staff

For their 100th production and 25th anniversary season, St. Luke's Players set out to provide their audiences with a fun evening.

To this end and appropriately, member Betty Jeanpierre has concocted another old-style melodrama, a mate to one written and produced three years ago.

A Fate Worse Than Death premiered Wednesday and judging by the happy mood of the St. Luke's Hall audience, the Players fully achieved their aim.

The play with its instantly recognizeable plot consits of wall-to-wall cliches and bulges with popular topical jokes, puns, local references and sight gags.

It must be said for the cast that they play for all their worth and with an admirably dead-pan seriousness.

There is the beautiful but dumb blonde heroine, Nellie, (Dorothy Wolff) the object of the villains' (Ron Way and Dave Shearer) conniving; the aged — "I'm not that old" — mother (Clo Dowling).

Then of course there is the hero, Corporal Alan Righteous of the Northwest Mounted Police (Terry Martin) who libels everything we have ever heard about the famous force.

Directed by Dennis Kershaw with a creditable attempt at style and absence of clutter despite a large cast that includes saloon characters, chinese, pirates and citizens, the show moves along at a fair pace.

Interspersed are several songs, all familiar and in period but some with up-to-the minute lyrics. Supplying excellent support at the piano with overtures and accompaniments is Joan Bulmer.

Wednesday night's audience which contained a number of first-year members of St. Luke's Players, sang Happy Birthday and shared a 100th production cake in celebration.

A Fate Worse Than Death will occur again tonight, Friday and Saturday with curtain going up at 8:15 p.m.

38 FACE FIRING SQUAD

MANILA (UPI) — Thirty-eight persons, including seven soldiers, today were sentenced to die before a firing squad for burning two hamlets and killing a woman four years ago.

A military court created under martial law announced the sentence after a six-month trial.

All those convicted were reportedly bodyguards and supporters of a Filipino politician who was tried separately three years ago by a civilian court and sentenced to life imprisonment.

The burning of the two hamlets and the killing of the old woman in May 22, 1970 in Ilocos Sur Province, about 300 miles north of Manila, was reportedly motivated by political vendetta.

MAYOR SLAMS MLA

VANCOUVER (CP) — Mayor Art Phillips said Wednesday that Rosemary Brown (NDP — Vancouver-Burrard) "obviously doesn't know what she's talking about" in criticizing city council for the housing shortage here.

Ms. Brown told the legislature Tuesday that city officials drag their feet on their own housing program.

"The land is there and the city could have done something about it, if it had wanted to," she said.

"She never offered to help in any way in providing housing for the city," Phillips said.

Brown "is unfamiliar with False Creek area although it's in her riding," Phillips said.

DELTA (CP) — A preliminary hearing has been set Jan. 13 for Elery Stephen Long, 29, of Delta, charged with murder punishable by death in connection with the fatal shooting of a member of the Delta Municipal Police.

Prosecutor Al Cliffe said Wednesday Long has made no application for bail.

Staff Sergeant Ronald Edward McKay, 47, was killed by a blast from a shotgun as he approached a house in nearby Tsawwassen.

KAMLOOPS (CP) — British Columbia's only winter agriculture fair ended Wednesday with a record Canadian price being paid for the champion 4-H lamb.

Spokesmen for the 35th Annual Winter Fair of the Kamloops Exhibition Association said a lamb raised by Bill Robillard of Kamloops was sold at auction to George Jackson Ltd. of Vancouver for $10 a pound.

The previous national record, fair officials said, was $7 a pound, paid by Woodward's Stores a few years ago.

The annual fair is the province's showcase for 4-H youngsters, those under 21 who raise their own beef and sheep. A separate steer show section for ranchers is included in the fair program.

WEST VANCOUVER (CP) — The upper levels highway was closed for more than an hour Wednesday after a mud slide covered a block-long section. There were no injuries. It was the second time this week the highway was hit by slides.

PRINCE GEORGE (CP) — A tour of Northwestern B.C. by three federal cabinet ministers, which was to start Friday, was cancelled after Revenue Minister Ron Basford entered hospital in Ottawa. Regional development minister Don Jamieson and Transport Minister Jean Marchand were to have made the tour as well.

KELOWNA (CP) — Four Walkerville, Ont., distillery workers were remanded to Nov. 20 Wednesday in a private prosecution in provincial court here by the Hiram Walker Distillery Co.

The crown has refused to prosecute the charges.

The delay results from a dispute over leasehold rights to the land on which the company alleges the workers were picketing when a Canadian National Railway train was halted and a security guard was assaulted Nov. 6.

The remand was requested by company lawyer Howard Berg when the company was unable to prove that it had leased 450 feet of land last week adjacent to CNR tracks outside the company's rail gates.

Earlier, counsel acting for Richard McTeer, John Griffith, Larry Wynnick and Ronald Dickson entered not guilty pleas on charges of assaulting the security guard.

Scholarship Winners Announced

Francis John Welle of 1520 Munro Rd., Sidney; Dawn Marie Rempel of 9205 Jurta Rd., Sidney; Margaret Dew-Jones, 4930 Old West Saanich Rd.; Cathy Oud of 5680 Lochside drive, and Jon Fellows of 5265 Santa Clara Ave.

All received academic scholarships worth $125 to $200.

Winners of $50 scholarships were Nelly Ten-Have of 1498 Keating Cross Rd.; Laurie Querin of 6984 Veyaness Rd.; Bonnie Glover of 5095 Wesley Rd.; Bruce Riggs of 6281 Welsh Rd., and Murray Hedlin of 5867 Old West Saanich Rd.

Certification Altered

Certification of employee groups at Royal Jubilee Hospital has been altered by the provincial labor relations board to include staff of the former Veterans Hospital, now Memorial Pavilion of Jubilee Hospital.

The decision gives jurisdiction to Local 180 of Hospital Employees' Union, Registered Nurses Association of B.C.; International Union of Operating Engineers Local 918, and Health Sciences Association of B.C.

A three-man panel acting for the board and consisting of vice-chairman Jack A. Moore, Graham Leslie and Michael Kramer denied applications for variance by four unions — carpenters, painters, plumbers and electrical workers.

But the decision left the way open for these unions to obtain membership support from hospital workers employed in those trades and to resubmit applications for varying certification.

The adjudicators denied applications by the Hospital Employees' Union, Health Sciences and Nurses for certification of these groups as separate units at Veterans Hospital, and accepted an application by operating engineers to form a single bargaining unit between members employed in the two hospitals.

In its decision, the panel said the appropriate bargaining unit for the four groups of employees is the staff of both hospitals as a single entity, including the Eric Martin psychiatric unit.

But it cited a precedent as qualification of the decision, an Aug. 12, 1974 decision referred to as the Olivetti Canada Ltd. case. In this example, the board said:

"(It) does not allow a union which has established itself in one location or among one group of employees to use that as a base for sweeping other employees into the unit through applications for variance."

Loggers Go to Work Despite Suspension

Loggers at MacMillan Bloedel's Sproat Lake operations, about 10 miles from this Vancouver Island community, are returning to work today in the middle of a unique labor dispute — the men refused to obey a company order to stop working Wednesday.

The company had ordered the men to report to work 15 minutes earlier than usual but the loggers, members of Local 185, International Woodworkers of America, refused and reported at the regular time.

The company suspended 70 loggers but the men went to work anyway, even though they were told compensation benefits in case of injury were invalidated by the suspensions.

Labor Minister Bill King has been asked to intervene.

Sailors Sought

OTTAWA (CP) — The transport department will hold a two-day conference beginning Monday to discuss the growing demand for better qualified sailors in the shipping and fishing industries.

The Mazda 808. The economy never looked better.

Who says you have to be rich to look good? Not Mazda, that's for sure.

Just look at the sleek fastback lines of the stylish Mazda 808. The economy car that doesn't look like one. The Thrifty Coupe starts at only $2999.*

There's a beauty under the hood, too.

Standard on the 808 is a lusty 1600 cc overhead cam 4-cylinder piston engine. Engineered by Mazda to be a penny-pinching power house. So you can travel in fast company and still stick to your budget.

And now for our feature attractions.

Even the lowest-priced Mazda 808 has a most impressive list of standard equipment. Power-assisted brakes with discs up front to reduce brake fade. Whitewall tires. High-back front bucket seats. Centre sports console for your driving gloves. 60 amp/hr heavy-duty battery. Ammeter. Four-speed all-synchromesh manual transmission. Dual headlights. Flow-through ventilation and powerful heater/defroster with 3-speed blower. Rugged coil-leaf spring suspension system.

Our Deluxe Coupe has even more.

Our special edition Deluxe 808 Coupe has all the above features plus electric clock, tachometer, trip-odometer, rear window defroster, simulated wood grain sports steering wheel, high-back front bucket seats that recline, roll-down rear quarter windows and tinted glass.

Now that you know everything the Mazda 808 has, and how little it goes for, you don't have to settle for anything less. See your Mazda dealer today and improve the state of your economy.

He Led Italian Cinema's New Realism

PARIS (UPI) — Italian actor-director-producer Vittorio di Sica, whose realistic films Shoe Shine and The Bicycle Thief won Hollywood academy awards, died Wednesday in Paris, He was 73.

His friend and co-worker, producer Carlo Ponti, announced in Rome that Di Sica died in a private hospital in the French capital.

The cause of death was not disclosed, although Di Sica had been ill in recent years.

The director was to have attended the Paris premiere Wednesday night of his latest film, The Voyage, starring Sophia Loren and Richard Burton.

Di Sica was taken ill last year shortly before beginning work on The Voyage and underwent surgery in Switzerland. It was the first time Di Sica had ever delayed work on a film. But he returned to complete it.

"I am the type who arrives on the set before everyone else and leaves when everyone is already at home," he once said.

Di Sica the director won Oscars in 1947 for Shoe Shine and in 1949 for The Bicycle Thief.

One critic remarked of such films, "Di Sica is the poet of suffering, the spokesman for the poor and the humble of this earth."

As an actor, he co-starred with, and helped make famous, both Gina Lollobrigida and Sophia Loren.

He co-starred with Miss Loren in Two Women, Boccaccio '70 and Yesterday, Today and Tomorrow.

He co-starred with Miss Lollobrigida in Bread, Love and Dreams, and Bread, Love and Jealousy.

A third film in the bread, love and bosomy actress series of the 1950s was Bread, Love and . . ." with Miss Loren.

His credits as a director included Miracle in Milan, Umber to D, Central Station, The Gold of Naples, The Roof, and, more recently, The Garden of the Finzi-Continis.

Di Sica was born July 7, 1901, in the southern Italian town of Sora. He was brought up in Naples and educated in Florence and Rome.

Lolita Seeks a Divorce

FORT COLLINS, Colo. (UPI) — Actress Sue Lyons cited a loss of movie contracts today as a reason for divorcing her Colorado State Penitentiary inmate husband, breaking up a marriage she had said would last forever.

Miss Lyons, who achieved film fame as the star of Lolita, married Gary (Cotton) Adamson, 33, in ceremonies at the prison following a courtship by letters.

"I've been told by people in the movie business, specifically producers and film distributors, that I won't get a job because I'm married to Cotton," she said. "Therefore, right now we can't be married.

"But that doesn't mean love has died. I'll always love him."

Adamson is serving a 40-year sentence for second degree murder and robbery.

Sue has been working as a cocktail waitress in Estes Park, Colo., for the past few months and said she may continue to mix drinks for a living rather than return to films.

"Acting is prostitution of the mind," she said. "I'll take a job if the pay is high enough, but I like what I am doing now."

FOOTBALLER IN GUN DUEL

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Nate Ramsey, a Philadelphia Eagles' defensive back for six years, remains in serious condition with bullet wounds suffered in a gun battle at a West Philadelphia bar during which a suburban Bucks County man was killed.

Police said Ramsey, 33, was shot in the left shoulder and right leg in the shootout at the Caprice Villa Bar early Sunday morning. The dead man was identified as John H. Nelson, 34, of Hilltown, Pa.

Homicide detectives said no charges had been filed against Ramsey. They disclosed he was wearing a shoulder holster, but his gun was not found.

TOWN'S FIREMEN LIVING IN FEAR

BELMONT, Calif. (UPI) — Two dozen firemen are living in fear over their future because they came in contact with a deadly pesticide in an unmarked tank.

Two of the men have already been forced to retire with serious lung ailments. Two more have been put on sick leave because they have brain damage that causes dizziness and fainting.

At least 15 other firemen have had physical problems since that day more than a year ago when they went out on what seemed to be a routine call for help.

Walter Nunes, who had a small paint shop, had found a small unmarked tank he thought would make a good fireplace. He began to pry off the top.

Nunes smelled tear gas that was in the tank to warn people of its deadly contents — methol-bromide, a powerful pest-control agent. Nunes called the fire department.

"We tried to plug the leak," said Fire Chief Richard Weare. "But we started losing men. They were dropping. The hospital didn't know how to treat them until we knew what was in the tank."

After the emergency was over, the firemen took off their gas masks and went home. Only gradually over the months did they realize the great danger they were in.

The men still feel the lingering effects of methol-bromide gas poisoning. They undergo monthly tests that have showed erratic brain waves, loss of memory and other symptoms.

KATHLEEN . . . too pudgy

. . . MORE THAN JUST A PRETTY FACE

SEATTLE, Wash. (UPI) — Kathleen Beth Moore, 22, resigned her Miss Washington title in protest Wednesday after pageant officials noted she was overweight.

Miss Moore said she was asked by the state pageant board last month to lose the 10 pounds she had gained since being named one of the Miss America finalists last September.

She has since lost eight pounds but was discouraged to find "the highest emphasis is on the figure."

"I had been led to believe the Miss Washington contest was not just another beauty pageant and the young woman should be a composite of talent, personality and beauty, with the emphasis on talent," Kathy said.

The pageant board, besides pressuring her to lose weight, was constantly playing big sister and checking up on her, she said.

She had lost 35 pounds before being selected Miss Northshore, a title that propelled her into the Miss Washington contest. She lost that weight by running around Green Lake in Seattle every morning after voice lessons and living on a 500-calorie daily diet.

Miss Moore declined to say how much she now weighs but says that she was greatly overweight as a teenager, when she tipped the scales at 180 pounds.

"My telephone didn't ring a lot in those ays," she added.

Caroline Confesses

NEW YORK — Lady Caroline Townshend testified Wednesday in the annulment suit brought by her multi-millionaire husband, Edgar Bronfman, that she had sexual relations with a doctor last February or March. The doctor, Sheldon Glabman, refused earlier to answer on grounds of self-incrimination whether he had been Lady Carolin's lover.

LOS ANGELES — David Carradine, star of Kung Fu, pleaded no contest Wednesday to charges of malicous mischief and trespass in a bizarre incident in which he smashed his way into a neighbor's home. He was fined $250 and placed on a year's probation.

LONDON — Charles Smith, 73-year-old father of eight, was granted a divorce by a London court Wednesday after exactly 50 years of marriage.

HACKENSACK, N.J. — Two local teenagers have been arrested on charges of setting a Nov. 9 fire which engulfed a whole city block, causing an estimated $2 million in damage and forcing the evacuation of 200 persons. Assistant prosecutor Roger W. Breslin said one of the suspects, aged 13, admitted to two other, smaller fires. "Apparently the kid liked fires," he said.

LIMA, Peru — Basilio Mendoza, 59, and Leoncia Ipana, 74, finally got married after 30 years of living together, four children and 30 grandchildren.

The couple, who said they never knew how old each other was until their wedding day, were united Sunday in a mass ceremony along with 200 other couples.

The ceremony was the largest so far in a Peruvian government program to legalize common law marriages in Lima's slums.

Sex Clinics Under Fire

CHICAGO (Reuter) — Many so-called sex clinics might lighten your wallet more than your sexual difficulties, says a specialist in the field.

Dr. William Masters said that only one in 100 such clinics', or "treatment centres" in the United States are legitimate.

There are cases in which people have been seduced by so-called therapists and where nude encounter groups have taken part in questionable techniques, he said.

There was even an instance in which a woman was introduced into homosexuality because the "therapist" wanted to determine whether she had a latent interest in such activity, Masters said in today's Health, American Medical Association magazine.

Masters said he believed most sexual therapy available in the U.S. might hurt more than help because few people who call themselves sex therapists are anything of the kind.

"Few or none can offer a truly believable promise that they will lighten your sexual difficulties," he said. "They can promise only to lighten your wallet."

MANAGERS STOLE FROM ACTRESS

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Patty Duke's former business manager, Joseph Stitch, 34, of Dallas, pleaded no contest Wednesday to a charge of stealing $34,000 from the actress while he had control of her finances.

Another of Miss Duke's business managers, Robert Brownstein, 33, of Hollywood, earlier was placed on five years probation after pleading guilty to charges he and Stitch siphoned money from Miss Duke's accounts to theirs from October, 1970 to January, 1972.

SOLUTION FRIDAY

The Bridge Expert

By FRED KARPIN

It is to be expected that the calibre of bidding and play in the annual six-session blue-ribbon Life Masters Pairs Championship is very high. It is even higher when the final two sessions take place, for after the first two sessions, more than half the field is eliminated; and after the fourth session, another large cut is made. So when the final two sessions are played, presumably the "cream of the crop" remains.

At the 1972 Summer National Championships, 412 pairs were entered in the Life Masters Pairs Championship. Going into the final two sessions, only 60 pairs had survived the two earlier eliminations. Believe it or not, the bidding described below took place in the final session. It was quite "untypical" of what one would expect from life masters.

Both sides vulnerable. West deals.

NORTH
♠ A K J 10 8 4
♥ 8
♦ 6 5 2
♣ J 5 4

WEST
♠ 9 7 3
♥ Q J 7 5 3 2
♦ 8

EAST
♠ Q 6 5 2
♥ A K 10 6
♦ Q J 10
♣ 6 2

SOUTH
♥ 9 4
♦ A K 9 7 4 3
♣ Q 9 8 7 3

The bidding:

West	North	East	South
2 ♥	2 ♠	4 ♥	5 ♥
Pass	6 ♠	Dbl.	6 NT
Dbl.	Pass	Pass	Redbl.
Pass	Pass	Pass

Opening lead: King of ♣.

The bidding started off in reasonably normal fashion. West's two-heart opening was the "weak" two bid, showing a six-card suit within a hand containing 6-12 high-card points. After North had overcalled with two spades, East gambled a fourth heart bid (this contract would have suffered a one-trick set). Then the "action" started.

South, presumably having a feeling that a slam could be made in one of the minor suits, now made a cue-bid of five hearts (which, according to the books, was supposed to show either the ace or a void in hearts). North, interpreting South's bid as a slam try, now jumped to six spades, feeling that his "almost" solid spade suit warranted this call.

When East doubled this bid, South "retreated" to six no-trump, which was doubled by West. All that one can say about South's redouble is that it was no worse than his two previous calls.

West started off by cashing his king and ace of clubs. Next came a low heart lead, and the defenders took six heart tricks. Thus South went down seven tricks, vulnerable, doubled and redoubled, for a loss of 4000 points.

FUN WITH FIGURES

By J. A. HUNTER

Sam swore when he slipped on a marble and nearly fell. "One of yours?" he asked his son, holding up the offending object.

"I guess so, Dad." Doug nodded. Yesterday I had 45 in all. Reds, blues, and greens. If the blues had been red I would have had twice as many reds as greens, but if the reds had been green I'd have had one more green than blues."

Sam figured it out. You try.

(Answer tomorrow)

Yesterday's answer: LAUGH was 14697 (odd).

Chico Maki Ends Career As Player

Maki, who once set up many goals for Bobby Hull in the 1960s, announced his decision to quit last weekend, only 10 days after reporting for his 14th National Hockey League season with the Hawks.

Maki missed the training season because of a serious accident suffered by his son Michael, 10, on the family farm in early September. The boy lost four toes on his left foot.

The accident and its aftermath hastened Maki's decision to retire. "But this would have been my last season anyway," said Maki. "I planned to quit at 35 and go into business."

Irish Rider Tops

HAYDOCK, England (Reuter) — Irish jockey Pat Eddery clinched the 1974 British riding title Wednesday when Lester Piggott failed to win with his first two mounts on a racing card here.

Ewbank Is Leaving

NEW YORK (AP) — Weeb Ewbank has announced his resignation as vice-president and general manager of the National Football League's New York Jets, effective at the end of the season.

Ewbank cited family considerations as his reason for leaving the sport.

Ewbank spent 20 seasons as a professional coach and stepped down from that job this year, passing the Jet post off to his son-in-law, Charley Winner.

As a coach, Ewbank won three championships and four divisional crowns and was the only man to coach championship teams in both the National and American football leagues.

Ewbank, 67, coached Baltimore Colts to consecutive NFL titles in 1958 and 1959 and led the Jets to the 1968 Super Bowl championship, upsetting the Colts in the title game.

Election Issues in Sidney: Recreation, Water Supply

A total of six candidates are competing for the three two-year aldermanic seats in Sidney, three incumbents and three challengers.

BERNARD ETHIER, 2245 James White Blvd., a B.C. Ferries engineer.

He says his main concern is establishing better recreation facilities for Sidney and the Saanich Peninsula. He says there are 18,000 people on the Peninsula without a pool or a curling rink "and it's disgraceful."

He said efforts at getting some sort of recreation complex built have produced "a lot of talking but not much has been done."

WILKIE GARDNER, 2525 Shoreacres Road, businessman.

Gardner has been a Sidney alderman for nine years and a regional director for three and is seeking re-election to both positions.

He says the promotion of the Peninsula acute care hospital is his number one priority.

He also wants to see the establishment of a recreation complex to serve all Peninsula residents through the tri-municipal recreation committee.

A better water supply is essential for Sidney, he says, and is convinced the only way it can be done is through co-operation among the three Peninsula communities.

HUGH HOLLINGWORTH, 10012-5th Street, businessman.

Hollingworth was a Sidney alderman from '69-'72 when he resigned to travel with his family.

He says he intends to do everything he can to overcome and be conscious of inflated tax dollars.

His two main concerns for the area are water supply and recreation facilities and says he is seeking both the aldermanic and regional director seats to do as much as he can on both issues.

Martin was first elected to council in 1972 for a two-year term.

He says council has done a good job so far in providing good physical services for the community but feels there is a need for promotion of "human growth."

More recreation facilities are necessary, he says, and an increase in the parks budget to enable the council to do more with the parks they already have.

PATRICIA MERRETT, 9552 Sharples, housewife.

She was first elected to Sidney council in 1972 for a two-year term.

She says she has become involved with the recreation problems of the area and is now a member of the tri-municipal recreation committee.

She says she will support any feasible method of getting a better water supply for the Peninsula.

EDWARD PRICE, 2020 Ardwell, electrician.

Price says people should "stop playing politics" with the Sidney water problem and "get down to work and find out how we can get it."

He is in favor of recreation facilities and activities for all ages, not just certain groups and says he would like to see provision for bicycle parking on Beacon Avenue.

B.C. ADVERTISING FOR ARTS DIRECTOR

The provincial government is advertising across Canada for a director of the B.C. Arts Board, an interim board responsible for administering the province's cultural fund.

An advertisement which appeared in the province's daily newspapers as well as the Globe and Mail states the successful applicant, to be paid between $20,975 and $24,290, will also be responsible for initiation and development of cultural and artistic activities.

The board replaces the current Grants Advisory Committee to the B.C. Cultural Fund and is responsible to the provincial secretary's office.

Major task, however, is to review all applications for grants from the fund for 1974-75, with successful projects financed with interest from the province's $20 million cultural endowment fund.

Members of the Interim Arts Board are: Ms. Yetta Lees, Victoria; Mrs. W. T. Lane, Harvey Adams, Lloyd Berry, John Dayton, Jack Herbert, A. Holland, Werner True and C. Wootten, all of Vancouver; S. Chitty, Surrey; A. R. Dahlstrom, Rossland; Paddy English, Kamloops; Heather Hannaford, Fort St. John; Ruth Schiller, Osoyoos; Anna Wyman, North Vancouver.

9 IN MEMORIAM

CAMERON—George Stuart, November 13, 1956, Sudbury, Ont.
In the multitude of my sorrows
That I had in my heart
Thy comforts have refreshed my soul.
But the Lord is my refuge
And my God is the Strength of my confidence. (Ps. 94-19-22)
—Valerie

HAWES — In loving memory of a dear son, brother, nephew, Edward Ray Hawes who died suddenly, November 14, 1973.
One year has passed since that sad time,
When one we loved was called away;
God took him home — it was His will.
Within our hearts he liveth still.
—Sadly missed and always remembered, Mom, Bill, Muriel and Linc.

WIGLEY — In loving memory of my dear wife Margaret. Three years have passed since she peacefully passed into God's care November 14th, 1971.
Because you were so wonderful
Because we know you cared
Because of all your sweetness
And the happy life we share.
We want to thank you
You gave your love in the fullest measure
And died as you had lived, "Ever a friend."
Still sadly missed by her loving husband Will, her two sister-in-laws and their families in England. Also nieces and nephews and their families in England and Canada and her true friend Olive Miles.

THEY SHALL GROW NOT OLD, AS WE WHO ARE LEFT GROW OLD. AGE SHALL NOT WEARY THEM, NOR THE YEARS CONDEMN. AT THE GOING DOWN OF THE SUN, AND IN THE MORNING WE WILL REMEMBER THEM.
—WITH GRATITUDE, SANDS.

Time to Reflect on the Future

The quiet rains of early November bring a time for assessing values — past and present — making decisions of what is worth retaining to weave into the future. The garden is a quiet place on these days, no matter if it lies beside a busy highway.

During the years, many trees and shrubs have competed for honors in the November garden. This year two new candidates have grown up (literally) and the third remains from past trips of favorites selected. None is rare, or new, or hard to find in nurseries.

Retaining its place with a high score for late garden color is the Peachleaved spiraea, Spiraea prunimolia florepena, the double flowered form. For the past three weeks fall coloring of this six foot shrub has suffused the dark green of the leaves.

As do several other spiraeas, this one retains its foliage late in spite of many light frosts so that its fall color cannot be classed as fleeting.

The show of June flowers is of tiny round white balls fully double, therefore not visited by insects for nectar but keeping their freshness for a long period.

A young tree of Cornus kousa, the Korean Dogwood, has finally reached a size to show off its marvellous rich crimson fall leaves. Never especially noticed in fall until this year, it now wins a permanent place as seen this rainy week in November.

The flowers are said to be every bit as lovely as our Pacific Dogwood (Cornus nuttalli).

Since the summer foliage is quite distinctive, having a drooping habit in contrast to C. nuttalli, it is no hardship to wait for its flowers. The two species together should make a lovely group with C. florida and C. gouschaulti, each different.

A smaller plant of C. kousa, grown from a cutting taken seven years ago has just the same brilliant coloring as its six-foot ancestor.

The third of my trio of November color beauties will be seen among the newer boulevard plantings on upper Douglas Street, north from Burnside Road on the east side. It is the Tulip-tree, Liriodendron tulipifera.

Until the weekend there was scarcely a sign of color change on these trees but watch now for that gleaming yellow which makes you believe in sunlight on a rainy day.

Our own tree has been gaining color for a week, so that the rainy days were perfect for getting full value as of reflected sunshine from it into the house windows.

At 12 feet, this Liriodendron has bloomed for the last two years. The strangely formed flowers in June never fail to interest. They must be seen at close range to be believed for the colors are as distinctive as their structure — pale cream to orange, with tints of soft green, all in the one large blossom.

The gleaming yellow will turn to nut brown before the leaves fall, but their message in the November rain will not be lost.

How can we talk of "this awful rain" when it brings to our notice so much that is lovely if we are willing to be aware.

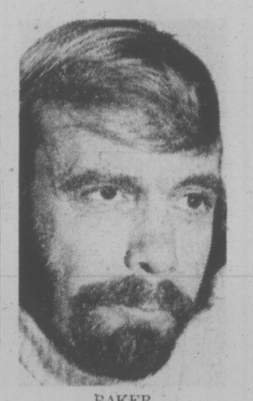
Experiment Working?

By ELEANOR BOYLE
Times Staff

Derek Baker is trying to find out whether B.C.'s social service experiment is working.

But, "nobody seems to know whether it's working. Nobody seems to know anything," he says.

"B.C. And Quebec have about the most extensive experiments going in Canada in the field of social services."



BAKER
. . . who knows?

Baker said in an interview. "What I find scariest is there's relatively little evaluation . . . of the experiments."

Baker is serving a sabbatical year from his teaching duties at Calgary's School of Social Work and is observing social service innovations mainly in B.C. Quebeec and England.

He is operating from the research office of the Human Resources Department in the Belmont Building here.

The B.C. experiment Baker talks about is the takeover of welfare services by the provincial government and gradual formation of community resource boards.

Baker sees England as a leader in encouraging citizen response and responsibility for social welfare and an influence on both B.C. and Quebec.

The move in England, however, is to municipal control rather than citizen control, as in B.C., he said.

Baker has observed three areas of innovation in various systems.

Amalgamation of service organizations is one, evidenced in B.C. by the integration of Family and Children's Services, city welfare departments and children's aid societies.

The second is decentralization, by which the human resources department is attempting to give more decision-making power to local organizations.

The third is community control, which the government is trying to effect by encouraging citizen organization and membership on community resource boards.

"Theoretically, social services should work better with integration," said Baker.

Under the former system, battles between public and private groups were being waged constantly and inevitably "the client lost out," said Baker.

He gained first-hand knowledge of these battles when he worked for child welfare, then Family and Children's Services, in Victoria in the '60s.

"And the business of referral was perceived to be more difficult. Clients were fragmented between services."

He said service decentralization is now working successfully both in England and the Scandinavian countries.

A major academic debate now in England is to resolve the question, "what is need?" rather than "how can a social welfare system provide for what are traditionally called needs?" said Baker.

"Social workers here have got to become more aware of needs and realize there's not a fountain of everlasting money with which they can carry out their programs," he said.

They must evaluate their programs and their spending with cost-benefit analyses, he said.

"There's insufficient money spent on researching experimental programs and their benefits at all levels of government in Canada."

Some research is being conducted at the federal level on effects of L.I.P. and various Manpower programs, he said.

"But we need increased research capabilities," said Baker.

Without them the government will never adequately measure the worth of its social service experiment or provincial projects in general, he said.

Millions Visit Woman's Shrine

By MORT ROSENBLUM

VALLECITO, Argentina (AP) — Some say there was no Deolinda Correa. But more than one million faithful a year come to her shrine here, bearing everything from a glass of water to the family Ford.

She is such big business that cash offerings alone topped $250,000 last year. One company is making a movie about her and there is a monthly magazine published about her.

Deolinda Correa, according to legend, lived with her husband and tiny son by the San Juan River in the early 1800s when warlords roamed the desert region at the foot of the Andes.

One general impressed her ailing husband into his ranks, and she set off on foottofind him. When muledrivers found her, she had been dead for days. But she was still nursing her son, keeping him alive.

SITE ATTRACTS CROWDS

Over the years many Argentines have come to believe that in death she has miracle-working power to cure illnesses, find husbands, win auto races and solve hopeless problems. Each success requires a pilgrimage to offer thanks.

Huge crowds flock to the hilltop site where she is said to have died and a small town has grown up around it.

The Deceased Correa Foundation has warehouses of gifts: stuffed penguins, a plaster cast of a stomach, files of fur coats, a Buddha statue, mountains of bicycles.

Bank vaults hold fortunes in gold and jewelry. An average of 15 to 20 cars and trucks, many in good working order, are left each month for her. Boxing champion Carlos Monzon leaves his gloves and trunks each time he wins a fight.

And, because Deolinda Correa is supposed to have died of thirst, water is brought to her in every type of container imaginable.

The goods are administered by a foundation made up of the San Juan provincial tourism director, the parish priest, a government accountant and others.

They sell sacks of offered hair to wig factories. Vehicles are restored and sold. About 3,000 bridal dresses are kept and loaned to girls who need them. Gifts that don't deteriorate stay on display.

GIVEN TO CHARITY

The foundation uses the money to improve the shrine, build schools and hospitals and make charity donations.

"The Roman Catholic Church does not officially recognize the Deceased Correa", said Rev. Ricardo Baez Laspiur, "But it is faced with a reality. People believe in her, and we must channel their beliefs toward the Church."

With donated money he has built a modernistic church here overlooking a car park with a sign reading. "This space reserved for cars to be blessed."

He said that many would like to see Deolinda Correa canonized, but first they must prove she actually existed.

"We are almost certain her story is true," said Father Baez. "But there were no written records during that time. We have oral testimony as far back as 1870 speaking of donations in her name."

CLAIMS TO BE COUSIN

A San Juan farmer, who claims to be 115, says he is a cousin of Deolinda Correa and that the story is true. Residents believe him on the grounds that old-timers from the San Juan back hills never lie.

For Guillermo Barrena, a retired colonel who runs the tourism department and heads the foundation, it makes no difference.

"I'm just concerned with tourism," he said. "This is tourism of faith, like any other type of tourism, and we exploit it that way."

He plans to build motels and recreational facilities to get people to stay 48 hours in this desert valley.

But the overwhelming majority of the 1.3 million visitors last year were not concerned in the slightest with tourism. Many walked scores of miles in the heat, climbing the last hill on their knees, to express their faith.

Region-Lorimer Talks Set Over Transit Financing

The Capital Region Board will meet with Municipal Affairs Minister James Lorimer on Nov. 20 to discuss differences of opinion on the proposed cost-sharing formula for transportation services in the region.

Board chairman Jim Campbell said Wednesday he had asked the board's lawyers to look into the legality of the formula before the meeting with Lorimer.

Lorimer announced last week that starting in 1975 the regional districts covering Victoria and Vancouver would have to share the costs of transportation systems with the provincial government.

The minister proposed that the regions pay one-half of the operating deficit of the system.

Campbell said the board passed a motion last May opposing any such cost-sharing system without an additional source of revenue for the region.

Campbell said he questioned whether the government could impose such a cost-sharing system without some additional legislation.

He said under the Municipal Act the only service costs the government can ask the regional districts to share in are health and library.

He said he has asked the board's lawyers to look into the question in further detail as mention of cost-sharing agreements in the new Transit Act was vague.

Cecilia Released

Mother Cecilia Mary, 85, was released from Royal Jubilee Hospital Wednesday after a four-day stay for observation.

Founder of a religious society which operates a hospital for the elderly at St. Mary's Priory, Langford, she now operates an animal shelter at Mill Bay.

Mother Cecilia and four other plaintiffs sued in B.C. Supreme Court this fall for control of the society, now operated by other religious sisters. Judgment on the case is still pending.

BUY SUBSTITUTE—STORE

VANCOUVER (CP) — Super-Valu stores throughout British Columbia are in the process of erecting signs suggesting that customers buy sugar substitutes instead of sugar, a company spokesman said Wednesday.

He said the 85 stores would put up signs as they acquired sugar substitutes.

A spokesman for Kelly Douglas Co. Ltd., parent company of the Super-Valu chain, said his company hopes the price of sugar would stabilize or reduce if people bought less.

He said the retail price for a 10-pound bag of sugar in a Super-Valu store now is $6.67 compared with approximately $1.69 a year ago, and $65.59 for a hundred weight compared with about $15.50 this time last year.

Ultimatum Shatters ICBC Agents' Strike

By AL FOREST
Times Staff

The 1,100 member Insurance Agents Association of British Columbia ended its strike against Autoplan at 1:30 p.m. today in the face of an ultimatum from the Insurance Corporation of British Columbia.

"We have lost a battle but not the war," president Jack Hamilton said.

He said the agents would continue to seek a meeting with Transport Minister Robert Strachan to obtain a higher commission rate for its members.

Hamilton said a threat to agents they faced loss of all government insurance business if they failed to end the boycott by noon Friday was a crushing blow for the smaller members of the association who relied upon that business to survive.

Telegrams and phone calls to the agents threatening to cancel licences to sell government insurance made the difference, he said.

Hamilton said despite denials from Strachan that the agents had been threatened, the telegram sent to agents not contacted by phone was clearly an ultimatum.

The telegram reads:

"We were unable to contact you by phone yesterday. It is imperative you advise us immediately whether you are continuing service under Autoplan. Unless we receive by telegram your decision to continue by noon on Friday, November 15, 1974, we shall be forced to recommend cancellation by the lieutenant-governor in council of your firm's appointment to represent the Insurance Corporation of British Columbia."

It is signed "N. Bortnick, general manager" of ICBC.

The corporation set up a 35-member phoning team Tuesday and on Wednesday had contacted 628 agents. The remainder of the 472 agents were sent telegrams. Of the 628 agents phoned, 176 said they would abandon the strike immediately, another 183 said they were considering doing so and 269 said they were determined to continue as of Wednesday night.

In Victoria, Ian Rendle, vice-president of the Victoria branch of the insurance agents association, said on Wednesday only 1 of 38 association members and 2 of 5 non-association agents indicated they were in favor of ending the boycott.

However, small firms could not afford a total loss of ICBC business, including fire, theft and car insurance.

In the legislature Wednesday, Strachan repeated an earlier statement that the agents were not being threatened.

He said, however, ICBC had to know how many agents were going to live up to their contracts and how many were not, so contingency plans could be made.

The agents signed a two-year contract with ICBC one year ago, agreeing to a 9 per cent commission in the first year and a 7 per cent commission in 1975.

Strachan has increased the offer for the second year to 7 per cent plus a flat fee of $2.

However, the agents maintain the second part of the two-year contract is void because the ICBC did not live up to an agreement to simplify procedures for selling insurance in the second year of operation.

GOLD HITS $190

LONDON (Reuter) — Gold prices soared past the $190 mark for the first time on London bullion markets today.

The price at one point touched $191 an ounce but despite heavy demand fell back to be pegged during the afternoon fixing at $188.25 dollars — a record.

Dealers reported heavy buying with substantial orders from West Germany which pushed the price up $3 from Wednesday's final fixing of $185.25.

Teachers Seek Self Policing

A Teaching Profession Act giving teachers the power to police their own profession has been drafted by the B.C. Teachers' Federation for presentation to the government.

The draft report, prepared by a B.C. Teachers' Federation committee and made public Wednesday, would give the federation power to reprimand, suspend or cancel the membership of a teacher found guilty of incompetence.

With membership in the BCTF compulsory, cancellation would be tantamount to taking away a person's right to teach in B.C.

The BCTF resolved in 1973 to seek a professional act as a means of maintaining competence in the profession, assuring self-government for the federation and encouraging "professional growth."

The draftt report incorporates all existing BCTF policy on professionalism and includes the following provisions:

—Local teacher associations be given authority to negotiate with individual school boards on a wide range of topics including teacher salaries, working and learning conditions, hours of work, transfers, appointments and chool policy.

—The only appeal for suspension or cancellation of teacher's membership would be to the B.C. Court of Appeal, not back to the BCTF or the cabinet.

Education Minister Eileen Dailly said late Wednesday she had not yet received a copy of the draft legislation but she was "willing to read it anytime."

She said the government has made no decision on whether the teachers should be granted a professional act as other groups in the province already have.

Greater Victoria school board chairman Peter Bunn said the report is "an absolutely devastating document" which is "anti-public education."

He said teachers are not professionals because professionals "don't leave schools unattended and don't break contracts."

Teachers can't expect to have a private practice like doctors and lawyers, Bunn said, because education is a compulsory and public function and "parents can't take their kids somewhere else . . . they're stuck in the system."

Bunn said he "can't take the document seriously" and he hoped the government would treat it in the same vein.

If the government does take the report seriously, he said, school trustees will likely launch a public information campaign to warn against the dangers inherent in such legislation.

Riot Greets Press

MONTREAL (CP) Reporters toured cellblock No. 1 at St. Vincent de Paul Penitentiary Wednesday at the invitation of Solicitor-General Warren Allmand after two escaped prisoners threatened a bloodbath if conditions are not improved.

Hours before reporters entered the institution, two guards were attacked by prisoners being escorted to cells after outdoor exercise.

Warden Bernard Marcoux said the segregation section in cellblock No. 1 was quiet for five months until last Friday when the two prisoners began wrecking their cells after hearing about the impending tour.

Prisoners said they are kept 24 hours a day in cells measuring about 10 feet long, four feet wide and eight feet high.

Others spoke of unwarranted cancellation of parole privileges.

"We're not dogs, we're human beings," yelled one prisoner in a cell reeking of teargas. He was one of those who attacked guards earlier.

Report Raps Police Dep't

A 17-page report rapping the Victoria City Police department for poor working conditions and unsafe vehicles will be kept under wraps, police commission chairman and Mayor Peter Pollen said today.

Pollen said the critique by University of B.C. law student Ken Tesky is a "vitriolic document" and that it is not in the public interest to disclose allegations contained in the report.

Tesky, who wrote the report independently after spending the summer as a constable with the force as part of the department's annual law student program, told the Times he originally planned to make his study public.

"Since then I've met with a certain amount of opposition," he said today in a telephone interview from Vancouver. "I've agreed with the department not to tell anything until we get a chance to talk it over."

Tesky said he has given copies of his report to Pollen, members of the police commission and police union.

"The reason I wrote it was in the hope I'd create a bit of a stir to improve working conditions for the men and the department," he said today. "It looks as though it might have that effect without slandering anyone . . . I haven't mentioned any names."

Tesky said the report was meant as constructive criticism and that he will know if any positive changes are made within the department because he is "on fairly amicable terms" with most of the officers he worked with.

He said the basis of the report is that the department has a need for more manpower and better equipment.

"The city's getting bigger and I don't think the department is," he said.

When asked about reports that the document might surface during contract negotiations between the city and the association, Tesky said: That's their business."

Tesky also said that if the police commission releases the report, "they might give you an edited copy."

At his regular press conference today, Pollen said the source of the report should be considered.

"This is just one man's opinion — someone who had been a part-time member of the department," he said. "The fact that we had no power steering on one of our cars and uniforms out of the 19th century is just one 23-year-old's opinion."

The mayor said members of the press should go out and get the impressions of Victoria policemen on a first-hand basis.

Nixon Goes Home

Times News Services

LONG BEACH — Pale and thin, former president Richard Nixon left hospital today in a wheelchair after 23 days of treatment for phlebitis.

Nixon's wife, Pat, rode away with him on the trip back to their oceanside estate in San Clemente where he will await the Watergate special examiners.

The three cardiovascular and internist specialists named by Judge John Sirica have until Nov. 29 to report back whether Nixon is well enough to testify at the cover-up trail, or give a deposition in California.

The former president's physician however, has warned that Nixon is troubled by touchy blood pressure, that shoots up under even minor stress, even friendly conversation.

Extremists Bomb Tokyo Embassies

The sudden attacks took place simultaneously just after 11:30 a.m. Several policemen on guard at the two embassies were hurt.

Metropolitan police said eight people taken into custody were identified with a Marxist Youth League. American embassy officials said there was no damage to the embassy, which is housed in temporary quarters while a new building is under construction, and no injury to Americans.

Communist and Socialist parties and labor groups have launched a campaign against the planned visit of Ford but have said they will oppose it only by peaceful means. This is the first instance of violence and seems likely to increase the already very tight security precautions in effect for Ford's visit.

Police said handbills calling for stopping the Ford trip by force were found near the Soviet embassy.

A group of six young men wearing red helmets appeared near the main entrance of the American embassy at 11:33 a.m. and tried to storm the compound by throwing Molotov cocktails, police said.

About the same time two young men threw six Molotov cocktails at the embassy from the roof of the Hotel Okura across the street, police said. Officers later found a bag and leaflets bearing the name, Marxist Youth League, on the 13th floor of the hotel. A total of 13 Molotov cocktails were thrown. Some exploded on the road outside the compound and some in the embassy parking lot. The Molotov cocktail attacks on the Soviet embassy also happened at almost exactly the same time.

U.S. Wholesale Rise

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Spurred by a 56.4 per cent annual increase in food prices, the U.S. wholesale price index rose an adjusted 2.3 per cent in October, signalling worse inflation for consumers in the months ahead, the labor department reported today. The October surge was more than double the September increase, whose relatively modest 1 per cent increase had caused some administration officials to express hopes that inflationary pressures were easing.

Strikers Threatened

LA PAZ (Reuter) — President Hugo Banzer's government threatened Wednesday to fire factory workers and miners unless they returned to work as a crippling strike wave tightened its grip on Bolivian life. The country's 30,000 tin miners began a 48-hour strike Tuesday in protest against Gen. Banzer's decision to postpone promised elections and ban all political activity until 1980.

Israel Hikes Taxes

JERUSALEM (Reuter) — The Israeli government announced today new restrictions and tax and price increases to cope with the country's deep economic crisis. The ministry of communications declared a 43 per cent increase in telephone, telex and postal services abroad in line with last weekend's devaluation of the Israeli pound.

Public Rent Talks Urged

The B.C. Tenants Organization has appealed to the legislature to bring in further changes to the Landlord and Tenant Act to allow tenants to bargain with landlords for rent and living conditions.

Bruce Yorke, president of the BCTO, presented a policy statement today listing amendments his organization wants the government to bring in to change the rent control legislation.

Those changes include:

—Establishment of a B.C. Rental Housing Authority to hold public hearings on rent and to set all rents on new premises built in the province;

—Establish the right of tenants to form associations and councils to bargain with landlords over rent and conditions and to aid in law enforcement;

—Deletion of the 12 per cent renovation costs the new legislation would allow landlords to charge in addition to normal rent increases;

—Elimination of the "hated security deposits" of one-half a month's rent provided for in the new bill;

—Provision for rents to be set according to classification of premises rather than on an individual basis between each landlord and tenants.

Yorke said his organization

United Nations Divided As Arafat Off to Cuba

Times News Services

With the so-called "third force" expressing a more and more pro-Arab stance in the General Assembly, diplomatic sources said there is an increasing threat Israel might even be expelled from the current UN session as was South Africa.

Arafat's speech brought angry reaction from Israeli ambassador Yosef Tekoah in the assembly a few hours later in a speech boycotted by many of the Third World group.

He termed the PLO a band of murderers and said Arafat's speech called for the end of Israel as a state. Israel had boycotted the actual speech.

"Israel will not permit the establishment of PLO authority in any part of Palestine," Tekoah said.

"The PLO will not be forced on the Palestinian Arabs. It will not be tolerated by the Jews of Israel."

At least 35 delegations walked out as Tekoah took the rostrum including the Soviet Union, China and many African nations as well as Arab states.

In his speech, Arafat said the PLO wanted self-determination for some 1.5 million Palestinians left homeless by the birth of Israel in 1948 and an equal number living in Israel or in Israeli-occupied land.

Two leading U.S. experts on the Middle East said the speech hurt the chances of peace in the region, polarizing the positions of the belligerents.

Columbia University Prof. J. C. Hurwitz said a new war is likely if the assembly adopts Arafat's proposals. John Campbell, senior research fellow at the Council on Foreign Relations, cited a "50-50" chance of war.

There was little doubt Arafat's speech had increased tensions in the Middle East, especially in the Israeli-occupied West Bank which an Arab summit conference at Rabat decided should come under administration of Arafat's Palestinians and not Jordan's King Hussein.

Arab youths jeered and cursed patrolling Israeli soldiers there Wednesday and shouted their support for Arafat's speech.

There was also tension along the Israeli-Lebanese border where Israeli soldiers were on alert against attack by Arab guerrillas who carried out a rocket attack on an Israeli village Wednesday. Israeli infantry and artillery attacked villages in Southern Lebanon today.

Tots Come First, Says Dentist

QUEEN CHARLOTTE CITY (CP) — The Queen Charlotte Islands' only dentist, Dr. Robert Orr, 34, said Wednesday he will no longer perform any but emergency work on adults.

Noting that the islands have 5,600 residents, Dr. Orr said his decision is "based strictly on time."

"I just can't work on everybody there aren't enough hours in the day," he said.

"The need for dental care here is so great that I had to make a decision," Orr said. "So I have decided to work only on children because I believe health care is a birthright."

Besides, he said, it is adults who are most responsible for the dental problems of children because "they are the ones pushing candy and refined sweets."

Orr first gained attention when he overturned candy shelves in a store in Masset to protest the dietary prominence of sweets in North American culture.

In the new role he has defined for himself, Orr will work a minimum of one week a month at a medical clinic funded by the Federal Indian Affairs Department, treating children in Old Masset Village.

He said he has worked out a special arrangement so he can treat non-Indian, as well as Indian, children free-of-charge.

In addition, he will spend occasional weeks in this city treating children and any adult emergencies.

Manitoba Fears Sugar Leak If Clamps

PORTAGE LA PRAIRIE, Man. (CP) — The president of the Manitoba Sugar Beet Growers Association, William Ronald, doubts a suggested provincial sugar marketing agency could be effective in keeping the lid on rising sugar prices.

He said if such a provincial agency was established, Manitoba sugar would "leak out" to markets in other provinces where prices are higher. A 10-pound bag of white sugar now sells for $5.89 in Winnipeg — about 60 cents lower than Victoria prices.

Mr. Ronald, of Portage la Prairie, said Manitoba produces about 11 per cent of Canada's sugar and over the years has been generally self-sufficient in sugar, neither importing from other provinces nor exporting.

The Manitoba cabinet has been considering establishing a government-appointed sugar marketing board that would control price changes but agriculture minister Sam Uskiw said no decision has been reached.

Ronald, whose association represents 500 producers growing beets for nearly 80 million pounds of sugar a year, said he hoped there would be consultation with producers before any government action is taken.

Harry Ferrier, sales manager for Manitoba Sugar Co., a firm that has contracts with all sugar beet growers in Manitoba, said the wholesale price of sugar has been deliberately held down.

He said Manitoba Sugar Co. has refused to sell sugar outside the regional market area, which also includes a part of northwestern Ontario.

Ferrier said it would be possible, however, for a wholesaler in Manitoba to buy sugar and ship it east, without the knowledge of Manitoba Sugar Co.

It was impossible to check such a move, he said.

A provincial government survey has estimated Manitoba sugar beet growers will have a net return of $563 per acre this year, compared with $95 in 1972, the last year for which accurate figures are available.

Consumer Affairs Minister Ian Turnbull said recent sugar prices increases are "ridiculous" and the Manitoba government would have as much authority to regulate sugar prices as it has to control the price of milk.

Turnbull said the government wants to reduce sugar prices and has not yet decided whether to intervene. The possible alternatives under consideration included a marketing commission and an excess profits tax.

However, Turnbull said he doubted that an excess profits tax would be constitutional. He said in an interview the sugar question was not on the agenda for today's regular cabinet meeting.

Booby-Traps Own Home

ALBUQUERQUE, N.M. (AP) — A man who killed two employees at a state employment office and then killed himself apparently also had booby-trapped his house, police said.

A policeman who went to the man's home was wounded when he opened the door and a series of explosives went off.

The man, whose unemployment claim had been rejected, walked into the appeals division of the Employment Securities Commission office in downtown Albuquerque and fired at three employees.

Houses' Second Chance, Co-op's First

Jim Douglas prepares flooring

By SUSAN RUTTAN
Times Staff

Four houses saved from the bulldozer are being given a second chance at a new location on Pembroke Street.

The homes had been slated for demolition along with 12 others at their original location on Foul Bay Road, across from the Fort and Foul Bay shopping centre, to make way for construction of a senior citizens' housing complex.

Members of the Springridge Co-operative Housing Association asked if they could have the homes if they moved them to a new site.

"They said we could have the four only on condition that we took all the houses," said co-op member Mona Braschuk.

So, since the first of this year the co-op, which numbers about 25, has undertaken to do just that.

They moved the first four houses during the summer to the Pembroke Street property, leased from the provincial government for 50 years.

Two more they intend to move when another land deal is finalized.

The rest of the houses have been carefully dismantled and all the boards, nails, windows and other material are stored in a warehouse.

Everything but the plaster, the stucco on the outside, and the shingles, has been saved, Braschuk said.

All the work of dismantling the houses and the work going on now to fix up the four Pembroke Street houses is being done by co-op members.

Thirteen members have been paid a salary by a federal Local Employment Assistance Program grant which lasts till the end of the year.

Five others are being paid out of a $57,000 Central Mortgage and Housing Corporation mortgage the co-op has taken out.

The mortgage also pays for the cost of having the buildings moved, for the electrical and plumbing work needed, and other costs in renovating them.

Our Part in a Bombing —But Who Could Care?

Item: Who says the age of miracles has passed? I've just met a family who bought an exercise bicycle two weeks ago and they're still using it!

Item: A note today from my good friend Berta Schmidt to tell me of Victoria's Voice of Women demonstration on the Legislative Building's lawns and I wonder how many felt a shudder at the re-creation of the kind of prisoner-of-war cage used to hold more than 200,000 political prisoners of the Thieu government in South Vietnam.

Trouble is, I suppose, that Vietnam seems so terribly remote when we're absorbed with our own troubles so that even a symbolic replica of the "Tiger Cages" may seem beyond our grasp.

Berta sends some excerpts from Charles Taylor's new book, "Snow Job" which are, themselves, hair-raising, yet seem to have induced little or no reaction across the country.

Taylor documents the fact that we were selling more than 300 million dollars in military materials to the United States in the years of the involvement in Vietnam. What's more we were making hardware that was used when the Americans were bombing both South and North Vietnam — bombing computers built in Ontario, radar equipment by Marconi Doppler, dynamite shipped from Quebec, polystyrene, used in napalm, supplied by Dow Chemical, defoliants made in Elmira, Ontario, and so on.

"In the eyes of other nations, Canada was at best an apologist for the Americans, at worst an ally of the United States in a barbarous and senseless war," Taylor writes. "Above all, Canada's acquiescence in the atrocity of the U.S. bombings made a mockery of Ottawa's claims to play a constructive role in support of peace and as a bridge between the rich and poor nations . . .

"In the future, Canadians would be wise to be wary whenever their government fails to stand up and be counted on a major international issue . . . all too often — as Vietnam has shown — secrecy involves a sell-out."

It is a sell-out now, of course, that we don't raise our voices against the police state of Saigon. Thank God we have, at least, a few concerned women who will take a stand.

★ ★ ★

Item: A nurse in the children's ward at Jubilee phones me to say that this story is absolutely true and who am I to deny it. Seems two youngsters in adjoining beds were discussing their experiences. Said one: "Are you medical or surgical?" The other shook his head. "I don't know what you mean," he said. The first little boy was scornful. He's been a patient for several weeks. "Were you sick when you came?" he persisted, "or did they make you sick after you got here?"

★ ★ ★

Item: Reading this week with much pleasure an ancient book, published in Philadelphia in 1828, titled, "The American Chesterfield, or A Way to Wealth, Honour and Distinction; Being Selections from the Letters of Lord Chesterfield to his Son." The Saanich gentleman who thought it would do me good was exactly right.

All that's dated about this book is that fathers nowadays don't seem to feel it part of their responsibility to lay down a code of behavior or to give advice from the wisdom of their years. Perhaps if we revived the custom we might preserve some of those old-fashioned points of view that often seem so sorely needed today.

"In order to judge of the inside of others, study your own. Men, in general, are very much alike; and though one man has one prevailing passion, and another has another, yet their operations are much the same; and whatever engages or disgusts, pleases or offends you, in others, will engage, disgust, please or offend others in you.

"Observe, with the utmost attention, all the operations of your own mind, the nature of your passions, and the various motives that determine your will; and you may, in a great degree, know all mankind."

Item: An envious visit today to the beautiful home of our architect friend and we discussed at length the question that, next to why there's not more of it, may be the most important in home building: Will "the public" accept truly advanced designs or, as a great many architects claim, do they cling to the old-fashioned and the traditional?

Our friend believes that Victoria is one of the least architect-aware cities of Canada and reports, sadly, that fewer than one in a hundred modest homes are designed specifically for the people who may spend the rest of their lives in them.

I wonder if there's any other major decision we make in life in which we have such scorn for the expert.

Seniors Feel Powerless To Fight Big Rent Hike

By PAT DUFOUR
Times Staff

The 152 elderly residents of James Bay Lodge at 336 Simcoe received notice this month of an average 28.5 per cent hike in rates as of Dec. 1.

They're powerless to fight the massive increase. They feel trapped. There is nowhere else for them to go.

Provincial government officials agree the residents' predicament is caused by a tragic void in the government's programs designed to lend a hand to those who need it.

Of the 152 people at the lodge, two are under 70, the rest ranging from the early 70s to 97.

Typical of those who find the coming financial pinch too tough to take is a resident who now pays $14 a day for a single room and bathroom. This is minimal care rates. The resident has his laundry done for him but is completely mobile, able to move around the city and take his meals in the dining room.

His rate will be $18 a day, as of Dec. 1, an increase of $120 a month and $1,460 a year.

"We don't blame the people who run the lodge," he said." They have to meet the rising costs but a hike of $4 a day at one crack is a pretty awful blow.

"Most of us have no escalator clause in our pensions, except for the old age pension and that's pretty minimal. It doesn't allow for an increase like this."

He and others point out the ambiguity of government legislation that allows them to get the renters' annual $85 grant from the department of housing yet bars them the protection of the Landlord and Tenants Act, which has set a ceiling of 10.6 per cent on rent increases.

This is because the lodge is licenced under another government agency, the department of health.

A housing official said, "Our department considers the human element here" in giving the $85 grants to people in rest homes or in special buildings for the handicapped.

A spokesman for the rentalsman's office in Vancouver expressed frustration at having no control over such rate hikes as the James Bay Lodge residents face.

"The problem is how much of the hike is for rent and how much for services," he said. "They could say that 18 per cent is for food and services," and the rest, rental.

"It's legal, unfortunately. From my point of view, these people need help. But where do they get it from?"

Lodge administrator T. C. Shuckburgh and his staff have been trying to soften the blow this week by persuading residents they've talked with to alter their life style by sharing their rooms with others and thus keeping the charges as low as possible.

He admits, however, that even after having done this, some of the residents will be hard pressed to meet the costs.

"This type of elderly citizen has been totally missed," Shuckburgh said. "They're not down and out enough to be helped by the department of human resources nor helpless enough to be admitted into extensive care hospitals and get help that way."

He added, "Yet they're the ones that have paid their taxes for years and helped keep this country going."

Lodges in Ontario and Manitoba, he explained, were given government subsidies to help them operate and keep residents from facing the dilemma at James Bay Lodge.

"The tragedy here," he said, "is that so many of them are helpless to face the problems of a rising run-away economy."

Hospital Wing Top Priority

A new commission with power to dictate hospital development in the Capital district was formally established by the regional hospital board Wednesday.

But regional directors also delivered the word on what the new agency should do first — add an acute-care wing to the year-old Saanich Peninsula Hospital to replace obsolete Resthaven Hospital in Sidney.

The 12 voting members of the new Hospital and Health Planning Commission will be appointed by the end of this month, board chairman Art Young said Wednesday. They could have a first-phase report on regional development of hospitals from consultants by the end of January.

Before passing the bylaw establishing the commission, the board narrowly defeated a resolution from Central Saanich Mayor Jean Butler which would have had the Central Saanich hospital project go ahead regardless of the new commission.

But having approved the bylaw, directors did pass a similar motion recommending that project be a first priority with the new commission.

Region-wide planning of hospital expansion has been delayed in recent years by bickering and red tape which at one time or another has involved hospital boards, municipal, regional and provincial governments as well as doctors.

But the regional hospital board won from the provincial government earlier this month clear authority to rule on what hospital facilities will go where.

This power has now been transferred to the new commission, which regional directors will control through budget approval.

Five of the commission members will be chosen by established hospitals in the region, four will be regional board directors and three will be regional residents at large, chosen by the regional board.

Responsibility for hospital development now rests firmly with the regional board, he said.

In her resolution, Mrs. Butler said the regional board and provincial government approved in June of 1969 construction of the acute care wing at the Mount Newton hospital and services were built to handle the addition.

In April this year regional directors endorsed that decision, she said, and asked board members to approve approaching Health Minister Dennis Cocke for approval to start immediate planning and construction of the acute care wing.

Director Jim Campbell said that while he is sympathetic to the spirit of the resolution, it would frustrate the new planning body.

School Closure Feared

Burnside elementary school at 3130 Jutland may be closed in September, 1976, if enrolments in Greater Victoria School District decline as projected.

Enrolment projections presented to the school board's administration committee Wednesday show Burnside's enrolment of 223 dropping to 185 in 1975.

School board staff propose moving the remainder of Burnside pupils to Tolmie elementary school at 556 Boleskine Rd. in 1976 if the decline occurs.

Tolmie's enrolment, now 360, is expected to drop to 340 in 1975 but would jump up to 450 with the addition of the Burnside children.

This year's total enrolment in elementary schools, 16,324, is expected to decline steadily in the next five years, leaving an enrolment of roughly 13,500 in 1979.

High school enrolment, 12,954 this year, is expected to rise until 1976 when it will peak at about 13,170, then begin a gradual decline. Projection for 1979 is roughly 12,500.

The board is planning to build four new elementary schools in the next few years, one on Torquay Drive, one on Edgelow St., one in the Roy Rd. area, and one in Victoria West.

Fastcat for Library

New books will be available to Greater Victoria Library patrons more quickly when the library's Fastcat system goes into effect today.

Bright orange signs depicting a running cat will identify new volumes for readers, and these books will be listed in the card catalogue under title only.

Library director Donald Miller says the plan has been under study for some time and will free the backlog of new books at the main branch downtown.

Under the Fastcat system, a minimum of processing will be done when books are received, and they will be fully catalogued later into the library collection.

Volumes that have accumulated because of the former cataloguing system number several thousand and include reference, children's and general circulation books, said a library spokesman.

Tree Health Oak Bay Program

Oak Bay council knows about every tree in the municipality and will likely approve Monday night a continuing program to help them all to good health.

But it's going to take over 13 years, at an estimated $13,608 a year.

Council's works committee Wednesday night considered a "municipal tree inventory" prepared by Greenleaves Tree Service Ltd.

It shows:

There are 9,240 trees in Oak Bay.

3,850 are shade (large) trees, about half of them Garry Oaks.

The survey also measured the diameter of each tree at breast height and rated its health from A to D, where D is for dead, nearly dead or in a hazardous condition.

Also calculated was the amount of doctoring needed, by pruning, surgery, root work or removal — $181,440 worth, with men and equipment currently costing $12 an hour.

The report says that ideally shade trees should be pruned every five years and ornamentals every two years. But at today's prices that volume of work would cost $40,000 a year for those first five years.

It proposes instead that a more economical approach would be to spend about $13,000 a year to do the urgent work only. Such a program would take 13.3 years to bring all trees, in theory at least, to as good condition as possible.

The inventory has been set up so it can be kept up to date as trees are attended to.

B.C. Urged to Run Ferry

After a group of businessmen failed earlier this week in their attempt to acquire the Princess Marguerite, the provincial government was urged Wednesday to purchase the vessel and operate it for a two-year trial period between Victoria and Seattle.

In a meeting with Transport Minister Robert Strachan, a delegation from the Greater Victoria Visitor Information Centre pointed out that such action would not only help the city's economy, but prevent serious additional pressure on the already overburdened B.C. Ferries route between Tsawwassen and Swartz Bay.

The delegation claimed that unless the service abandoned by Canadian Pacific is revived, the 16,000 cars carried by the Princess Marguerite this summer will be dumped on B.C. Ferries vessels next year.

It said this route is the only practical alternative open to visitors, because the Black Ball ferry from Port Angeles is "pretty well taxed to capacity" during the summer months, and the Anacortes-Sidney 8 a.m. departure necessitates a 6 a.m. start from Seattle.

In a follow-up letter to Strachan summarizing the points made, Terry Farmer, president of the visitor information centre, said handling the additional volume of traffic would require "an additional vessel similar in size to the Queen of Victoria operating continuously for 21 days . . ."

Farmer said today that was a simplified formula to give some idea of the impact created by the extra passengers, and noted that the load would actually be spread over three months.

He said Strachan "listened, had a few suggestions, but didn't seem to be as concerned as we hoped he would be."

His letter to the minister said the 16,000 additional cars would be only the minimum extra traffic resulting from the cancellation of the Seattle-Victoria run.

In addition, at least one-third of the 100,000 day-trippers who came to Victoria this summer aboard the Marguerite could be expected to make the longer journey via Tsawwassen and bring their cars with them.

This could add another 6,000 to 8,000 cars, and perhaps result in waits up to seven hours at Tsawwassen.

As a side-issue to the purchase proposition, Farmer pointed out that the government would also have to acquire the leases on the CP docks and access property below Belleville.

This would be an "extremely strategic property," he said, in view of the current negotiations between the government and Marathon Realty (the company's development subsidiary) to acquire the adjacent property on the Inner Harbor.

The Punahou High School girls' volleyball team from Honolulu will play a series of matches at Vic High Sunday, Nov. 24.

Opposition will be provided by Vic High, Spectrum and University of Victoria. Games slated from 1-6 p.m., will consist of two 15-point games with the winner determined on games won.

The Punahou team, coached by Mary Perry, is in first place in its league. Vic High, meanwhile, won the city high school title under coach Val Egan and is headed for the provincial championships in November.

BOWLER OF WEEK

Dorothy Krimmer's sharp eye and steady delivery combined for a winning touch in sixth week of 12th annual Times Bowler-of-the-Week competition. Bowling at Town and Country Lanes, Dorothy started with a 259, reached a peak 318 and then added a 229 for a 806 total to capture weekly award in women's fivepin division. Dorothy has now qualified for Bowler-of-the-Year rolloffs.

Pats' Security Beefed Up

FOXBORO, Mass. (AP) — Security forces will be doubled this Sunday and squads of plainclothes policemen will roam through the stadium crowd because of increased violence among spectators at New England Patriots games.

"Something has been going bad down there the past three games, and I don't like it," he said.

Last Sunday, one spectator was stabbed in a parking lot brawl after the national Football League game. It was the first stabbing reported at the stadium, but the fights in and around it have become as commonplace as touchdowns.

"It's getting too much to handle," McCarthy said. "After the Baltimore game we had to arrest 15 people for creating a disturbance. We thought that had been the worst. Then we got the Buffalo game. We arrested 26 and had to let as many go."

Little but loaded.

Plymouth Cricket and Dodge Colt are loaded with standard equipment. We'll match our little economy cars against cars costing a lot more. And we'll give you some surprises.

For instance, every Colt and Cricket is standard equipped with a tilt steering column. It lets each different driver in your family select his or her own most comfortable driving position. Most of our high-priced competition offer it only at extra cost. Colt and Cricket make it standard.

Naturally, Colt and Cricket give you front bucket seats. You'd expect that. What you might not expect is the fully reclining seatback feature on all the models except the very lowest-priced 2-door coupes. Again, a little more comfort for you. And once again a feature you'll find on the option pages of some other cars' catalogues.

There's plenty more. Like front disc brakes and rugged Unibody construction. Standard for your peace of mind.

A 1600 CC overhead cam engine with a fully-synchronized, four-speed manual transmission provide you with great economy and extra kick for highway passing. Some of our competition offer a much smaller engine as their standard equipment.

There's a lot more to the Dodge Colt and Plymouth Cricket story. Like a wide choice of models. Sports models, 2-door hardtops, 2-door coupes, 4-door sedans and smart looking 4-door wagons. Plus a custom wagon that gives you woodgrain side and tailgate panels.

Now if you really feel you need some options, here they are: automatic transmission, 2000 CC engine (and when you order the 2000 CC engine with automatic transmission, you get Chrysler's famous Torqueflite automatic transmission), AM push button radio, wagon roof luggage rack, electric rear window de-icer and white wall tires (standard on Cricket Formula "S", Colt GT and custom wagons). You can almost count our extra cost optional equipment on one hand.

Dodge Colt and Plymouth Cricket. Built by small car experts in Japan. Sold and serviced coast to coast in Canada by your Dodge and Plymouth dealers. Stop in and surprise yourself.

The community news page appears every Thursday and is available to any community-related, non-profit, public groups.

Send or bring in your notices and reports of meetings to the Victoria Times, 2621 Douglas, or telephone 382-3131 and ask for "community news."

James Bay residents will get a chance to look at their new community school from the inside out when the JAMES BAY COMMUNITY ASSOCIATION holds a general meeting there Monday night at 8 p.m.

"We'll bring them up to date on the general development of community school programs," said the Association's Lewis Madley. "About 600 residents are involved in its day and night pregrams now."

Latest developments on a community clinic will also be talked about Monday.

★ ★ ★

After two weeks of closure for renovations, the VIC WEST COMMUNITY NEIGHBORHOOD CENTRE is open again, and several William Head prisoners have been on hand this week helping with the last of the renovations.

Programs beginning again through the centre include Thursday afternoon soccer and other games in the park for anyone aged 6 to 17 and gym activities in Vic West Elementary every Monday and Wednesday nights.

★ ★ ★

Sharon Hume was elected chairman of the JAMES BAY NEIGHBORHOOD IMPROVEMENT PROJECT committee at a meeting Tuesday night. The outgoing chairman is Kay Lines. The group will meet next on Dec. 3.

★ ★ ★

Charter meeting of the new SIDNEY AND PENINSULA KIWANIS CLUB will begin at 6:30 p.m. Nov. 16 and will be in the Sidney Travelodge banquet room. Members of all local Kiwanis clubs will attend as will Kiwanis district governor Dr. Ralph Gustafson of Washington state.

The emphasis of Kiwanis programs this year will be service to children with specific learning disabilities and to the elderly, said publicity chairman Ralph Dahl.

★ ★ ★

Bingo fans are reminded they can play the game Saturday night along with members of the PROSPECT LAKE COMMUNITY ASSOCIATION in the community hall at 8 p.m.

Tickets are still available for the GORDON HEAD COMMUNITY ASSOCIATION dance Nov. 23, and they can be obtained through 477-1629.

Association members hope this will be the start of regular monthly events such as card parties, wine and cheese parties and dances.

★ ★ ★

At a METCHOSIN HOME AND SCHOOL ASSOCIATION meeting Wednesday night, Metchosin grade one teacher Sheila Domoney showed slides of her trip to Antigua in the Caribbean this summer. Domoney travelled along with several other Canadian teachers on a program instructing natives in the teaching profession. She offers to be guest speaker at a community meeting upcoming so she can tell more people about "Project Overseas." Her number at the school is 478-3648.

Because its activities have spread, the NEWTON GARDENS RECREATION SOCIETY will change its name to the NEWTON-RICHMOND SOCIETY, it was decided at a recent meeting.

This group has been very active and staged the first of a regular Sunday series of "treasure hunts" or swap and shops last weekend in front of the apartments on Newton Ave. Noon to 4 p.m., weather permitting, people will be able to buy and sell.

Society members and others are invited to come out to child-parent communication meetings which began Tuesday night in Block 17-18 of the apartments. "I could just wring my hands that more people aren't taking it," said spokesman Velma McIntosh, "but they just don't know what it is."

"It's active listening between parent and child," she said. There are still spaces available in the class.

The society also urges people of the neighborhood to attend gym nights Wednesday at the Boys' Club on Yates and at Richmond School gym on Thursday. It's adults' activity time from 8 to 9 each of those nights.

★ ★ ★

Wildflower lovers should come out Monday night at 8 to a meeting of the METCHOSIN GARDEN CLUB in St. Mary's Church Hall, 4354 Metchosin Rd. Jacques Wendover of Shawnigan Lake will show slides and talk about flowers that are found everywhere but in the back yard. Plants will also be sold at a booth.

★ ★ ★

Representatives from B.C. Med will be on hand at a JAMES BAY NEW HORIZONS forum Friday morning to answer people's questions and talk about some of the problems they have in dealing with B.C. Medical.

Retired citizens of the area are invited to this forum at 511 Michigan St. at 10 a.m.

The elderly of James Bay are also invited to activities going on this week from Friday to Sunday at 521 Superior St. at 2 p.m. each day. Activities include bridge, other games, and tea.

Bazaar Profit $13,000

Bazaars can net more than dimes and nickels for an organization, as the Royal Jubilee Hospital Auxiliary showed again this year.

Though the fair was held mid-week, "people were knocking me down trying to get in," said convener Melva Carter.

Sale items were more traditional than those popularized in recent years and still sold in large numbers in craft stores.

Rather than concentrate on pottery, batik, macrame and homemade candles the auxiliary sold dolls of all kinds, knitted items, fruits, flowers, homemade jellies and baked goods.

"As a grandmother I had realized a few years ago dolls had gone out of fashion," said Carter.

She believes they are becoming more popular now however, especially the homemade variety that neither walks nor talks without help from "Mum."

NO ROOM TO STOP IN WIDENING

People who drive Sooke Rd. between the Metchosin cut-off and Colwood Corners should watch out for buses that frequently stop without pulling over to the side.

The department of highways has widened the road but made provision for only three bus stops between Colwood Corners and the cut-off at Metchosin Rd.

"The right of way was restrictive," said a department spokesman who explained there just wasn't room for more stops.

He also said demand for more stops was insufficient and people shouldn't expect stops to be as close together in rural areas as right in the city.

South West Coach Lines runs a regular route along Sooke Road and realizes the hazard caused when buses cannot pull off the road to stop.

"Due to the curbing installed along the newest portion of the roadway, it is impossible for buses to pull even part way off the road," a Coach Lines spokesman said in a newspaper ad recently.

One objection to Coach Lines' complaint about lack of roadside space, however, is that rural buses too often tend to stop whenever and wherever people want to get on rather than sticking to the bus stop method of receiving passengers.

They're Paying the Arena Piper And Manager Wants Tune Called

By PETER MEDWID
Times Staff

"They're paying for it so why shouldn't they be the prime benefactors of the programs we'll be developing."

"They" are the areas of Cowichan Bay, Cobble Hill, Mill Bay and Shawnigan Lake and the person who wants them to get their monies worth is Denis McLean.

McLean is the manager of the $1.8 million Mill Bay Recreation Centre nearing completion on the Mill Bay-Shawnigan Lake Road and he has strong opinions on his objectives.

To work with he has an arena with a 200 by 85 foot ice surface seating 681 and a curling rink with four sheets.

It's what he intends to do in each of these structures that counts for the four communities.

There are all the standard things:

Schools will use the arena in the mornings; there will be hockey for all ages; figure skating, family, teen and public skating (11 sessions alone for this);

For curling . . . ladies', mens', mixed and school girl and boy leagues.

Timetable calls for the arena to open Dec. 15 and curling to start early in the New Year.

McLean hopes to get the four communities together in using the facilities—"if I can arrange programs that will involve all four areas then I'm happy . . . whether it's curling, hockey or whatever."

Once things start running smoothly McLean hopes to form a community league with teams from each of the four areas.

He has already scored a major deal for the arena with Team Canada Hockey College putting on its summer hockey school for seven weeks next summer. The school is expected to attract 60 boys each week. McLean was instrumental in having the last two weeks of the school set aside for boys living in the four areas.

"We insisted on this and the people connected with Team Canada agreed."

McLean also would like the four areas to put on a fall-fair-type of event.

"If the four got together for a two-day event, I think it would be a heck of a caper . . . there could be giant dances in the centre . . . for the teens one night and adults the next."

In this vein he sees the arena and curling rink becoming the centre of activity for the teenagers and adults.

"I hope it does become a meeting place for children and teenagers and I see no reason in the world why it won't."

In the arena section there will be a concession and places for people to gather . . . in the curling rink there will be a coffee shop and a bar for adults.

McLean hopes to sponsor three major curling events a year and several inter-club events with Duncan.

There is room for expansion and McLean sees the centre adding a meeting room.

There is an arena at Fuller Lake to serve the north end of the region and now the Mill Bay area completes the picture serving the south.

BUY SUBSTITUTE—STORE

VANCOUVER (CP) — Super-Valu stores throughout British Columbia are in the process of erecting signs suggesting that customers buy sugar substitutes instead of sugar, a company spokesman said Wednesday.

He said the 85 stores would put up signs as they acquired sugar substitutes.

A spokesman for Kelly Douglas Co. Ltd., parent company of the Super-Valu chain, said his company hopes the price of sugar would stabilize or reduce if people bought less.

He said the retail price for a 10-pound bag of sugar in a Super-Valu store now is $6.67 compared with approximately $1.69 a year ago, and $65.59 for a hundred weight compared with about $15.50 this time last year.

Ultimatum Shatters ICBC Agents' Strike

By AL FORREST and KIT COLLINS
Times Staff

The 1,100 member Insurance Agents Association of British Columbia ended its strike against Autoplan at 1:30 p.m. today in the face of an ultimatum from the Insurance Corporation of British Columbia.

"We have lost a battle but not the war," president Jack Hamilton said.

He said the agents would continue to seek a meeting with Transport Minister Robert Strachan to obtain a higher commission rate for its members.

Hamilton said a threat to agents they faced loss of all government insurance business if they failed to end the boycott by noon Friday was a crushing blow for the smaller members of the association who relied upon that business to survive.

Telegrams and phone calls to the agents threatening to cancel licences to sell government insurance made the difference, he said.

Hamilton said despite denials from Strachan that the agents had been threatened, the telegram sent to agents not contacted by phone was clearly an ultimatum.

The telegram reads:

"We were unable to contact you by phone yesterday. It is imperative you advise us immediately whether you are continuing service under Autoplan. Unless we receive by telegram your decision to continue by noon-on Friday, November 15, 1974, we shall be forced to recommend cancellation by the lieutenant-governor in council of your firm's appointment to represent the Insurance Corporation of British Columbia."

The corporation set up a 35-member phoning team Tuesday and on Wednesday had contacted 628 agents. The remainder of the 472 agents were sent telegrams. Of the 628 agents phoned, 176 said they would abandon the strike immediately, another 183 said they were considering doing so and 269 said they were determined to continue as of Wednesday night.

In Victoria, Ian Rendle, vice-president of the Victoria branch of the insurance agents association, said on Wednesday only 1 of 38 association members and 2 of 5 non-association agents indicated they were in favor of ending the boycott here.

However, small firms could not afford a total loss of ICBC business, including fire, theft and car insurance.

In the legislature Wednesday, Strachan repeated an earlier statement that the agents were not being threatened.

He said, however, ICBC had to know how many agents were going to live up to their contracts and how many were not, so contingency plans could be made.

The agents signed a two-year contract with ICBC one year ago, agreeing to a 9 per cent commission in the first year and a 7 per cent commission in 1975.

Strachan has increased the offer for the second year to 7 per cent plus a flat fee of $2.

However, the agents maintain the second part of the two-year contract is void because the ICBC did not live up to an agreement to simplify procedures for selling insurance in the second year of operation.

GOLD HITS $191

LONDON (Reuter) — Gold prices soared past the $190 mark for the first time on London bullion markets today.

The price at one point touched $191 an ounce but despite heavy demand fell back to be pegged during the afternoon fixing at $188.25 dollars — a record.

Dealers reported heavy buying with substantial orders from West Germany which pushed the price up $3 from Wednesday's final fixing of $185.25.

Teachers Seek Self Policing

A Teaching Profession Act giving teachers the power to police their own profession has been drafted by the B.C. Teachers' Federation for presentation to the government.

The draft report, prepared by a B.C. Teachers' Federation committee and made public Wednesday, would give the federation power to reprimand, suspend or cancel the membership of a teacher found guilty of incompetence.

With membership in the BCTF compulsory, cancellation would be tantamount to taking away a person's right to teach in B.C.

The BCTF resolved in 1973 to seek a professional act as a means of maintaining competence in the profession, assuring self-government for the federation and encouraging "professional growth."

The draft report incorporates all existing BCTF policy on professionalism and includes the following provisions:

—Local teacher associations be given authority to negotiate with individual school boards on a wide range of topics including teacher salaries, working and learning conditions, hours of work, transfers, appointments and school policy.

—The only appeal for suspension or cancellation of teacher's membership would be to the B.C. Court of Appeal, not back to the BCTF or the cabinet.

Education Minister Eileen Dailly said late Wednesday she had not yet received a copy of the draft legislation but she was "willing to read it anytime."

She said the government has made no decision on whether the teachers should be granted a professional act as other groups in the province already have.

Greater Victoria school board chairman Peter Bunn said the report is "an absolutely devastating document" which is "anti-public education."

He said teachers are not professionals because professionals "don't leave schools unattended and don't break contracts."

Teachers can't expect to have a private practice like doctors and lawyers, Bunn said, because education is a compulsory and public function and "parents can't take their kids somewhere else . . . they're stuck in the system."

Bunn said he "can't take the document seriously" and he hoped the government would treat it in the same vein.

If the government does take the report seriously, he said, school trustees will likely launch a public information campaign to warn against the dangers inherent in such legislation.

Riot Greets Press

MONTREAL (CP) — Reporters toured cellblock No. 1 at St. Vincent de Paul Penitentiary Wednesday at the invitation of Solicitor-General Warren Allmand after two escaped prisoners threatened a bloodbath if conditions are not improved.

Hours before reporters entered the institution, two guards were attacked by prisoners being escorted to cells after outdoor exercise.

Warden Bernard Marcoux said the segregation section in cellblock No. 1 was quiet for five months until last Friday when the two prisoners began wrecking their cells after hearing about the impending tour.

Prisoners said they are kept 24 hours a day in cells measuring about 10 feet long, four feet wide and eight feet high.

"We're not dogs, we're human beings," yelled one prisoner in a cell reeking of teargas. He was one of those who attacked guards earlier.

Report Raps Police Dep't

A 17-page report rapping the Victoria City Police department for poor working conditions and unsafe vehicles will be kept under wraps, police commission chairman and Mayor Peter Pollen said today.

Pollen said the critique by University of B.C. law student Ken Teskey is a "vitriolic document" an dthat it is not in the public interest to disclose allegations contained in the report.

Teskey, who wrote the report independently after spending the summer as a constable with the force as part of the department's annual law student program, told the Times he originally planned to make his study public.

"Since then I've met with a certain amount of opposition," he said today in a telephone interview from Vancouver. "I've agreed with the department not to tell anything until we get a chance to talk it over."

Teskey said he has given copies of his report to Pollen, members of the police commission and police union.

"The reason I wrote it was in the hope I'd create a bit of a stir to improve working conditions for the men and the department," he said today. "It looks as though it might have that effect without slandering anyone . . . I haven't mentioned any names."

Teskey said the report was meant as constructive criticism and that he will know if any positive changes are made within the department because he is "on fairly amicable terms" with most of the officers he worked with.

He said the basis of the report is that the department has a need for more manpower and better equipment.

"The city's getting bigger and I don't think the department is," he said.

When asked about reports that the document might surface during contract negotiations between the city and the association, Teskey said: "That's their business."

Teskey also said that if the police commission releases the report, "they might give you an edited copy."

At his regular press conference today, Pollen said the source of the report should be considered.

"This is just one man's opinion — someone who had been a part-time member of the department," he said. "The fact that we had no power steering on one of our cars and uniforms out of the 19th century is just one 23-year-old's opinion."

The mayor said members of the press should go out and get the impressions of Victoria policemen on a first-hand basis.

Nixon Goes Home

Times News Services

LONG BEACH — Pale and thin, former president Richard Nixon left hospital today in a wheelchair, after 23 days of treatment for phlebitis.

Nixon's wife, Pat, rode away with him on the trip back to their oceanside estate in San Clemente where he will await the Watergate special examiners.

The three cardiovascular and internist specialists named by Judge John Sirica have until Nov. 29 to report back whether Nixon is well enough to testify at the cover-up trail, or give a deposition in California.

The former president's physician however, has warned that Nixon is troubled by touchy blood pressure, that shoots up under even minor stress, even friendly conversation.

Extremists Bomb Tokyo Embassies

The sudden attacks took place simultaneously just after 11:30 a.m. Several policemen on guard at the two embassies were hurt.

Metropolitan police said eight people taken into custody were identified with a Marxist Youth League. American embassy officials said there was no damage to the embassy, which is housed in temporary quarters while a new building is under construction, and no injury to Americans.

Communist and Socialist parties and labor groups have launched a campaign against the planned visit of Ford but have said they will oppose it only by peaceful means. This is the first instance of violence and seems likely to increase the already very tight security precautions in effect for Ford's visit.

Police said handbills calling for stopping the Ford trip by force were found near the Soviet embassy.

A group of six young men wearing red helmets appeared near the main entrance of the American embassy at 11:33 a.m. and tried to storm the compound by throwing Molotov cocktails, police said.

About the same time two young men threw six Molotov cocktails at the embassy from the roof of the Hotel Okura across the street, police said. Officers later found a bag and leaflets bearing the name, Marxist Youth League, on the 13th floor of the hotel. A total of 13 Molotov cocktails were thrown. Some exploded on the road outside the compound and some in the embassy parking lot. The Molotov cocktail attacks on the Soviet embassy also happened at almost exactly the same time.

NEWS BRIEFS

U.S. Wholesale Rise

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Spurred by a 56.4 per cent annual increase in food prices, the U.S. wholesale price index rose an adjusted 2.3 per cent in October, signalling worse inflation for consumers in the months ahead, the labor department reported today. The October surge was more than double the September increase, whose relatively modest 1 per cent increase had caused some administration officials to express hopes that inflationary pressures were easing.

Strikers Threatened

LA PAZ (Reuter) — President Hugo Banzer's government threatened Wednesday to fire factory workers and miners unless they returned to work as a crippling strike wave tightened its grip on Bolivian life. The country's 30,000 tin miners began a 48-hour strike Tuesday in protest against Gen. Banzer's decision to postpone promised elections and ban all political activity until 1980.

Israel Hikes Taxes

JERUSALEM — The Israeli government announced today new restrictions and tax and price increases to cope with the country's deep economic crisis. The ministry of communications declared a 43 per cent increase in telephone, telex and postal services abroad in line with last week-end's devaluation of the Israeli pound.

Public Rent Talks Urged

The B.C. Tenants Organization has appealed to the legislature to bring in further changes to the Landlord and Tenant Act to allow tenants to bargain with landlords for rent and living conditions.

Bruce Yorke, president of the BCTO, presented a policy statement today listing amendments his organization wants the government to bring in to change the rent control legislation.

Those changes include:

Establishment of a B.C. Rental Housing Authority to hold public hearings on rent and to set all rents on new premises built in the province;

Establish the right of tenants to form associations and councils to bargain with landlords over rent and conditions and to aid in law enforcement;

Deletion of the 12 per cent renovation costs the new legislation would allow landlords to charge in addition to normal rent increases;

Provision for rents to be set according to classification of premises rather than on an individual basis between each landlord and tenants.

Yorke said his organization

United Nations Divided As Arafat Off to Cuba

Times News Services

With the so-called "third force" expressing a more and more pro-Arab stance in the General Assembly, diplomatic sources said there is an increasing threat Israel might even be expelled from the current UN session as was South Africa.

Arafat's speech brought angry reaction from Israeli ambassador Yosef Tekoah in the assembly a few hours later — in a speech boycotted by many of the Third World group.

He termed the PLO a band of murderers and said Arafat's speech called for the end of Israel as a state. Israel had boycotted the actual speech.

"Israel will not permit the establishment of PLO authority in any part of Palestine," Tekoah said.

"The PLO will not be forced on the Palestinian Arabs. It will not be tolerated by the Jews of Israel."

At least 35 delegations walked out as Tekoah took the rostrum including the Soviet Union, China and many African nations as well as Arab states.

In his speech, Arafat said the PLO wanted self-determination for some 1.5 million Palestinians left homeless by the birth of Israel in 1948 and an equal number living in Israel or in Israeli-occupied land.

Two leading U.S. experts on the Middle East said the speech hurt the chances of peace in the region, polarizing the positions of the belligerents.

Columbia University Prof. J. C. Hurwitz said a new war is likely if the assembly adopts Arafat's proposals. John Campbell, senior research fellow at the Council on Foreign Relations, cited a "50-50" chance of war.

There was little doubt Arafat's speech had increased tensions in the Middle East, especially in the Israeli-occupied West Bank which an Arab summit conference at Rabat decided should come under administration of Arafat's Palestinians and not Jordan's King Hussein.

Arab youths jeered and cursed patrolling Israeli soldiers there Wednesday and shouted their support for Arafat's speech.

There was also tension along the Israeli-Lebanese border where Israeli soldiers were on alert against attack by Arab guerrillas who carried out a rocket attack on an Israeli village Wednesday. Israeli infantry and artillery attacked villages in Southern Lebanon today.

Tots Come First, Says Dentist

QUEEN CHARLOTTE CITY (CP) — The Queen Charlotte Islands' only dentist, Dr. Robert Orr, 34, said Wednesday he will no longer perform any but emergency work on adults.

Noting that the islands have 5,600 residents, Dr. Orr said his decision is "based strictly on time."

"I just can't work on everybody . . . there aren't enough hours in the day," he said.

"The need for dental care here is so great that I had to make a decision," Orr said. "So I have decided to work only on children because I believe health care is a birthright."

Besides, he said, it is adults who are most responsible for the dental problems of children because "they are the ones pushing candy and refined sweets."

Orr first gained attention when he overturned candy shelves in a store in Masset to protest the dietary prominence of sweets in North American culture.

In the new role he has defined for himself, Orr will work a minimum of one week a month at a medical clinic funded by the Federal Indian Affairs Department, treating children in Old Masset Village.

He said he has worked out a special arrangement so he can treat non-Indian, as well as Indian, children free-of-charge.

In addition, he will spend occasional weeks in this city treating children and any adult emergencies.

The rest of his time will be spent in a cabin on the north-east tip of Graham Island writing on nutrition and preventive dentistry.
